THURSDAY, August 27, 1885.

☞The Orphan's Court for Caroline county, will meet Tuesday, Sept. 8th.

ATTENTION, REPUBLICANS!

The Republicans of Caroline county are earnestly requested to meet at Denton, on

Tuesday, September 1st, 1885,

for the purpose of consulting as to the time of holding primary meetings, and other matters in connection with the approaching election. A full attendance is earnestly requested as all matters looking to a thorough organization are to be considered.

By order of State Central Committee,

R. J. W. GAREY,
CHAS. H. TODD,
THOS. B. CURRY.

County and Peninsula.

·····Dog-days will soon be over.

·····School-days are fast approaching.

·····This is what the farmers call good growing weather.

·····The public schools of this county will open on Monday September 14th.

·····Let there be a full turn out at the Republican meeting on Tuesday next.

·····The summer season is drawing to a close. Understand us; we mean season—not weather.

·····The steamer Edgecombe is now running in the interest of Wheeler's Transportation Line.

·····You had better skip the notice of J. Boon Dukes in our advertising columns if you don't want to pay your taxes.

·····Melons are too numerous to mention in our market, and any one can buy at their own price—from 2 cts. upwards.

·····One of our city cousins who has plump arms, but has bitten all her finger nails off, scratches mosquito bites with her teeth.

·····A very different feeling comes over one when he gets a letter enclosing a $10 bill, and when he gets an envelope enclosing a bill for $10.

·····Now that the times are dull is the best time to advertise. Then when the money comes in for the crops people will know where to go to deal.

·····It has just been discovered that the troublesome aud despised mosquito is a health-bringing visitant; it relieves the human system of much impure blood.

·····"We never speak as we pass by" is an air that no doubt can be appropriately hummed by some politicians after the nominations are made, and they "get left."

·····The State Temperance Alliance has fixed upon September 16th as the date for holding its State convention to nominate candidates for Comptroller and Clerk of the Court of Appeals.

·····A hotly contested fight was exhibited at the Democratic primaries on Saturday in this district, as was also in the 5th. In the 5th delegates were elected who were favorable to Mr. E. C. Fields for clerk.

·····The Democratic "carcass" in this town on Tuesday last was a sight to behold. There was no end to elbowing, and when the bell gave the alarm for the delegates to repair to the town hall such a rush never was seen.

·····Samuel H. Miller, of Cecil county threshed 726 bushels of oats, heaped measurement, from a seven-acre lot last week. One bushel of the grain, stroked measurement, weighed 36½ pounds. Mr. Miller takes the prize in oat raising.

·····De Voe, the weath prophet, says a cyclone will strike somewhere in this section between the 25th and 30th of the present month, and that immediately following overcoats will feel comfortable. Frost is to occur three weeks earlier in the Middle States than last year.

·····We were in error week before last when we stated that Mr. Roshy's health was failing. We have been told since by a party who saw him last week that he was working at his trade, and that he never saw him look better. His time of sentence expires on September 13th.

·····Watermelons and cantaulopes are plentiful in our local market. They are grown in large numbers in this county, and our market has been overrun with them for the past two weeks. Melons this year are not as good as they generally are, owing to the recent rains which has caused them to take a second growth.

·····Armond, a 7-year old son of P. W. Downes, met with a slight accident on Monday morning last. He was riding in a dearborn when he fell out and the wheels of the vehicle passed over him. After getting over the effects of the fall, the little fellow is all right again and is ready for the next mishap that may befall him.

·····The "Joker's" of Bethlehem played a return game of base ball with the Preston club on the Preston grounds on Friday last, but the game being delayed, as before, was concluded at the ending of the fifth inning. The score stood 17 to 2 in favor of the Preston club. The Preston club are expecting a challenge from the Denton club some time this month or next; so says the writer of this article. We would advise our boys to put it off until the next generation of lads grow up, perhaps then we will have better players.

·····Pestiferous weeds are maturing their seed very fast now, and enough are growing on almost every farm to seed half a dozen farms The roadside, the fence corners and out of the way places are full of them. Make a raid upon them whenever possible. If you cut down one obnoxious weed before the seed matures, you prevent hundreds from growing next year, to sap your soil, injure your crops and increase your labor. An item in an exchange states that the injury to pastures and meadows of the United States, from weeds alone, is one hundred million dollars a year.

The Democratic Primaries.

The Democratic primaries were held in the several districts of this county on Saturday last. The fight in this district for the clerkship, between Gadd and Cook, was hotly contested. Old political methods were resorted to to accomplish results. Money and whiskey were the principal means used to bring the doubtful men into line. These were freely used and had the desired result. The vote polled was over 300, making a full democratic vote, and giving evidence of a thorough canvasss of this district.

A Good Citizen Gone.

