Thursday, July. 20 1899.

THE leading Democratic paper of Baltimore, the Sun, attempts to reflect the political situation in this State by saying "the politicians never cease from troubling, and, like the unquiet sea, are never at rest. The platform of both parties will, of course, profess the utmost devotion to public interests and contain the most sweeping pledges of legislative and administrtive and executive reform. But if the recent municipal election in this city teaches any lesson at all it is that the men upon the platforms this fall will be far more important than the platforms. The nominees must be platforms in themselves—men whose characters, standing and records give assurance that we may expect from them an intelligent, courageous and unbiased discharge of duty; men who will be the representatives of the public and not of a party when elected to office. There was little or no difference in the platforms of the opposing parties in Baltimore at the charter election in May. The issue narrowed down before the campaign was half over to just one point; which set of candidates seemed to the community more likely to give the city good government. The public judged the candidates not by their platforms, but by themselves, and voted accordingly. It was the recognition of this state of popular feeling that gave victory to the Democratic candidates; it was the failure to recognize its existence that defeated the Republican nominees." The Sun, dazzled by its imaginary success in the spring election, has set out again along the same line, thinking, perhaps, it can work the same game in the State it worked in Baltimore. It wants the public to forget the past and denounce platforms and take up men without records, as the past haunts its party as a nightmare vision. It knows its party's 30 year record will not down at its bidding, and therefore proposes to use molasses instead of vinegar on the public. "It may be difficult for machine politicians to realize the fact, (that the candidate must be better then his party,) but this same sentiment is dominent and will make itself felt at the State election. And it applies not only to the governorship, but to every office to be filled." The Sun still tries to divert attention from the real issue, as can be seen. It wants bygons to be bygons and the public to follow where it leadeth. This may do for those who allow others to do their thinking, but they are becoming less. To make its words have a semblance of fairness it must make some concessions to the Republican side, of course, and says: "As to the governorship, Democratic leaders themselves do not hesitate to admit that, if Gov. Lowndes is renominated, they must put up a strong and clean candidate if they are to meet the Republicans on equal terms. Gov. Lowndes is conceded even by his political opponents to have made a good record, to have constructed a platform which voters will be more apt to consider than any convention can make for him." The Sun tells the public nothing new when it speaks of the Governor's excellent record, but when it endeavors to excuse its party having a platform on Lowndes' good record, is going a little too far. If it wants to run the Democratic party this fall without a platform, well and good, but don't ask the Republican party to come to so low a level, it won't do it. It is going before the voters of the State just the same as it has been doing the past four years; telling the public what it proposed to do, and when elected go ahead and do it, and even more. The Sun knows its party's State record too well to be advised. Its object is to work along new lines and says by its action, don't judge the party by what it has done, but by what it is going to do.

THE Philadelphia Press says if the anti-Bryanites gain control of the Democratic party the Populists will be forced into independent action and they will be reinforced by a large number of Bryan Democrats. If the Bryanites retain control of the party the anti-Bryanites or gold Democra s will find themselves in the same situation they were in in '96. They will be compelled to swallow their principles and vote for Bryan or remain away from the polls, or vote the Republican ticket or support some forlorn hope. And in any event a Populist bolt from democracy is threatened. Any intelligent person can take the situation as here outlined and estimate the chances democracy has of carrying the country in 1900. Its no wonder the party refuses to bring national issues into State elections this year.

TRUSTS are still being formed, and as yet the Democratic press has been unable to prove that there isn't any good in some of them. There is an industrious hunt nearly everywhere for something that can be made up into a combine, and it is now proposed to utilize things heretofore considered worthless; corn stalks for instance. A new trust is now proposed that will utilize about 250 million tons of corn stalks that are now going to waste in the Western fields. The project is so big that it is estimated that $50,000,000 will be required to handle the business. It is expected that the stalks can be made to yield $6 a ton, the price paid by canners for a ton of tomatoes. We hardly believe farmers in this section would refuse to sell their stalks at this price. A real benefactor is one who can produce something from what now appears to be worthless. The demands of the new trusts may be such that the growing of corn may be stimulated. If corn can be sold for 40 cents a bushel and stalks at $6 a ton, certainly our Democratic friends may be induced to say a kind word about the Corn Stalk Trust, if no other. The field for trusts, says an exchange, is not yet exhausted—wheat chaff, pea hulls, old vines, watermelon rinds, potato bugs, and other things are awaiting the coming of inventors. These would not be "tariff protected trusts," and should find favor among Democrats.

WHEN leading Democrats speak in such commendable terms of Gov. Lowndes' term of office as many of them do, its no wonder the Democratic press of the State is busily engaged hunting another Republican candidate. Of the many kind things said of the Governor, others are adding their views of his excellent worth as the State's leading executive. We here add three more Democratic testimonies. Ex-Sen. Wm. Pinkney White: "Of course Gov. Lowndes is the logical candidate of the Republicans. He is decidedly the best card they can play. His nomination will evoke, if they are wise, the most serious and earnest consideration of the Democrats in the selection of a candidate to win against him."

Ex-Mayor Robt. C. Davidson, of Baltimore: "Gov. Lowndes has made an able governor. There is no gainsaying that. The Democrats ought to realize that they will have a very popular candidate against them, and they ought to put up their best man to win."

