DENTON, MARYLAND.

Thursday, May 26, 1898.

TALBOT county is not very well pleased over the curious kind of a drink law given them at the late session of the General Assembly. Senator Dodson says the act does not represent the law as it was intended, and is surprised at the shape it is in as passed. It started as a House bill offered by Delegate Tull, of Oxford, and was intended to prevent the sale of socalled cider, not home-made apple cider in Chapel district only, but according to interpretation by competent authority it is thus: It prohibits absolutely the sale of cider of any kind in Trappe and Chapel districts, while in Easton, St. Michael's and Bay Hundred districts pure and unadulterated cider, made in Talbot county from apples grown in the county by the makers thereof, may be sold, but all other kinds of cider are prohibited, and medicated bitters, except by druggists. The penalty is a fine and imprisonment in the House of Correction. Therefore, in "wet" Chapel district, where whisky, beer and other spirituous and fermented liquors may be sold, the home product of the cider press may not be sold, and in "dry" St. Michael's it may be. "Fighting cider," as it is termed, is independent of the apple crop. It is made of the cologne spirits, spruce-pine shavings and Scotch snuff. It is generally heated before use and will make fighting drunk come. A Bay Hundred merchant is reported to have bought a barrel, as there is a great deal of home-made cider drinking in his hundred. He introduced his cider, it is said, by treating friends. The result was a fight among some of their peaceable citizens. Instead of promoting temperance in those districts, it would seem they have gotton mixed in their law, and have done those things they ought not to have done, and have left undone that which they ought have done, and therefore there is no help for them.

The old ship, democracy, is about to get another hole punched into her bottom if we can judge anything by the disintegration of the silver forces in the Senate in connection with the war revenue bill which is about to lead to further divisions on the money question. Senator Gorman and other democratic Senators have seized upon this opportunity to dissent from the views expressed by the extreme silver advocates and to renounce a portion of their allegiance to the Chicago platform, and to draw away from the Populistic combination that is demanding more greenbacks. Senator Gorman says he will not consent to have the silver question raised in connection with ways and means of carrying on the war, and the attempt to give it a political cast has been discountenanced by him. It is generally believed that his real purpose is to part company with the Populists, Silver Republicans and Democrats, hoping to raise an issue in the Democratic party on the money question, or it may be that the Senator is squaring up his old party account opened last fall with his party, when they sacrificed his political aspirations with impunity. He is taking an active part just now in the war revenue bill, and while he is leaning toward the Republicans he is suggesting some good changes in the bill. The opponents to bonds are still inclined to wait for the destruction of the Spanish fleet in Cuban waters. Like the Spanish they believe in delay, hoping that fate may turn something up for them. The Senate has made a canvass and present indications are that satisfactory methods of supplying the government with money proposed by the majority of Republicans will be adopted.

THE opponents of high license at Cambridge have been holding public meetings, and crowds have attended. On the other hand the license men are not holding meetings. Of course they are not, what could they say in favor of license? They are doing their work under cover and Tuesday revealed the result of their work. The license system is becoming rather unpopular on the Eastern Shore, and well it may when it is considered in an intelligent way. It is a business in which a very few are financially benefitted, and a great many are injured financially, morally, physically and otherwise. A man gives up his money and gets less than nothing in return. The result of Tuesday's election was a victory for the temperance people, they carrying the day by 90 majority. The vote was a large one, 962 being cast; 436 being cast for license and 526 against it. We congratulate Cambridge on her success and think she has acted wisely in voting to continue "dry."

IT was after due deliberation and thought that this government entered into war with Spain and not without counting the cost. The outlay of money must of necessity be large to meet the requirements that war naturally brings with it, but this cannot be measured with dollars and cents. There is a motive above either of these why we should be at war at this time, and that is national honor. It has cost a great deal to obtain it, and now that we have it it must be retained at any price. It was never made a point that this nation could not afford to go to war, and such a thing would be un-American. We are rich in natural resources and in other things that contribute to the prosperity of a great nation. We went to war to right the wrongs of an oppressed people, to secure justice and fair dealings for its subjects and at the same time to avenge the wrongs we suffered at Havana in the loss of the Maine and the deliberate murder of 262 of our brave seamen, at the hands of a low and depraved nation. The money that will be used in a warfare of this kind will be well spent. The war has, it is estimated, cost this country about $80,000,000, or at the rate of nearly $3,000,000 a day. A large part of this went for the strengthening of the navy and that can be looked upon as a permanent investment, as no one imagines that very much of the navy will be destroyed by Spanish gunners. From this time on till the end of the war, it is thought the cost will be about $1,000,000 a day. While this is a large amount to expend daily, we are abundantly able to do it without laying too heavy burdens on the people. If this government can speedily bring this war to a close, our new possessions will amply repay us, so far as dollars and cents are concerned.