We announce with sorrow the death of Mr. Wm. T. Hignutt, a citizen of the 4th district, who died at his residence in Bethlehem, on Monday morning last. Mr. Hignutt was one of the best and most esteemed citizens of that district, and well and favorably known to most of the prominent men of our county. Some years ago he commenced the mercantile business at Bethlehem, and by his good business qualifications and close attention to the wants of his customers and indomitable energy and thrift acquired considerable means. He did much to improve his neighborhood, and leaves behind him evidence of permanent improvement. He died regretted by his immediate friends and a large circle of sorrowing neighbors. He was in the prime of his manhood, being about 48 years of age, and after having accumulated sufficient means to have made him comfortable in his old age. He died of typhoid fever after an illness of about two weeks. He was unmarried, and leaves three sisters who still survive him, one of whom is Mrs. Jas. I. Lednum, of this town. His remains were interred at Concord church yesterday.

Shocking Death at Milford.

THE WIFE OF REV. J. S. WILLIS BURNED TO DEATH BY THE EXPLOSION OF A COAL-OIL LAMP.

The town of Milford, Del., was terribly shocked on Saturday morning last by the sad news of the horrible death of Mrs. J. S. Willis, wife of Rev. J. S. Willis. Miss Lizzie Willis attended a party at the residence of Dr. J. S. Prettyman, in town, and on her return was startled when about a quarter of a mile from her home by seeing the house on fire. The driver whipped up the horses to a run and arriving at the house, Mr. Howard Bryant, of this town, who was visiting Mr. Willis's, jumped from the carriage, seized a bucket of water which happened to be at his command at the pump, rushed up stairs, and after a hard struggle, succeeded in extinguishing the flames. During this time Mr. Bryant had not discovered Mrs. Willis lying on the floor, the room being filled with smoke, but Miss Lizzie, the daughter of Mrs. Willis, had found her mother and dragged her across the room to a bed, but she (Mrs. Willis) was burned so badly that the flesh peeled off wherever she was touched. Miss Lizzie jumped upon the bed which was in the room in a light blaze, and after a hard fight succeeded in suppressing the flames. When the smoke had cleared away, Miss Lizzie, almost exhausted, called: "Howard, you have not seen this yet." Upon investigation it proved to be Mrs. Willis, who was burned to a crip, but was yet living, and she (Mrs. Willis) said, "Yes, you have come to save me." Physicians were immediately summoned, and Mr. Willis who had gone up to his farm near Magnolia, was sent for, and arrived in time to be recognized by his wife.

Mrs. Willis was conscious long enough to explain the cause of the accident. She said: "She did not light the lamp in the early evening, as the mosquitoes were so thick, but was sitting at the window waiting the return of Mr. Howard Bryant, Miss Clara Van Gesel and her daughter, Miss Lizzie, (the two former from this place who were visiting Mr. Willis's at the time of the accident), and when they were within a short distance of the house, Mrs. Willis heard them coming, lighted the lamp and placed it in the hall. A good breeze was blowing, causing a draught in the hall, and as Mrs. Willis set the lamp upon the stand, it exploded, setting fire to her clothing. She ran into the adjoining room, pulled the spread off the bed and tried to smother the flames, but the spread being so light, burned like shavings, and in this way the bed was set on fire. She then ran across the room where there was some water in a wash bowl, when the lace curtains at the windows took fire, and it was there she was found." She expired about 4 hours after the accident occurred. Mrs. Willis was about 45 years of age, and had many friends in this community who will deeply feel her loss.

The New Postal Cards.

The approved design for the new postal cards, as presented to Postmaster-General Vilas by the Beaureau of Engraving & Printing, will be sent to the contractors in a few days. It is a vast improvement upon the ugly one now in use. The line under the description of the card which now reads, "Nothing but the address can be placed upon this side," has been changed to read, "Nothing but the address to be on this side," Mr. Vilas suggesting that the caution was not a prohibitory one. The stamp now in use is square, and the design is a female head, with faces right and left connected above and below by scrolls in which appear "U. S. Postage," and "One Cent." This is replaced by a head of Jefferson in an oval, with a symbolical wreath partly surrounding it, tied with a band, upon which appear the words, "One Cent." The printing is to be done with brown ink. The contract called for the first supply of the new cards on July 1, but the delay in adoption of a design has been one reason for the failure to issue them earlier.

·····Rev. J. E. Smith, formerly of this circuit, expects to have his corn cutter completed this week, when he will start out on the road with it.

Democratic Convention.

The Democratic nominating convention which assembled in this place on Tuesday put in nomination the following ticket:

FOR CLERK—L. H. Gadd.
FOR SENATOR—Dr. G. W. Goldsborough.
REGISTER—Jas. B. Steele.
TREASURER—J. Madison Towers.
LEGISLATURE—P. W. Downes and John Y. Graham.
SHERIFF—Eli Smith.
COUNTY COMMISSIONERS—Clement Noble, Jas. C. Horsey and H. P. Chambers.

The following resolutions were presented and received but one affirmative vote, and was declared adopted by the presiding officer:

Resolved, That the Democrats of Caroline county in convention met, do most heartily endorse the administration of Grover Cleveland, President of the United States.

