MISS FITZHUGH MARRIED.

Of the many and conflicting rumors relative to Miss Mary Fitzhugh's marriage in Baltimore, the Sun's account of it is correct we learn from a reliable source.

Miss Mary Fitzhugh, of Denton, the young lady who would have been Mrs. Padgett Thursday, had not her father, Rev. G. S. Fitzhugh, telegraphed to Marshal Hamilton to arrest her, spent Thursday night and the greater part of Friday in the matron's room at the central police station. Early in the morning her devoted admirer, W. F. Padgett, of Florida, appeared before Judge Harlan and through his attorney, Thos. Ruddell, secured a writ of habeas corpus, returnable in judge Harlan's court. In the meantime Rev. Mr. Fitzhugh and wife, mother of the young lady, arrived from Denton, and employed Howard Bryant to act for them in the case.

All parties met in the matron's room at the central station, and after a long controversy Mr. Padgett agreed to withdraw the habeas corpus proceedings, and Mr. and Mrs. Fitzhugh agreed to allow their daughter to marry Mr. Padgett at the end of a year, provided that in the meantime he could satisfy then that he was able to provide a comfortable and happy home for their daughter. This seemed to be a satisfactory settlement of the differences, and so, in the evening, Mr. Fitzhugh and daughter went to the steamer Joppa, where they took passage for Denton. They were accompanied to the boat by Mr. Padgett, who carried the satchel which Miss Fitzhugh carried to Baltimore on the night of the elopement. During the conference and on the way to the boat the young couple exchanged many significant and smiling looks and a whispered conversation took place between them. The meaning of all this came out later.

When they boarded the boat Miss Fitzhugh made an excuse to leave her parents a moment. A few minutes later she flitted across the gangplank and joined her waiting lover, evidently according to a prearranged plan. They went to 848 Edmondson avenue, the residence of Rev. U. F. Swengel, pastor of Memorial Evangelical church, where they were married. Mr. Padgett had thoughtfully secured a marriage license Wednesday, before the arrival of his bride in Baltimore. The ceremony was witnessed by friends who accompanied the couple. They left soon after on their honeymoon trip, smiling with the thought that they had carried out their own agreement.

This is the agreement of the lawyers, which was not carred out: Mr. Padgett was to go back to Floriada, but had the priviledge of corresponding with the young lady of his choice the father to have the right to read the letters. Six months from the date of the present agreement Mr. Padgett was to be accorded the right to visit the family in Denton and submit proofs of his financial standing. The young lady is nearly eighteen years of age, a little under the medium height, is a dark brunette, vivacious and of pleasing countenance. She spent the night in the matron's room, apparently contented and satisfied that she would win the man of her choice and baffle the objecting parents before many hours. she was awake early in the morning and seemed to be in a merry mood when introduced to Matron Fay, the day matron. She told the whole story of her love affair to the kind-hearted matron, who listened with interest. The young husband is a stalwart, dark-featured man of three and twenty. They met in Florida about a year ago while Mr. Fitzhugh had a charge there. The courtship was objectionable to the parents of the young lady, and in order to break it up Mr. Fitzhugh decided to move to Denton, where he was offered a charge as rector of Christ P. E. Church. Since then the young couple have corresponded, and Mr. Padgett arranged to come here and get married. News of the flight from the young lady's home was conveyed to the father, with the result that he telegraphed here and had her arrested when the boat arrived at Light street wharf Thursday night.

When the anxious parents were informed by friends on the boat that their daughter had been married, the father said: "Well we might as well go back to Denton," and departed with the boat.

Washington's Birthday Observance.

Monday afternoon was observed at the Denton High School as Washington's birth day. This is a departure from former years, as a similar observance is farther back than the most of us can remember. The following program was rendered in a manner which reflects credit on the departments and teachers that carried it out:

Anniversary Banquet.

Washington's Birthday and the First Anniversary of the institution of Caroline Council, Junior Order United American Mechanics were observed by the above Council on Tuesday evening with a public meeting in the Town Hall and a banquet in the lodge room to the members and their friends. Mr. C. H. Stewart, chairman of the committee of arrangements announced the program and introduced the speakers. The exercises were opened by singing "Nearer my God to thee" after which Rev. Z. H. Webster, of the M. E. Church, offered prayer. Rev. Mr. Webster, and Rev. A. Vondersmith, of Laurel Grove, made short addresses which were well received. Hon. H. R. Lewis was expected to represent the Council on the platform but was unable to attend on account of illness.

