A Hermit Dead.

James H. Davis, one of the oldest residents of Dorchester county, was found dead Tuesday night of last week, at his home, near Ellwood Station, on the B. C. & A. R. R. He is supposed to have died of heart trouble, to which he is a subject. Davis lived the life of a hermit in a lonely and secluded place, and, run a "speakeasy" for a living, for which three bills were found against him at the April term of court. Davis was about 85 years of age and came to Maryland about 20 years ago from New York State. He claimed that he steered the first steamer that crossed Lake Erie, and that he remembered when there were but three brick houses in Chicargo. His body was buried Wednesday afternoon in potters' field.

WAR VETERANS' REUNION.

The cival war veterans of the First Eastern Shore Regiment, of Maryland, held their annual reunion at Masonic Hall, in Denton on Thursday. L. Shanley Davis, of New York, was re-elected president. Major James C. Mulliken, of Easton, vice-president; Daniel W. Moore, secretary, and Charles W. Davis, treasurer, both of Federalsburg. In the afternoon session, at which President Davis presided, prayer was offered by Rev. Z. H. Webster, of the M. E. Church, and music was furnished by prof. Swann, Prof. J. G. Robinson, Miss Lora Downes and Miss Nannie Nichols. Ad lresses were made by Judge George M. Russum, Henry R. Lewis, Harvey L. Baker, Charles F. Hutchinson, Major William E. Stewart, Professor Robinson and President Davis. Dinner and supper was served at Brown's Hall by the ladies. Eighty three soldiers were present, of whom five enlisted in the Spanish war, viz: Charles R. Hutchinson and Harry Amboch, of the Fifth Maryland Regiment; Walter W. Hutchinson, Fourth Infantry, Regular Army; Charles G. Griffin, of the Seventy-first New York, and Fred L. Lohmeyer, of the cruiser Dixie.

At this meeting there was a contrast with reunions held heretofore, in that Major Stewart, who fought against the boys in blue, was present and made an excellent speach, clearly showing that all sectional lines were obliterated. Mr. Hutchinson also deviated somewhat in his speach from old customs when he said: "You have fought a good fight and came off victorious. You have answered to the roll-call on the field of battle for the last time. Year after year you are responding to another call—the call of death—are you ready?" The address was a timely one as the old vets show that their earthly work, with many, is almost done. The next reunion will be held at Easton, last Thursday in September.

Delaware Politics.

The Republican nominees of recent election have been declared by the executive committee, and the campaign in New Castle county will be lively from now on. The ticket has not been certified as yet, but the committee has until within ten days of the election to do it. The Union Republican leaders, while not exactly pleased with the results of the primaries, it is said, will swing into line and support the nominees. The Democrats are attempting to make political matter of the fact that but one Union Republican was nominated at the primaries, and they hint that there will be a disruption before the election.

The only cause known for disruption would be the result of a notice served on the executive committee by the Unionist leaders, who desire to know if the Republican candidate for the legislature, in the event of election, will support the caucus nominee.

Democrats say this is a scheme to have J. Addicks elected United States senator, but conservative politicians say this is impossible, owing to the fusion in Sussex county.

The Caroline County Sunday School Convention, which began its session in Greensboro on Saturday in the M. E. Church, closed Sunday night with a very large congregation. Among the speakers during the convention were Rev. L. B. Cooper, Rev. Aloysius Green, Rev. L. B. Carpenter, Rev. L. F. Dryden, Rev. James Relter, state supetintendent; George Nock, who represented the Sunday School Union. Mr. Nock delivered the convention sermon on Sunday morning. Rev. J. B. Cooper delivered an address on the "Secret of Success in Sunday School Work." Rev. Aloysius Green delivered an address on "The Relation of Young People's Societies to Sunday School Work." A number of laymen also spoke.

Domesticated Partridges.

M. M. Andrew, of this town, has a covey of young partridges which he is raising in a wire cage 8x16 feet, on a plat of ground in the rear of his dwelling. In the autumn of 1897 three birds—one cock and two hen—which had been winged by gunners were given to Mr. Andrew, who, by the way, is a poultry fancier. He took the birds to his home, splintered up their wings and took care of them during the winter. In early Spring, the wings of the birds being healed, they were placed in the cage above referred to, where they have received the watchful care of their owner. About the first of August one bird began to nest and every second day laid an egg until she had laid twelve. The male bird then went to setting and continued until incubation, when the hen took motherly charge of the ten hatchlings from the twelve eggs. The young birds are now two weeks old and are growing finely.—Free Press.

