THE difference between the two national parties at this time is very marked. We will condemn free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1; will reaffirm its belief in a tariff, and it will oppose trusts. The free coiner clause has had judgment passed on it and is settle for time to come. Contrary to the predictions of Bryan calamity has not overtaken the country, labor is not unemployed, but instead, business has steadily increased since the inaugeration of President McKinley. Labor is not only employed, but the remuneration is greater now than for a long time. Free silver was not the panacea as promised. President McKinley holds the key to the situation and has restored confidence, without which it is impossible to do business. The Republican party will not only oppose the trusts, but everything that stands in prosperity's way, be they what they may. On the other hand, doubt and uncertainty hangs over the party. No mind can penetrate the uncertainty as no one can imagine democracy's future, as all is shrouded in uncertainty. One wing of hot heads are still working at the free silver rock as assidiously as though something could be saved from it. Another band of politicians, with headquarters in New York and extending to Tammany Hall, and thence to Mr. Gorman, is working up another presidential boom. Opposition to trusts is the leader for this wing, and coming next is to be a sweeping condemnation of McKinley's course in regard to the Philippines. But, before this wing can be recognized to any extent Gorman must redeem his State, which is a herculian task. He is at present considered to be in bad repute at home. This impression must be dispelled before other wings will recognize him as their leader. The best way to regain this prestage, Mr. Gorman seems to think, is to put John Walter Smith forward and use his starch money to that end, realizing that the only way he can carry the State, is to buy it. If Mr. Smith wants to be a tool to such a deal, the Republican party this part of the State will be more than pleased at it. Caroline snowed him under last fall for congress and we see no reason why she wouldn't do the same if he should run for governor this fall.

SOME Democrats are saying nothing against trusts, but are sawing wood in that way, while others are sawing wood by saying a whole heap. These two apparent contradictions exist on this Peninsula. On this side of the Delaware line the Democratic press is howling on what Havemeyer and a drummer says about trusts. It wallows the two whole because it wants a political issue for next year. It takes cognance of any and everything that goes on at a distance, but is unmindful of its party's doing in Delaware. There they are after the trusts for what they can make out of them. A few months ago the party which opposes(?) trusts set their nets for them and already they have realized over $50,000 legalizing trusts to do what our Democratic neighbors call a crime. They do not attempt to explain these two inconsistencies. Cheat the voter seems to be the slogan at present. A glance at what is termed at Dover a shrewd move, reveals the fact that the Democratic mill in that State has ground out of these horrible combines enough to pay the salaries of about every administrative officer in Delaware. Is it not a little singular the Democratic press on this side of the line have not learned how they do it over there? Would the press go on in this reckless manner if they were posted on it? If it is legally and morally wrong to charter trusts then why should the Democratic party in Delaware do it? When these questions are satisfactorially answered there are other things the public would like to know.

THE exportation of manufacturers from the United States has more than doubled in the last six years, has trebled since 1880, quadrupled since 1870, and is more than eight times as large as it was in 1860. In 1898 and 1899 the exportations for the first time in our history exceeded the importation of manufacturers. For the fiscal year ending June 30, they will average more than $1,000,000 a day for each business day of the year, —Baltimore Sun.

THE party that is seeking to make trusts and monopolies a purely partisan question, is as the drowning man catching at straws. Its logic is faulty and has no regard for well established facts. The proposition that those evils spring from a protective tariff, and insisting that the way to exterminate them is to dismiss the party of protection from power, is silly. This country has alway thrived under protection, and is today. Trusts and monopolies have seized upon the good times to fill themselves. The good times are all right, it is the evils that result therefrom that should be pruned. Who would say because the rich soil produces rank growths, impoverish it to get rid of them? This is Democratic logic. The good farmer keeps his soil as rich as possible and cuts off all objectionable matter, just as the Republican party will do in due time. But, says an enemy to prosperity, "the Republican party is impotent to destroy the trusts. It is controlled by those who are interested in trusts, and its campaign funds and sinews are supplied by the trusts." It is unnecessary to name the above as it bristles with a disregard for facts. It is an open secret that trusts contribute money to the campaign committees of both parties, as their officials have declared under oath. It is truthfully said that trusts have no politics, since Democrats and Republicans unite in organizing and operating them. In the East where trusts are strong, as many Democrats as Republicans are into them for what they expect to get out. The pot can't call the kettle black in this case, neither would it attempt it but for the political straits democracy is in at present. The silver and sugar trusts have been doing large work for democracy, and this fact should not be lost sight of. "Those living in glass houses should not throw stones."