WHERE's the chap now that used to howl about the uselessness of the navy?—Dem. Ex.

He has found company with the free silverite and they have taken to the woods. This is a progressive age and those who cling to old exploded ideas must join another age if they can find it. The world moves on if fogyism does'nt. Several years ago the Republican party advocated more of a navy, but were opposed by the Democratic party, with some exceptions. Now they see the folly of their way and are advocating a navy at a time when we need it. It would seem that the above named classes were far enough behind the times, but when we look at some of the "old stuff" in Congress, we think they are still further behind their times. A few weeks ago they were calling for a declaration of war by the administration, during which time the President was using every honorable means to avert war, which failed. Now that war has been declared they are not with the President but are still opposing him and the administration in raising a war revenue. It is unfortunate that such statesmen, if we may call them such, were not elected to remain at home, particularly at this time.

ALL efforts to have the Five Commissioner bill for Sussex county, Del. passed have failed. One more effort will be made by discarding certain objectionable features, says an exchange. If that be true the future of the bill is doomed to defeat. There is nothing else to it but objectionable features, except for a few politicians who are clamoring for spoils. Three commissioners have been tried in all the counties and have given satisfaction. It has been and will continue to satisfy the tax payers but not a few politicians that are out of office and want to get in.

THE President called upon Delaware for 341 volunteers and she responded with a full regiment of 1028 officers and men, or three times her quota. This is a credit to the little Diamond State, and is to be congratulated on her patriotism. This liberal response of our neighbor surpasses anything we have heard of in this line and we are proud of her. There is one suggestion that might be made to the "boys" before going to Cuba, wherein they might do their own State a favor by moving on Dover and dispersing the obnoxious legislature.

THE fungus has now attacked the peach trees. Frost, yellows, the San Jose scale, the fungus and June drop and several other things form a combination that bids fair to make the Delaware peach nothing but a memory says a Delaware paper. If the Delaware peach can live through all this they should be classed with the mosquito crop in the future; a certainty.

Dorchester's Proposed Railroad.

The directors and promoters of the Cambridge and Chesapeake Railroad, which is projected to run from Cambridge across Dorchester county to Fishing Bay, are now engaged in securing subscriptions to the stock of the company. Two routes have been surveyed, but neither has as yet been definitely decided upon. The act incorporating the company was passed by the legislature at its session of 1896. It made provision for the county subscribing to $75,000 of the stock if the proposition were approved at the next general election. The people gave their approval at the last election, and the last legislature gave the act the final touch, so that the commissioners of the county are now prepared to discharge their part of the contract when the directors comply with the conditions of the subscription by the county. These conditions are that one-fourth of the subscription shall be available when one-half of the road shall have been graded. Another quarter can be paid when all the road shall have been graded, another quarter when finally constructed, and the last quarter when the road shall have been completely constructed and in running order. It is thought that the road can be graded and equipped for $125,000. It will most probably run near Church Creek, Madison, not far from Taylor's Island bridge, near Lakesville and Golden Hill. It will be about thirty miles long. At the bay terminus are valuable oyster rocks. The road is expected to develop the country through which it passes, and add materially to the prosperity of Cambridge. At the bay terminus it is expected that valuable oyster industries will be developed. It has not yet been determined whether steam or electricity will be employed as the motive power, but the preponderence of the sentiment of the directors is said to be favorable to steam.

—Messrs. Stewart & Jarrell are erecting a cannery building at Queen Anne 80x80 feet, with wing 60x60. Rumor is that they expect to invest $5,000 in buildings and equipments.

M. L. FRIEND,

BLACKSMITH

—DENTON, BRIDGE.—

Having opened a Shop at Denton Bridge for the Blacksmithing business I will be pleased to see my friends and solicit a share of their patronage. Horse shoeing and all other work done promptly and at reasonable prices. Wheelwrighting and new work a specialty. jl

During a recent service in the Roxana, Del. M. E. Church, two of the members, Lamuel Derrickson and Peter R. Bennett engaged in a fight. The later shouted to his son "Stay by me" and replied "I will see you through." While the combatants were clinched, the younger Bennett stabbed Derrickerson in the back, inflicting a wound two inches deep. The fight was the result of a grudge.
