THREE great issues are now before the people, viz., industrial trusts, imperialism and money. These are great questions and want to be viewed in a business way. The tariff issue which played so important a part a short time ago, has been settled in a way that no argument can change. So it will be with the three named above in time if left to the Republican party to settle, of which there is but little doubt. As to the trust issue, the strongest argument that has as yet been produced from Democratic sources, will not bear its own weight under the light of facts. In the first place trusts had their birth in Democratic times, during Cleveland's term of office that the Great Sugar Trust was formed. To go a little further back it is said thousands of dollars from this source went into Democratic campaign fund with the understanding if Cleveland was eleted the administration should favor that trust, which it did. Soon after the formation of the Sugar Trust, business grew worse and the life was taken out of it so that a quietus was put on business of all kinds and trust formations were paralized, as was business of all kinds, but when the McKinley administration came into power and that revenue getter, the Dingley act, began to get in its work, although abused by the Democratic press at large, it moved steadily forward and accomplished that for which it was intended; the revival of business. With this flood tide of business, came the trusts, that which the Democratic press claims so much to depise. Again, what has the Democratic party done to prohibit trusts but talk? No laws of any description can be found, but on the other hand the Republican party is on record as opposing trusts, and may be found on the Federal statute books, as the so-called Sherman law. All anti-trust legislation has been in Republican states and this of itself shows the direction of the wind. As to imperialism it is only necessary to wait, as that, like the Dingley act, will speak for itself. While money matters have adjusted themselves to our present needs, it will come in for needed legislation now that both branches of congress is Republican. To sum up the Democratic national situation it can be truthfully said the party is without a single live issue for 1900.

THE Union Republican, Georgetown, said: "As a party the Democrats have never been much on growth or development." This fact struck the Lewes Pilot so hard it is compllel to apoligize for the short comings of its party, and to clear up some of the haze that hangs over it, went back to the time when Thomas Jefferson was president and says he "purchased Louisiana, adding over 6,000,000 of acres to one territory, giving us the great vast west and making us masters of the entire Missippi river with the city of New Orleans, and the purchase of Florida during the administration of President Monroe a second valuable acquisition. During the administration of President Polk the purchase of all that rich and wonderful country on the Pacific Ocean, and in addition the States of Oregon, Washing and Idaho in the treaty with Great Britain in 1846. These vast and valuable acquisitions were made by Democratic administrations." The Pilot's defense is a frank admission of the Republican's charges. To find deeds worthy of mention it was compelled to hunt up Democratic history fifty years old. Another sad confession made by the Pilot is that its party has retrograded within fifty years, as then it favored growth and expansion, while now it opposes all such things. Democracy then and now is vastly different, as the public well know. It has failed to keep pace with the times and asks recognition on dead issues.

WE have heretofore urged that one of our national banks add a savings bank. The two would go together very nicely and one would be a feeder for the other, at the same time being seperate and distinct institutions. In '93 a savings bank was started at Chestertown under the management of a national bank. Up to the present that bank has earned for its depositors about $13,000, which otherwise would probably have been lost to its depositors and the commission to the bank. Denton should have a savings bank; who will be a prime mover in this direction?

WHILE it may not be interesting reading to some of the young editors of the local press to read the pointers sent out by the more liberal and far-seeing Democratic press, yet, if carefully studied and laid away for future reference, would be nearer facts than the tactiets being used at present. The Balto. Sun this week says "Gov. Lowndes' record in the gubernatorial office has been such that his renomination would put the Democratic party upon its mettle. It will not do to imagine that because the Democratic candidates have recently been elected in a municipal campaign in this city 'any old thing' can carry the State next fall. No more serious mistake could be made. The Democratic party must put its very best men to the front this fall if it is to win. * * The Democratic candidate for Governor must command the confidence, not only of party men but independents, if he is to make a winning fight against such a foeman as Gov. Lowndes. He must be a man of the same political caliber. * * The Republicans appear to intend to put their best foot foremost, as far at least as the governorship is concerned and the Democrats will have to meet them with an equally good nomination." The above coming as it does from the leading Democratic paper of the State, must set Democrats to thinking, especially those who were lifted to the third heavens a few days ago over the non-political election in Baltimore. Present indications point to Gov. Lowndes as the Republican nominee for reelection. The Sun supported Governor Lowndes four years ago and has not regreted it, but points to his administration with pride. He is generally conceded to be the best governor Maryland has had during the past twenty-five years, and other State officials rank equally high. Prior to the Republican party's ascention to power, the old ring rule which backed Hayes a few days ago and is now clamoring for recognition, controlled the State and plundered the treasury. The past four years has been just the reverse and thousands of dollars sayed to taxpayers. The State has a Republican record that will put the old ring to shame this fall and the Sun is only telling the truth when it says. Democracy has a rough road to travel.