SATURDAY morning's fire at Laurel adds another to the list of large fires on this Peninsula. It emphasises the oft repeated need for a water supply in these towns. Ninety per cent. of the buildings are wooden structures, and when once in flames their destruction is an easy thing. Laurel is one of the largest and most important towns in lower Delaware, and is without a water supply, although they are building one, but it came too late to save that people thousands of dollars. Each year the risks in these wooden towns is becoming greater and insurance policies harder to obtain. The time is coming when water works in these town will be a necessity for self protection. Our citizens are living in constant fear of a large fire, although we have'nt recovered yet from the effects of a recent one. On the south side of Main street from Third to the hill, is almost one unbroken line of wooden buildings, in such close proximity that a fire at any point would endanger the whole line. These buildings and their contents are worth several times the cost of water works, still we are living on unmindful of all these things. But, says some of our citizens, the town is not able to put in water works. Granting this to be true our citizens can materially induce and assist outside capital in coming here and do this work for us. When the citizens of Denton make up their mind to have a water supply for the town we will have it and not before.

THE Havemeyer sugar trust has at last exhausted the stock of raw material it bought while the Gorman-Wilson free trade bill was in force, and now it must buy more. A large amount of revenue under the Dingley act goes into the government treasury and saves the taxpayers several thousands of dollars monthly. Under the proposed Democratic plan the revenue which now goes into the government treasuary and lightens the taxpayers' burden materially, is sought by that party to be turned into the sugar trust. From '93 to '96 the public had an experiment from Democratic theory vs. facts. Is that lesson so soon forgotten? We think not. The people may be buncombed once easily, but after the hardships of the near past it will not be such an easy thing to do again just yet. Democracy claims to "hate trusts," but it "loves the loaves and fishes" more.

IT is the general opinion with those who profess to know, that the Republican State convention will be held about September 6th, which is over a month after the Democrats will have held their convention. A number of the leading politicians of the State have been asked for their opinions of Gov. Lowndes renomination and election. They say they have canvassed the State pretty thoroughly and believe he will be renominated, and are as sanguine that he will be reelected. There is no dissension anywhere, and as some of the Democratic papers say, "we are a happy family." "In union there is strength." Maryland Republicans have both of these qualities combined just now.

THE amount of money used in the Queen Anne's county primaries is variously estimated at from $15,000 to $20,000. The boys who take a "little present" for their vote, worked the situation for all it was worth. One fellow sold to both sides, failed to vote and had all his money taken away and divided among the two parties to the transaction, while another sold to one side, voted for the other candidate and was deprived of his spoils. Both Saturday and Tuesday were animated days in Queen Anne's, but his name is "George."—Chestertown Transcript. And next November the voters of that county should rise above party lines and name him "Denis." As this frank admission of a county's wholesale corruption at a primary comes from a dyed-in-the-wool Democratic organ that is always faithful to its party, will be taken without allowance. Reports from various sources are sent out that much dissatisfaction exists in the party and that healers are busy doing missionary work. Thus it has been for years past and will be for years to come if the people don't rise up and call a halt, as they did in this county a few years ago. If the voters of that county put the George ticket in power it practically means the payment of their salaries as well as that $15,000 or $20,000. It will be remembered that the several thousand dollars shortage that was pretended to have been settled a few months ago, exists in reality. The solution of the whole question is an easy one. "What are you going to do about it?"

GEO. H. HOLDEN, of Minneapolis, Minn., has just returned from the Philippines, tells of a talk with Admiral Dewey in Manila, during which the latter expressed expansionist convictions of the strongest type. Dewey said that "the American people could not afford to withdraw, that they were building for the future, and not for the present, and that they owed it to the world to remain." Holden was asked by the admiral to visit a certain member of the Foreign Relations Committee of the Senate and urge him to have a law passed extending citizenship to the 60 Chinese boys who participated in the battle of Manila Bay. "They were good enough to fight for us and they are good enough to be American citizens," said Dewey.