A Narrow Escape.

Thankful words written by Mrs. Ada E. Hart, of Garton, S. D. "Was taken with a bad cold which settled on my lungs; cough set in and finally terminated in Consumption. Four Doctors gave me up, saying I could live but a short time. I gave myself up to my Savior, determined if I could not stay with my friends on earth, I would meet my absent ones above. My husband was advised to get Dr. Kings New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. I gave it a trial, took in all eight bottles. It has cured me, and thank God I am saved and now a well and healthy woman." Trial bottels free at Geooge & Redden's. Regular size 50c and $1.00. Guaranteed or money refunded. 1

Valuable Papers Destoyed.

Since the Courthouse has been undergoing repairs, at Easton, it was noticed that the rain had dampened the walls of the vaults to such an extent that the record books were becoming badly damaged with mould. The roof of the Courthouse has been off for the past month, and will likly remain so another month. To obviate this in the vault of the Orphans' Court and Register of Wills' office there was placed an old stove to dry the atmossphere. The workmen saw smoke issuing therefrom, and on inspection discovered that the centre table and valuable papers unfiled and unrecorded were charred and worthless. Not even evidence of what they were remains. It is feared at least one unrecorded will is destroyed.

Free Silver In Maryland.

Free silver is dead in the state of Maryland. If any proof were needed of this fact, the composition of the so-called convention of the Democratic silverites, held in Baltimore last week, and the speaches delivered would be sufficient. The contrast of this convention of the Democrats with those of other years, before the party took up the heresy that was buried by popular disapproval, is positively painful. No prominent men of the party were present. The "leaders" whose presence was wont to arouse hearty cheers were not there, and they sent no letters of regret for their absence. Not to be a "regular" in campaigns before the last presidential election was too serious a sin to be forgiven. The real leaders among the Democrats have long ago seen their error in taking up free silver. All their prepictions of not electing Bryan have failed. The country is now more prosperous than it ever was. The crops are abundant, and the government has actually been able to conduct a war without borrowing money from abroad. There is abundance of money, and the rate of interest is everywhere very low.

The hard times the silver agitators themselves caused have passed away, it is hoped, never to return.

In the face of the powerful logic of facts, it is only the digruntled and the men of one idea that continue to hold out against what is impossible of realization. Such a convention as that held last week should furnish a powerful and salutary lesson to the Democrats of this state who clamored for cheap money.—Baltimore American.

Broad Tires For Wagons.

The use of the bicycle is affording an illustration of the operation of the broad-tired vehicle in keeping roadways in good condition. This illustration is conspicuous after showers, when it will be noted that the tires of the bicycle path much more rapidly than the narrow-tired wagons restore the roadways proper to a smooth condition. It is true that the action of the pneumatic tire is more beneficial to a soft roadway than that of the hard broad tire, but its stamping effect is an illustration of what the wide tire does in comparison with the cutting effect of the conventional narrow tire.

Were it possible to substitute broad tires for the narrow tires now generally used, the condition of the average country road would be improved in a comparrtively short time. Not only that, but the efficiency of the average draught horse would be materially raised. Instead of cutting into the soft spots in a roadway, the wide tire compresses the soft earth and passes over it, leaving the spot in an improved condition for the passage of the next wheel.

An exhaustive test of broad and narrow tire, made at the Agricultural Experiment Station of the Missouri State University, demonstrated that on hard, smooth and nearly level macadam roadways the strain required to haul a given load was 35.7 per cent less with the broad tire than with the narrow tire. On a gravel road with a hard surface there was a margin of 33.3 per cent in favor of the broad tire. On a road composed of a large quantity of sand mixed with gravel the margin was 45.5 per cent in favor of the broad tire. Over a new, unused dry gravel road the difference in favor of the wide tire was 26.6 per cent. The narrow tire required less strain for haulage on a road where water covered the surface and loose sand from one to two and one half inches deep was found. But while the broad tire required a greater strain for haulage, it did no injury to the road, whereas the narrow tire cut though the soft earth beneath the water, and destroyed the surfacing. The broad tire was also at a disadvantage on roads where the hardpan was covered with dust, as the narrow tire cut though to the hardpan, while the wide tire pinched and heaped up the dust and thus increased the strain of haulage. The broad tire also required a greater strain on some kinds of mud roads. But, as a whole, the tests were strongly favorable to the use of broad tires for the average roads. — Milwaukee Wisconsin.