OF all the sorry spectacles shown our Democratic contemporaries, none have been more so than their zeal in the canned beef inquiry just held. Reason, (the sort they used) knew no bounds. They jumped at wild conclusions and handled them as facts. But, a day of reconing came at last which set these wouldbe Democratic prophits to shame, as the court of inquiry was more pronounced against them than any one else, because their folly was the greater. Their backdown while graceful as possible, was awkward by reason of the offense. Those who had courage enough left to say anything, said the impartial court which had listened for months to all the evidence on both side was wrong and they were right, and insist that the court whitewarshed Secretary Alger. Such narrowness can be better imagined that explained. The Philippian war which is drawing to a close, will make startling revalations to those who are so blind they won't see the true inwardness of this matter and the grand results that must necessarily follow the peaceful acquisition of the islands.

IT is said that ex-Governor Brown spent $1500 in organizing and aiding Democracy in the Baltimore election. That was but a "drop in the bucket" no doubt.—Kent News.

We all know that a man who would slip off and go to Europe each year to avoid taxes won't make Baltimore a present of the above amount. Now that Brown, Rasin and Company are doing business at the old stand, the taxpayers of Baltimore may make up their minds to the settlement of other $1500 election bills that will be presented for payment later. Barnum, the great showman, once said that the American people had to be humbugged. It seems that his prediction is true as to Baltimore city. Although Hayes does'nt take his seat for some months yet the News, as well as other far seeing Democratic papers are fearful of the old ring, and well they may be.

THE net debt of the State has been reduced to $2,954,456, and the reason for such reduction, the Baltimore Herald says: "This demonstrates convincingly that the public finances have been managed in a manner that deserves the warmest approbation of citizens. It also denotes a degree of solidity that places Maryland among the most favored states in the union in point of freedom from burdensome obligations; a result which must redound greatly to the credit of the administration that is responsible therefor.

TRUSTS to the number of 265 were formed in the month of March.—Seaford News. Yes, the Democrtic administration tried to foster trusts a few years ago and failed, and because Republican prosperity seems to be congenial to their growth it wants to hold the Republican party responsible for them. They are the natural outcome of prosperity; just as bond issues follow as a result of prostrated business interests.

THE Baltimore News says: "The old Democratic boss whose low cunning and corrupt practices made him rich and drove the party from power in this city is today busily and stealthily at work to secure a controlling influence in the First Branch City Council." The News warns the Democrats against Rasin, the boss referred to, now that it is too late to prevent his plundering the city. It knew as well before the election as after, that the "old ring" was in the back ground playing its part privately as well as publicly, thus clearly showing that the News was one of them to have pursued the course it did before the election. Is Rasin covering all the plums to the exclusion of the News? Such an inference is only natural since the News has squealed so soon.

SIXTY-EIGHT millions of silver dollars were hauled through the streets of Philadelphia a few days ago, but created no stir or excitement. We are living in an age of expansion of territory, wealth and ideas, and becoming used to large things. Surely we are a growing nation, made so by reason of our wealth. We can pay twenty millions of gold to Spain and think but little of it, our prosperity as a nation becoming so great.

ADMIRAL Dewey is expected to start for home in a few days, as his work at Manila is about done, having driven the Filipinos from place to place, until now they are about to say they are going to be good. It was a great day when Sampson's fleet came home, but that day will be eclipsed when Dewey's arrival is announced, which will be about the first of July.

SENATOR Wellington, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, has issued a call for all the county committees to meet in Baltimore, Wednesday, June 7th, when dates of the primaries will be set.