Resolved, That the Democratic party in county convention assembled hereby truly declare its opposition to bribery at elections, and demands of its representations a vigorous prosecution and rigid enforcement of all the laws of this State in relation thereto; and pledge itself to such legislation as will tend most effectually to eradicate the evil.

The anti-bribery committee presented, through their chairman, the resolutions of the anti-bribery convention passed some weeks ago, but they received no action whatever by the nominating convention.

The ticket is received with disfavor by the opposite wing of the party, and may result in open revolt by those opposing a part of the ticket

Dots for the Union.

The roughest thing in this life is when a man feels himself socially ostracised; barred out from all but the very commonest privileges of society, and to feel that it comes from no fault of his own, but rather from a tacit understanding of his fellows, that he is beneath their notice in a social way, because of his peculiar mode of life, or may be of his to them top-lofty mode of thinking and conversation. Many are the men and women who have been driven to perdition simply because they were misunderstood; because their thoughts did not run in the channel of common gossip, common ideas, or were unable to wear piccadilly collars, silk dresses, or because in their humble life they sought a higher, a better mental life, or because they did not always have the mere animal in the forefront, nor chose to ponder to accepted ideas which society receives as law and gospel, whether it is so or not.

Society turns up its pretty nose, especially if the dress or the pocket-book is not in keeping with elevated ideas, and it makes it doubly rough on individuals to be driven into themselves because of their impecunious condition, because of the notion that sensativeness and refinement has no business in man or woman who has not the cash to carry them into the current of social life. An enlightened, refined life according to the rules laid down by the decree of man belongs only to those in the upper strata, the professions and those who have the stamp of the social scale of "being worth something." PARGETTER.

The Luscious Watermelon.

The water melon season is in full blast. The same Providential wisdom that causes rivers to flow past large cities and tempers the wind to the shorn lamb brings watermealons to the people in the torrid Summer. They are perrennial evidences of the truth of the law of compensation. When the very thought of steaks, roasts, chops, and all other manifestations of solid food excite to indignant revulsion the appetites they should tempt, the watermelon rolls in to fill the void created by their expulsion. The green rind in which it is enveloped speaks of verdant fields over which the cool breezes sweep. As the knife discloses the luscious contents the eye seems to rest upon an imprisoned sunrise. The cool dew of the morning seems to have sought refuge with it from the aggressive rays of the rising sun. It suggests not even mastication, but soothingly yields itself to the lips while they passively enjoy its delicious refreshment.

Rich and poor alike enjoy it. The epicure receives it as a reward for the penance he has undergone in eating dinner. The bootblack resolves himself into a ragged statue of silent ecstacy as he stands in front of a fruitvender's wagon and buries his face in a penny slice as though it were a magic mask that shut out all the sufferings of his poverty-stricken existence. It is in every market wagon that rattles up to the kitchen doors of the wealthy. All sorts and conditions of men and women and children appreciate the watermelon.

The best way to prepare a watermelon for eating is said to be the following: Cut out a plug in the melon, pour in a bottle of claret or champagne, restore the plug and put the melon on ice for 24 hours; then eat it.

The Mosquito.

The mosquito is a queer bird. He is versatile. He can turn his hand to almost anything, and do it quickly, too. When you see one balancing on his tiptoe, like a girl crossing a muddy walk, you would swear he was all legs. When he dodges from one of your ears to the other like chain-lightning you are confident that instead of legs they are all wings. At midnight, when all the world is hushed and still, and he patiently waits by your bedside until you drop asleep, so that his impending operations may not disturb you, he sings his happy, contented little ditty to while away the time, and then you are certain that he is all voice. When he lights down on you and begins to explore your anatomy, to find out your composition, you swear on a stack of Bibles—of the new version—that legs, wings, voice and all had turned into red-hot drilling tools, soaked in pork brine. When you strike where he was and hit where he wasn't, you think he has smelted the whole business into a combination of Bessemer steel springs, oil tempered. Yes, the mosquito is a whole tool-chest, with a monkey-wrench and oil can thrown in, and a portable forge to keep his tools hot.

A Tough Peach.

Col. James J. Ross, of Seaford, Del., has sold the balance of his peach crop, 8,000 or 10,000 baskets, to Theodore Sofskey, a commission merchant of Baltimore, at 65 cents a basket, delivered at the depot. Some of the peaches sold will ripen in October, and one particularly tenacious variety which is called the "Keyport Late," hangs on like an officeholder until it is actually frozen out. The writer passed by these trees on the 3d of last November and the peaches were as hard as such fruit ever gets, and just before Christmas the fruit was still on the trees, firm and showy, wasting its sweetness in the wintry air. Along in March it was noticed that the fruit had disappeared; the killing frost of January and February, it seemed, had been too much for it. This strange variety is a medium-sized white freestone peach, firm and entirely free from curculios, with just enough pink on the cheeks to suggest that the fruit is ashamed at being caught out so late.