Tables were arranged in the lodge room and refreshments were served to nearly three hundred persons. Ice cream, cake and fruits were served and all present pronounced it a very enjoyable occasion.

The main hall was handsomely decorated, the columns were wound [illegible]ine

Defaulter Boggs in Delaware.

William N. Boggs, defaulting paying teller of the First National Bank of Dover, is in the custody of the United States Marshall. He is at is presumed, ready at the proper time to tell the complete story of the looting of the bank, and also to reveal whatever outside collusion he had in his work.

In connection with Boggs' return, President Harry A. Richardson of bank, lodged complaint before United Stated Commissioner S. R. Smith, in accordance with which warrants were issued for four prominent citizens of Kent county, for aiding and abetting Boggs in his work. These citizens are E. T. Cooper of Milford, formerly of Dover, ex-Sheriff Amos Cole of Wilmington, formerly of Dover, Thomas S. Clark and Charles L. Butler of Dover.

The complaint of President Richardson alleged that these parties aided and abetted Boggs to loot the bank, the amount for which each is charged with being responsible being as follows: Cooper, $23,000; Clark, $4,000; Cole, $1,420.63; Butler, $188.21. Boggs is charged with misappropiating $107,000 while paying teller of the First National Bank of Dover. The first intimation of the shortage was received by the public on June 3d, 1897, when, after Boggs had been absent from his post for five days, a hasty examination of the books was made, and it was given out that he was a defaulter to the extent of $38,000. A careful examination was at once commenced, and, on July 14th, the official announcement was made that the shortage aggregated $107,000.

Boggs left Dover on Saturday, May 29th, the impression being that he would return to Dover on the following Tuesday. It was not suspected that anything was wrong until his failure to return at the time specified, and as he was not at the bank on Wednesday, the suspicions of some of the bank officials were aroused and an investigation was commenced. On Thursday morning it leaked out that Boggs was a defaulter. On that day a letter, which was supposed to have been written by Boggs, was received at the bank, in which there was an acknowledgment of the shortage and in which directions were given by which the officials could discover the methods used in eluding the bank examiner. The letter exonerated all others connected with the bank.

Boggs is about 39 years of age and comes of a well connected Kent county family. He entered the employ of the bank about 16 years ago, and after serving as book-keeper was made paying teller about seven years ago, when Philip Burnett resigned. He was married to a Miss Miller. As paying teller, Boggs received a a salary of $1,200 per year, and most of the people about Dover considered that he was living within his means He drifted into politics about six years ago under the Republican banner, and, at one time was town clerk of Dover.

The Surprise of All.

Mr. James Jones, of the drug firm of Jones & Son, Cowden, Ill., in speaking of Dr. Kings New Discovery, says that last winter his wife was attacked with La Grippe, and her case grew so serious that physicians at Cowden and Pana could do nothing for her. It seemed to develop into a case of Hasty Consumption. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in store, and selling lots of it, he took a bottle home, and to the surprise of all she began to get better from first dose, and half dozen bottles cured her sound and well. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and colds is guaranteed to do the good work. Try it. Free trial bottles at George & Redden's Drug Store. 4

Mr. Carroll on River Delicacies.

J. Henry Carroll of Tanyard this county, the veteran terrapin raiser and shad fisherman of the Choptank takes exceptions to James R. Randall's assertion in a recent number of the Catholic Mirror, that "Baltimore has no gastronomic advantages over Washington except in the imagination. The Southern sea terrapin is just as toothsome as the Chesapeake diamond-back. The shad of Southern rivers are just as large and succulent as Potomac fish. But you can hardly get Baltimoreans to admit these things. It is an art study to watch the face of an old-time Baltimorean when one ventures to observe that the Central market in Washington is as good as Lexington market in Baltimore, and perhaps better."

