Butchers Beware.

For the Union:

Considerable complaint is being heard concerning the inability of the people of the town to get beef. Other towns in the county, Preston for instance, are furnished with fresh beef daily. It can be bought in Baltimore kept in refrigerators and sold as the people need it with a fair profit, and it is very strange that our butchers can't do likewise. More than this, the meat is better after remaining in a cool place for a day or two. We would suggest that our butchers think over this matter and arrange to give the public better service, otherwise some wide-awake man will see his opportunity and avail himself of it.

CITIZEN.

Resisted the Sheriff.

Wesley Nichols, colored, was arrested near Ridgely on Monday by Sheriff Rice for threatening to shoot another colored man named Newcomb Some of the parties live near Preston and have been at Ridgely picking berries. Nichols and Newcomb had quarreled about the latters wife Nichols arming himself and threatening to shoot Newcomb on sight. The writ was handed to the sheriff and Nichols when arrested refused to accompany the sheriff to Denton and resisted when he attempted to put the handcuffs on him. In the tussle Nichols' coat and shirt were torn and he attempted to draw his revolver. The sheriff however brought his gun into sight and disarmed and handcuffed the prisoner. He asked to be allowed to change his clothes but the sheriff informed him he could do that at the jail.

Ready For Business.

On Monday Cashier Wallace and Teller Sparklin of the Peoples National Bank began the work of unpacking the books and stationery of the new bank and putting things in shape for business on Tuesday. The rooms have been neatly papered and the new furniture was put in place on Saturday. The counters, desks, tables, etc., are of solid oak with gratings and finishings of the latest design, made to order and very handsome in appearance. The lobby is much larger than many persons supposed it would be, yet there is plenty of room for those who work behind the counter. The front has been brightened up with a new coat of paint and the name Peoples National Bank on the transome over the door gives the building a neat, business-like appearance.

At the opening of the bank Mr. H. B. Wilcox, Casher of the Equitable Bank, of Baltimore was present and assisted the officers. Mr. Jas. T. Sylvester had the first check cashed. A number of accounts were opened with the bank and considerable money deposited, quite a number of notes discounted and altogether the officers were well pleased with the first day's business.

NEHEMIAH SAULSBURY DEAD.

Mr. Nehemiah Saulsbury, son of Mr. Jas. K. Saulsbury, died at his home in Ridgely, Wednesday morning about 2 o'clock. The news of his death was received in this place Wednesday morning and was a great surprise to the public, as no one here though his case a critical one. Even his attending physician pronounced him better Tuesday night at 9 o'clock when they held their last consultation. A while after that time he was taken worse and continued to sink until he passed away. Mr. Saulsbury was apparently in his usual, health although his friends had noticed that he was not looking so well recently. For several weeks past Mr. Saulsbury is said to have worked hard, early and late, making new machinery for the pea canning house at Ridgely. He is one of several brothers who have lived for several years at that place and has done much towards building up Ridgely and making it what it is today. In addition to canning of peas Mr. Saulsbury was also interested in canning tomatoes etc. He was also interested in a shirt factory at that place. He and his brother, Mr. I. T. Saulsbury were identified in business under the firm name of Saulsbury Brothers. Mr. Saulsbury was about 28 years of age and was highly respected by all who knew him. The family have the sympathy of the public in their bereavement, especially the aged parents who have taken much pride in educating and training this young man so as to make him a credit to his community. The funeral will be held at his home in Ridgely, Fridry afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment will take place at Denton cemetery.

CHILDREN'S DAY.

Children's Day was observed at the M. E. Church, Sunday evening, in a manner that was highly pleasing to the audience that braved the extreme heat. The church was comfortably filled. Much credit is due the superintendent, Mr. Henry R. Lewis, and those who assisted him. The music which was the main feature of the exercises, was unusually good. The children also took their parts well, notwithstanding the short time allotted them in which to prepare their parts. The program consisted of singing, recitations, responsive reading and a short address by the pastor. Those who recited and had speeches were Ida Downes, Mildred Ramsdell, Olivia Passapae, Lizzie Hynson, Sarah Webster, Annie Lewis, Jessie Sparklin and Willie Bowers. The Smith sisters, three small Holland girls, sang a piece in a language not generally understood by the congregation, but was enjoyed nevertheless. The church was prettily decorated with flowers and potted plants, and made a pleasing appearance to the eye.