AN exchange says the Democrats want a long campaign for they have a big job on hand to convince the people that Gorman and Smith are suitable persons to be at the head of the State government, and therefore propose to "open up" for business August 2. The Republican party is in better shape than that. It has been making a record all through Gov. Lowndes' administration that speaks in no uncertain sound, and now it has no apolgies to offer and but few explanations to make, as cold facts will do the business.

BRYAN gives the public his ideas if it won't accept them. The latest he thinks goes ahead of the dollar dinners. The Omaha World Herald says it is this: "Coupons will be printed by that paper and scattered broadcast. Silver men who are interested, can use these coupons in sending into an Omaha bank, their contributions or promises to pay monthly. It is expected that similar steps will be taken by all the silver men in the country." No gold of course will be received.

SHALL it be free silver, trusts, militarism or anti-expansion? That is the question the Democrats are puzzuling over. Isn't it singular that no one has suggested the tariff question. Has the "tariff is a tax" lost its attraction as an issue? So will the others before the party can use them.

Laurel, Del., Swept by Flames.

A destructive fire, the most disastrous that has ever occurred in that town, broke out Saturday morning about 1.10 o'clock, in a billiard and pool room near the Laurel House. When the fire was discovered it had gained considerable headway. A brisk wind was blowing and before the building had been consumed fires were seen to break out in several other buildings. There being no fire companies or engines there the town was soon at the mercy of the flames, and practically nothing could be done other than attempt to move goods to a place of safety.

Before 2 o'clock, it was deemed advisible to send for ontside help and engines from Pocomoke City, Salisbury and Wilmington were sent for. From the latter city the engines of the Weccacoe and Phœnix fire companies were sent to the scene. They reached Laurel at 5 o'clock and at 9.15 o'clock had the flames under control. At noon the fire completely extinguished and the firemen were awaiting transportation to their homes.

The total number of buildings consumed is estimated at 78, including the two hotels, the bank building, the postoffice, two drug stores, nearly all the business houses and the homes of the most wealthy residents of the place.

No casualties have been learnded although it is reported that one person employed at the Cannon House was missing.

The total loss will be about $400,000.

The theory that murder had been committed and the pool room fired to conceal identity, is not verified.

FORMER COURT CLERK SUED.

Suit was entered in the Baltimore City Court Monday by Attorneys W. C. Conwell and John E. Wilson, on behalf of the state of Maryland, as against Edwin C. Fields, formerly clerk of the Circuit Court for Caroline County, to recover $525.66—$457.11 and interest—alledged to be due by Fields. There were two suits docketed, as Fields gave two bonds—one with Philip W. Downes (now dead) and George W. Raughley as sureties and the other with William T. Hignutt, Henry R. Lewis, Harriet P. Fields, William H. Deweese and William Stevens as sureties—but, although the names of the sureties are recited, and a copy of the bond filed, the sureties are not joined as defendants with Fields—a departure from costomary method of procedure. Fields was clerk of the court for six years, from November 23, 1891, and gave bond for $14,000. The suit does not charge any wrongdoing, but recites merely that Fields did not well and faithfully perform the duties of his office. There is a bill annexed charging the above sum as being due by him to the State. Fields is now a resident of Baltimore which accounts for the suit being brought there.

Senator Dodson's Case.

The case of Henry Clay Dodson, Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue under Collector B. F. Parlett, and who was State Senator from Talbot county with two years of unexpired time before him when he accepted Federal office, is still a topic of interest in political circles.

A SUN correspondent has information that the matter has been laid before Secretary of the Treasury Gage and that official has replieed that Mr. Dodson is not a Federal officeholder in the meaning of the Maryland Constitution, and that, therefore, he is still a State Senator from Talbot county. It matters not how much the Democrats may count their office, it remains to be seen yet that it will be relinquished until Senator Dodson's term expires.
