"EXTREMITY knows no bounds" is the term applicable to democracy in Baltimore. In order to score a point its leaders have been vainly trying to misconstrue the meaning of Senator Wellington's speech of a few days ago when he said: "We are able to carry Baltimore this year without the assistance of the independent vote or press." The Senator spoke disparagingly of neither of these but used it as an illustration to show that he considered the city Republican under her present election laws. He said more, and had the majority rule worked in the past as at present, the State would have been in the Republican column long before it was. We can't conceive why that city should think of returning to its former way of political treachery, much less of adopting it. What do some of the Democratic candidates promise the people for their votes? They say if the good voters "will elect them to office they will give the city as good government as at present." Why did'nt they do it before in city and State? Who has heard of any conversions since then, or even penitent moods on their part? If there is any sorrow mixed in it anywhere it is because their sins have exposed them, and now these apostles have wrapped sheep skins about them and appear before the voters asking their support. A glance last week at ex-Gov. Brown, the great harmonizer and source of Democratic purity in Baltimore city was a damaging revelation for that party, and sent him to one side where he rightly belongs. Leter revelations as to the vaunted purity of "Tom" Hayes, likewise got a setback when Policeman Sloffer last week told the police board that he had arrested Mr. Hayes, Democratic candidate for mayor, for drunkeness about a year ago, was a telling blow to his party. All the bosses arose with one accord and said "its not so," and here they let the matter rest. The natural supposition is that upon examination the bosses wisely decided to do no more about it as it was something that would'nt bear investigation. The policeman's story was straight and the books at police station bear him out. While the policeman did'nt know him at that time, others did, and it is said he was released upon paying the drunkeness fine and signing a fictitious name never heard of before or since in the city. This, it appears, is nothing more than could have been expected under the pretended harmonizing efforts of ex-Gov. Brown.

THE Free Press in trying to excuse its party for the murder of Postmaster Baker, of South Carolina, makes a bad matter worse. It will be remembered that Baker was deliberately murdered a few months ago for no other reason than that he was a colored postmaster appointed by a Republican administration. The fact that this murder was an outrage against the nation as well as a State affair, was overlooked by the toughs, our neighbor is trying to excuse. It is altogether different, being tried by the government and the State laws of South Carolina, as the south may learn to its sorrow later. "Which is the worse, the Free Press asks, "of two men who contemplate murder, the man who holds the dagger, or he who forces the victim against the dagger's point until life is extinct?" There is no two sides to this matter as the Free Press vainly endeavors to show. The lawless whites in this and similar cases in the south, have'nt waited for their victims to be pushed on the dagger, but have taken the law in their own hands repeatedly and committed cold murder for political purposes. We are sorry to see our neighbor taking sides with the lawless elements of the south. We realize his party's position at this time and its lack of live issues, but that is no excuse for following any party or measure, only so far as they are consistent with law and order.

SEVERAL days last week gave us a foretaste of the dust which is to follow this summer. As all of the leading streets of the town are covered ih oyster shells, makes it the more essary that the streets be sprin- this season. As the subscrip- plan has failed to work, the next lan would be for the town com- rs to take charge of the mat- ve the streets prinkled as e question is will they

AT the annual meeting of the Md. Presbytery last week, a few hot heads ran into a hornet's nest when they attempted to ventilate the question of "colored evangelization." It was introduced by the committee in charge of the matter, which submitted its annual report, and said that the negro problem was the most serious that faced the Southern people, and the most important of any for the consideration of Americans. It went on to say that there were 7,000,000 colored people in the territory covered by the Southern Presbyterian Church, and that to the question whether or not the church had done its duty towards these people it had to answer "no." The report went on and stated that this was a critical period with the church and unless it comes to the aid of the Independent African Presbyterian Church it would surely perish. If this happened the church, before God and man would stand in the position of having turned the race out to die of neglect, and the world would charge them with race prejudice. Then the church would be in the ridiculous light of supporting a costly mission in dark Africa and turning them from our doors at home. The committee advised renewed interest and vigor in the work because the people are accessible and speak our language, etc. Here one of their ministers attacked the report, saying it was false and reflected on the church as it had done its duty in that direction. He said they had the interest of the negro at heart and prayed and worked over the matter. Another reverend of that denomination even showed his spite for the colored race was greater than his brother and said the church was confronted with a serious condition in respect to the salvation of the negro, and that it was a foolish thing to shut their eyes to the fact that the Southern people were lukewarm in regard to his welfare. He said that negroes were growing up natural thieves and criminals simply because they had been reached by no spiritual influence nor Christian people. You cannot take care of the young negro on the memories of the past and there is less spiritual work among them now than when they were slaves.