FROM ONE WHO SAW IT.

A letter written by Mr. W. Z. Burrous, late of Elizabeth City, N. C., now in the U. S. N., writes Miss Maggie Farrow, of this place, some things he saw while battling for the freedom of Cuba that will be of interest to our readers. He says:

Soon after the war was declared he was ordered from Key West, Fla., to sea to run a blockake on the south side of the island, out on account of our capturing several special prizes, we did not get there at once, but were kept flying around to different places. We have been in one hard fight and came out successful after four hours of hard work. We were sent to cut some cables that were lying between two forts. I was anxious to see some scraping then, but now my mind has changed, as I know what it is. Only those who have never experienced any warfare are anxious for it. We went in pretty close to the forts early in the morning so as to surprise the Spaniards when they awoke, but it didn't seem to surprise them as we steamed close enough to get in range, they fired on us and then the battle began. It was a pretty sight, but I didn't enjoy it. There were big shells bursting all around us, now and then one would pass through our upper deck, killing some of our men. I was not afraid but had strange feelings. Our smoke stacks and upper deck are badly shot to pieces. We had eight men killed and about thirty badly hurt; some will recover. I was very lucky, only got hit on my little finger, but didn't know it until the fight was over. I can't begin to express things as they were. It is said we killed more than 300 Spaniards in the fight which was a hot one in their forts that day. We had the advantage of them as all of our guns were rapid fire. We did expect to meet the Spanish and as it was said they had a strong fleet around Cuba, we naturally expected a hard fight when our ships met. I am anxious to meet them and fight it out, although I expect to loose my life, but let it go, as I could not die for a better cause than fighting for my flag.

Mr. Burrus is a member of the U. S. navy and is on the ship Nashville which fired the first shot of the war. He also sent a curiole in the shape of a black hat band with the name of his ship worked in gold and presented to him and others by the government in appreciation of his fidelity and bravery.

THE PEA INDUSTRY.

The packing house of Mr. George T. Redden, located at Denton Bridge, has been a busy place for several days past. This house contracted with several farmers for their pea crop during the winter and spring, the result of which has been that load after load has been delivered there. The season has been fairly favorable and the peas are well developed. A representative of this paper called the other evening at Mr. Redden's packing house and was surprised to see the large amount of business done at this place. The machinery by which the peas are handled, do not have to be touched after they have been fed into the separator until they are let out below into pails. The machinery was in motion and the first thing to attract our attention after viewing load after load of pea vines, was a man feeding into a large machine the peas and vines together. Examination showed that the whole peas coming out and rolling down to the bottom, while the beaten vines were carried off on an endless chain railway to a separate pile from where they are carted away by farmers for agricultural purposes. From this step we followed the peas to the cleaner and culler where all the dead peas, chaff, etc., are blown away, and then to the large separators. Following this we next came to a large roller covered with a wire screen, starting rather fine at first, but becoming coarser as the peas worked down. The peas thus treated are taken through the bleaching process from which they come looking fresh and green. The water is kept at a boiling point. The peas were then put on large tables and the faulty ones were picked out by experts at the work. The next process was the filling where girls have measures that hold the amount required for a can. Next a certain quantity of hot water. From here they pass to the cappers where they are cealed with wonderful rapidity. The cans are next treated to a hot water test of 15 or 20 minutes, cooled and packed away. While this machinery does not apparently exert itself, yet it does a vast amount of work. Was the hulling alone done by hand it would require the entire population of the town to do it.

But this is only one of the three large concerns of the kind in the county, the other two being located at Greensboro and Ridgely, and have a capacity of 40,000 or more a day. Saulsbury Bros., at Ridgely had a mishap last week that botherered them for a day or so, but by Saturday midnight all their peas had been hulled and canned as though nothing had happened. Messrs. Saulsbury Bros. must recognize the fact that they have many friends in and around Ridgely. The Roe Bros. at Greensboro also have a large plant capable of handling all the peas that section can grow. As yet they have experienced no difficulty in handling all the peas presented. This week they expect the bulk of their crop. Mr. Redden has been so driven that he has been obliged to run nights and then had to encroach on the Sabbath to save his peas.
