...notorious Boggs case that has ...ted so much attention for the ...ree weeks, has assumed a po... aspect if we can judge anything from the tone of the Democratic press of Delaware. The first four arrested for aiding and abating Boggs in looting the Dover bank, are Democrats that have been prominent in politics for years and have rendered their party valuable service, and the party has returned the favor by rewarding some of them with official positions. After looking back on the past usefulness of these men the press cannot look upon it only from a political standpoint and say their arrest was due to that cause. Such a version of the case is silly, to say the least of it. No political influence should be tolerated in this case. If these men, six of them now being under arrest, should be given a fair and impartial trial. It is bad taste to attempt to avert the minds of the public at this time. These men are charged with an awful crime and should be given all the benefits of law and public opinion that can be brought to bear in their favor. They stand before the public as criminals. They must prove their innocence or stand as criminals for life. These men waived a hearing after being arrested that they might prepare their case. If they who are accused of this crime can wait for a hearing, it seems the Democratic press ought to. If these papers are ...ley are guilty beyond ... present course is not to ... ...ered at. We have'nt seen a fair and impartial paper of either party but that is anxious the ...hould take its course and han... these men according to their ... if they have any, if not pro... them innocent. Last week more arrests were made, connect... R. McGonigal and Harry F. ...d, of Dover, as being Boggs ac... bank. Mc... ...nding $2,... ...500 of the ... ...ney and was placed under $4,000 bond. Ford is charged with getting $850 and his bond was placed at $2,000. It is said more arrests are to follow. Let the officials ferret this case out and bring the evil doers to an account for their crimes, and we also hope to see that part of the Delaware press that could see nothing but politics in it, mend their ways and see that truth and right prevail.

MR. Cannon, chairman of the committee on appropriations, said in Congress a few days ago: "We have got the money in the treasury to meet this appropriation if it is expended, and that too, without resorting, in our opinion, to further taxation. Therefore, there is no coupling with this a proposition that would probably be made in most countries in the world under similar circumstances—to levy additional taxes to meet the expenditure. I say again, we are satisfied that revenues to be yielded from present revenue laws will afford sufficient money to meet this expenditure, and, in addition thereto, the ordinary expenditures of the government." This brought the Baltimore Sun out with a protest; seems to have raised all the latent Democratic fevers that have been slumbering for months past. In fact it looks as though the editor was rattled when he penned this protest. The Sun says: "The $50,000,000 just appropriated to put this country in a posture of defense, is part of the money borrowed by President Cleveland to maintain the public credit. He obtained it by an issue of bonds. This sounds well, does'nt it? A Democratic president borrowing millions of dollars for a Republican president as a war reserve, when there was no war in sight. Mr. Cleveland has never been accused before, we believe, of enjoying bond issues, and people became alarmed at his slowness here, lest the gold reserve get below the limit. As the public read the Sun's editorial on this subject, we imagine many smiles of disapproval played over their countenance.

THE public must become accustomed to surprises in these times of war-talk. Last week we were told that our Spanish Minister had been assassinated. This at once set those who do all their fighting at home, at work preparing war for others. We had scarcely recovered from this surprise, when Sunday the boat brought the news that the battleship Montgomery had shared the same fate as the Maine. This seemed to ...ore credit than the first re... therefore the contempt for

THE termination of the trial of Sheriff Martin and his deputies at Wilkes-Barre, Pa., for shooting down several lawless striking miners last September, resulted in the acquital of the sheriff and his deputies, as was supposed would be the case from the first. The sheriff is a sworn officer to preserve peace at any cost. The strikers were notified time and again to cease their lawless course, but to no effect, and even went so far as to defy the law, hence the strenuous measures resorted to by the sheriff were necessary, or they would not have been resorted to. The strikers that were the main participants in this trouble, was composed mainly of lawless outcasts of other countries, who would soon destroy law and order in this country if left to their own evil propensities. After using these extreme means to keep this element in subjection, it is then all our officials can do to preserve order. In our large cities where the foreign elements centre, is where many of our excellent laws and usages appear to be made of little or no effect. Sunday with that class of people is a day set apart for Sabbath desecration and debauchery, at the same time those that have stores buy and sell the same as any other day, where allowed. This people require the strictest enforcement of our laws, and then in many instances they are not kept in subjection. In the above case it cost several hundred dollars to quell that riot and show them they must respect our laws. Not being content with their defeat they sought satisfaction in court, where they met defeat equally as great as at the hand of the sheriff. This redress proved more expensive for the county than the quelling of the riot, it being $10,000. While the cost may look large the lesson here taught is worth more. Law and order must be enforced at any cost, or our country would soon become a heathen nation, or so close thereto that it would be hard to distinguish the difference.

