The Shooting Match.

The shooting match on Monday was quite a successful affair, and many a laugh was enjoyed by the crown at the expense of the boys on the skirmish line outside the boundery, who would shoot at every pigeon that got away, no matter if it was a quarter of a mile high. Over 200 pigeons were used but only 120 were killed at the traps. None of the Easton sportsmen showed up and only a few matches were arranged. Two gentlemen from Cordova and three from Greensboro arrived after dinner but there were only a few birds left and only one match was arranged. Christmas in Denton.

Christmas Day coming on Sunday was observed by appropriate services in all the churches. The sun shone clear and bright and the day, although cool, was very pleasant. Numerous family reunions took place and sumptuous repasts were served. There was considerable drunkenness on Saturday night, but very little on Monday, although the shooting match attracted quite a crowd totown. No arrests were made for disorderly conduct and everyone enjoyed themselves in their own way. The colored band turned out about daylight and serenaded a number of the prominent people in town.

To Prevent Fraud.

Brutal Murder at Pocomoke City.

One of the most daring and atrocious murders ever known in Pocomoke was committed near that place Wednesday night. The victim was John Turner, a very prominent and highly respected colored man, residing in Pocomoke City, who was brutally murdered by two unknown men. The affair has caused intense excitement among both the whith and colored people, and some strong fears are entertained for lynching if the murderers are caught. The facts show that Turner went from his home about 7 o'clock in company with two men, and when about five miles from that place, at Cross Roads, the men bound and gagged him and cut his throat from ear to ear, and inflicted an ugly wound on the head, from which his brains oozed out. The body was found by two white men. The body was found lying in the road with face downward and the face show[ing] had suffe[red] ing ousy existed as they have not lived happily together for some time and it may be the outgrowth of that. An autopsy was held Thursday afternoon Alice, the wife of the murdered man, was the first witness examined. She testified that her husband was at home until 7 o'clock and after eating supper, left the house saying he would return shortly. She could not remember any particular persons being at the house during the evening. After cross-examination by State's Attorney Jones the witness was dismissed, subject to being recalled. The next witness was the little boy of Turner's; his testimony was the same in substance as his mother's.

Boneless Turkey.

The turkey is the "King of Birds." Prepared for eating in almost any manner and he is a "feast fit for the gods." But to prepare him properly is the question.

The latest aspirant for gastronomic triumphs has conceived the idea of entirely denuding the turkey of the flesh from his bones. In other words, to deprive the bird of all his meat, leaving nothing behind but the bare skeleton. Then, to take the flesh thus removed from the bones, but preserving all the form of the original fowl, to stuff the carcass in the most appoved form, bake it in the most thorough manner, and serve it with vegetables to suit. It is said by epicures of experience and knowledge that those who think they have eaten roast turkey do not know what roast turkey is until they have eaten it prepared in this manner.