Notwithstanding the protests of the two socalled ministers the report passed. At this distance it looks as if the Presbytery should let its work of evangelization begin at home and begin with the two ministers quoted above. It ministers of the gospel look upon the colored race as above shown, a class of men who profess to love the souls of all men, what can we expect from avowed enemies of the race? Is it surprising that that people should use the shot-gun to civilize and convert the race? There is no people that has made greater improvement than that race since their freedom. They have made greater progress in the south than the white race. Had they had an equal chance with the whites in the past 50 years it would be different with them now. Treat a man as a man if you expect to make one of him and the sooner the south learn this lesson the better it will be.

BY far the most expensive citizens this country has are the negroes. Millions are being spent daily in the Philippines, in Cuba, in Samoa and at home to keep them in subjection. Centreville Record.

The Record displays a vast amount of ignorance or prejudice in dealing with this question, or, perhaps both. School children at this advanced age of cizilization would'nt make such a glaring mistake in a school composition. If the later prompted the assertion it is along the same line pursued by ex-Senator Gorman at this place last fall when he so far forgot himself as to call the Philippinos "little negroes." Ignorance, prejudice and the lack of living issues are all painfully noticeable in the Democratic camp at this time. Again, to charge the colored race of this country as a whole for the misdoings of a small per centage of them is as unjust as to brand the whole white race as criminals for the misdoings of some of them. That paper not satisfied with the above misrepresentation says "a race war has recently been on in the coal mines of Illinois between the white and colored miners." Reports that we have seen of this trouble is the result of a strike where both white and colored are on the same side. Other papers of that faith say it was caused by "grinding trusts," thus showing that that party is not agreed among themselves. Other things could be said to show that Democratic organs are using all sorts of devices to accomplish political ends, but, like the ball with rubber string to it, rebounds with double effect on the one who throws it.

THE Courier, a new Republican paper just started at Salisbury in the interests of the party in Wicomico county, is worthy of the name. It is well managed, nicely gotten up and neatly printed. Its mission is to espouse the Republican cause; not to build on Democratic ruins, but to erect a new structure of Republican material. Wm. H. Jackson, Esq., is president; Alan F. Benjamin, editor.

IT looks now as though the long-looked for canal between the Delaware and Chesapeake bays was to be a reality. Government engineers after a thorough inspection, report the scheme as feasible.

IN the city prison at Baltimore, it is said some 600 prisoners are detained there, some are awaiting sentence and others serving sentence. In the State penitentiary there are 850 prisoners serving terms. They are employed at making shoes, polishing marble, and there is also a complete iron foundry attached where fancy work is made. The men labor dilligently as though not in prison. They have an incentive for this industriousness, for when a convict completes his daily task within the eight hours allotted he can secure payment for the work he does in the remaining time. For this overwork some of the convicts receive as high as $35 a months, which is often more than some of them earned when free. The surplus last year over the cost of maintenance of the institution, was nearly $30,000. Of the 850 convicts, 92 per cent. are employed in the workhouses, the remaining 8 per cent being the infirm. The cost of meals is 7 cents per capita daily. They are well fed and read the newspapers. Surely there are worse places than the Maryland penitentiary.

THE opposing wing of Bryanism propose to make short work of him as a political leader in the Democratic party. They say he must be set aside or the party is irretrievably ruined. Mr. Bryan contends that he represents true democracy and that his wing will forgive the other wing their sins of the past if they will be good and support his side. The family row promises lots of amusement, if nothing more.

THE Chestertown Transcript is becoming impatient over the appointment of a postmaster to succeed Mr. Lucas who died recently. This is a place where Democratic machinery methods does'nt work. When the President learns the wishes of that people it will not take him long to act. No, brother, Gorman's holdups are a thing of the past. Maryland has turned the table and held him up. See!

BRYAN seems to be laboring under the delusion that he is all that remains of the Democratic party.—American. "And there are others;" Gorman for instance. A book just now explaining the hidden meaning of democracy, would be a timely production, affording much thought for those seeking for the truth.