IT is rather surprising to note the interest(?) the Democratic press of the Eastern Shore has in Judge Russum when there is no election in sight, or he is not before the public seeking office. When the Judge is before the public for office these papers tell their readers "the Judge is a nice man, but not the one for the office." After the election is passed and their words are only flattery—the Journal last week is a fair illustration when it said: "The Judge is eminently qualified for Tax Commissioner and is not objected to by any faction." These papers would naturally leave the public to infer that Judge Russum is before the public for some office a great deal of the time. Such is not the case. He is not, neither has he been seeking the offices these papers have said he was aspiring to. The last office they have credited the Judge as being an applicant for is that of Tax Commissioner. This office has only been filled by Robert P. Graham for a few day; hence the folly of the talk of a change. If the Journal had taken the trouble to ask the Judge, the same as we did, it would not have placed the him in a false position before its readers last week.

SENTOR Messick, last week, introduced a bill in the Senate asking for the appointment of an Auditor. This bill has called for some questioning as the general impression is that we have auditors. So we have but their power is rather limited. The object of this bill is to appoint auditors to examine accounts at any time during the year. Having no such committee the Treasurer's books could not be audited last November when Mr. Deakyne resigned to become Deputy Clerk of the county. These books, we understand, would have been examined before Treasurer Green took the office had any one had the authority to order it done. As soon as this bill becomes a law, it is said the books will be audited up to the end of Mr. Deakyne's term. Owing to his resignation, this brings three different treasurers within about six months time. These books should be examined at the expiration of each official's term, and the public notified of their condition.

ARCHBISHOP Ireland, of Chicago, says no true American Catholic will talk of espousing the cause of Spain against that of this country because the former is a Catholic nation. To do that is to set one's self down as traitorously inclined to the teachings of this religion, as well as to the country, which is his bounden duty to defend against all enemies, both internal and external.

WM. J. Bryan is said to be out with words of commendation and praise for the President. Mr. Bryan knows a good thing when he sees it, like thousands of others. The President did't pass through the trying ordeal of the civil war for nothing He appears very much at home at this time.

IN another column may be found a notice for a call for a meeting to organize a board of trade. A short time ago the UNION pointed out the need of such an organization and spoke of some of the advantages to be derived from such an enterprise. Every citizen who has the interest of our town at heart should be present at this meeting Monday evening and take an interest in this proposed laudable enterprise. No live town can, neither will it be without a board of trade. They are essential to the growth and development of any town or city; in fact you may judge considerable of a place by its having or not having a board of trade. Let our citizens bear this meeting in mind Monday evening and by helping this movement see if you don't help yourself at the same time.

THE Naval Court of Inquiry sailed Tuesday night from Havana to to Key West. The decision to leave the Cuban capital was made suddenly, as they considered their safety none too secure with the Spaniards. The Spanish Minister called at the State Department Tuesday and asked an explanation regarding the United States' buying the two Brazilian warships, but received no information along the line he sought. The Navy Department is now getting the flying squadron in commission and ready for active service. The newly-bought warships will also be made ready for active service at once. It is thought the Board of Inquiry will make their report this week and soon after the President will lay the case before the Spanish government.

IT is said that Miss Hulda Todd was appointed postmaster at Greenwood because the Regular Republicans could not find a man of their faction for the office. An article of this purport was published in a leading Democratic paper a few days ago. Since then the Democratic press of the Peninsula have taken it up and published it the same as though it were true. There is one of two things to be drawn from this and other publications of a similar nature, which shows that they are hard up for facts to present, or prefer to manufacture something from whole cloth.