Mr. Carroll says that the shad of the Southern rivers may be as good as Potomac shad, but none of them can be compared with Choptank shad which are the most highly prized of all shad, not only in Baltimore and Washington, but in Philadelphia and New York as well. Next to them in quality and gastronomic flavor are the Delaware Bay shad. There is something peculiarly adopted to the improvement of shad in the saltwater of the Choptank, and the fish reaches us just at the season when it is best adapted for the table. Mr. Carroll has a poor opinion of the taste of a man who thinks the Southern "sea-terrapin" is as good as the Chesapeake diamond-back. They are "ten times cheaper," he says, "but the Chesapeakers are ten times as good. To his mind, and there are many like him, his own impounded and Maryland biscuit-fed turtles are superior to the Southerners.

THE NEWS FROM COUNTY TOWNS

Gathered by our Hustling Reporters Each Week.

The last meeting of the Preston Literary and Musical club was held at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Lednum last Thursday evening. The evening's literary program was on the "Age of Johnson." History of the Times, Mrs. A. W. Sisk; Biography of Goldsmith, Miss Velma Hollis; Paper, the Works of Oliver Goldsmith, Miss Dollie Kelly; Biographical sketch of Franklin, Miss Bertie Noble. The finely rendered musical part of the program was under the direction of Mrs. J. F. Lednum, Mrs. S. E. Douglass and Miss Bertie Williams. The next meeting, with a program on the Age of Scott, will be held at the residence of Dr. and Mrs. J. L. Noble on Mar. 3rd, 1898.

We wish to present to the public, the fact that the L. S. C. has no origin whatever. It was given the name, "Literary Social Club" by one person only, who did it in opposition to a previous organization, and finding the majority would not support his intentions, through disrespect to the company it was called "Lovers Social Club." Presumably the unfortunate ones would be happier if they would join the lovers and indulge in the tete a-tete.

Col. J. H. Douglass has again entered the drug business at his old stand on Main Street.

Mr. Thomas Hubbard of Chestertown, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Todd last week. Mr Hubbard is looking well and his many friends here were pleased to see him.

Rev. W. E. West and family left last week for North Carolina, where they will visit his parents. After the Wilmington Conference, Mr. West and family will reside at Denton, where he will engage in the practice of law.

Mr. John W. Cohee has been visiting his father, at Willow Grove Cottage Hotel, at St. Michaels.

Miss Emma Stafford visited friends in Easton last week.

Goldsboro Gleanings.

Our little town has been greatly improved by having the sidewalks made higher and graveled.

One of our town's most prominent clerks seems to pay quite marked attention, to some of his lady customers; especially those who ride in buggies.

Miss Clara Powell is the guest of Miss Addie Coursey at the "White Plains" farm.

All are invited to attend our Missionary Anniversary, this coming Sunday afternoon, Brother Green will make an address.

The latest fad with the young ladies of our town, is "Missionary Surpluss." How they make the money seems to be the joke; some black the boy's boots, some prefer the shampoo while others engage in selling needle-cases, pen-wipers and holders. Some of the ladies tip the boys' hats for them; these of course have a marked price, each.

Mrs. John Clark entertained quite a few of her friends on Tuesday evening. Many innocent games were played until late in the evening when refreshments were served, then good bye at 11 o'clock.

Mrs. Gertrude Wilson and daughter, Miss Leta, of Greensboro, are the guests of Mrs. Charlie Jones.

Mr. Herman Smith was in town Sunday.

The Great Irish Orator, Conrad Haney,

Conrad Haney, the silver-tongued Irish Orator, will lecture here on Thursday evening, February 24th, Subject, "Ireland and Irishmen." Tickets for sale at Blackiston's. This gifted speaker and wonderful wit comes highly recommended to the committee. The Decorah (Ia.) Republican says: "Those who listened to him will wait a long time ere they hear his equal in the essentials which mark the eloquent orator."

The Miner (Ill.) News says: "The opinion is generally expressed that Conrad Haney's lecture on Friday evening last overshadowed all previous lectures."

Pekin (Ill.) Times: "The Times congratulates Mr. Haney in giving the finest lecture ever delivered in this city."

Dallas (Tex.) Times: "We have never heard a speaker who had greater power of entrancing his hearers and holding them spellbound by hisutterances."