Wm. Keyser: "The chances of the demacracy next fall are none too bright, on account of the good administration of Gov. Lowndes and on account of his personal popularity. It is full time for the party to realize that it has a hard fight against it and has got to put up a strong man to win."

THE campaign next fall will be one of the most earnestly contested ever witnessed in the State. The Republican party is aggressive. We must not hesitate nor delay, but court fair manly discussion. Our nominees must be men who will willingly meet the champions at every cross-road and school house in the State to discuss the living issues of the day.—Easton Star-Democrat.

From all quarters of the State is clearly visible the same anxiety for their party's safety. There is to be no sulking in their tents this fall. Argument must now take the place of the party whip, and persuasion to supercede the former mandate, "thou must." The four years' of Republican rule haunts them. "But under the surface of what purports to be a calm, young democracy is gathering strength, and the blizzard and the cyclone may sweep that sea into wild billows," says our contemporary, inferring that young blood can't be depended upon to do as the old blood has done. It has more education than those who went before them, and therefore the Star-Democrat's fear is well grounded.

THE thing that is best known about affairs in the Philippines is that we do not know the truth about them.—Snow Hill Messenger.

This is a flat denial of what that paper has been teaching for months. It has professed to know it all, and now to turn around and say "that we don't know the truth about them," while it is commendable in that or any other paper, it is a statement altogether unexpected from that source. Can it be that the Messenger sees the error of its way and no longer worships at the Gorman shrine?

THE Wilmington Every Evening is endeavoring to impress its readers that it believes President McKinley to be the weakest president since Buchanan. We fail to see that paper's point, unless it is to impress its readers that its editor is the weakest of editors since Buchanan was in the chair. With well informed men McKinley ranks with Washington and Lincoln as able, conscientious presidents. It is evident that the Every Evening has strained a link to make a point.

THE Republican administration of Maryland decreased the debt for the year ending September 30, '98, $466,000. The amount due the State by collectors and other receivers of public money shows a decrease of $206,000. A good showing for Republican administration.

"WE indorse, without reserve, the administration of President McKinley, and congratulate the American people upon the condition of prosperity and happiness resulting from the wisdom and patriotism which he has brought to the discharge of his public duties. We declare our confidence in the policies adopted and the measures taken by the President to restore order and to establish progressive government in Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines, and we pledge him our continued support until these objects are fully attained. We commend the present amendment of civil service rules by the President, and declare our belief that further modifications of existing civil service legislation may be made with advantage to the public service."

The above is an extract from the Kentucky Republican State platform and has no uncertain sounds, yet a number of Democratic papers think it paid the President a back-handed compliment. The Republican party is satisfied with the convention's work, and if it is, surely the Democrats ought to be.

JUST now the Democratic press is endeavoring to score a point at the expense of the tin-plate trust by saying the trust was made rich by the tariff and the destruction of competition in this line. Only a little while ago the same press was saying that American tin-plate was all a sham and it was impossible to foster the industry in the United States. If the public believe one of their statements it must accept both, as they were told in good faith. What is true of the tin-plate statements is the same of nearly all their political timber; it contradicts itself in nearly every instance. Such is generally the case with any party that has no fixed principles to be governed by.

CITY Register Supplee, of Baltimore is a believer in a reduced tax rate, and says in 1900 city loans amounting to $5,175,000 will mature and be refunded, through which operation the city will save $150,000 in interest annually, or about 7½ cents in the levy. A reduction from $2.25 to $1.75 for 1900 is urged by the register. Thus it has gone for the past four years under Republican rule. Do the voters want to return to the old Democratic way of doing things? We think not.

AN exchange wants to know why Friday, the day on which our Savior died upon the cross, be desecrated as hangman's day, and suggests that Gov. Lowndes abolish that custom and order the execution to take place at the expiration of twenty days after sentence, the shortest time by law. We imagine this editor never had a hanging job on his hands by the way he talks, or that he was ever condemned to death.

SEC'Y of Treas. Gage has this to say of the single gold standard. "The Republican party should, in my opinion, make the fight next year upon a bold, straightforward, unequivocal declaration for the single gold standard." Postmaster-Gen. Smith and other members of the President's cabinet are heartily in accord with the single gold standard policy and it will have a strong following next year.

ENGLAND FOR A TARIFF.

Recent indications of the British tendency toward a protective tariff must be as wormwood and gall to our local free traders, who have found the milk of Mr. Havemeyer's anti-tariff cocoanut food for such extensive thought and economic speculation, and who have long been wont to parade Great Britain as an everlasting monument to the free-trade wisdom. It will shock this class inexpressibly to learn that the present British ministry is committed to the protective tariff doctrine, and that it not only sanctions the Indian government's imposition of duties on bounty-paid sugar, but indicates that the time is not far distant when duties will be imposed upon England's home importation. The Cobden Club as was to be expected, has had a violent season of resoluting against the "pernicious policy" just inaugeurated but the time has come when the British government sees the unwisdom of longer following the club's advice and is ready to part company with it. London newspapers are divided on the question, but the Times—most influential of all—supports the government, and many men of much prominence are inclining to the American model.

For years past statisticians have sought to awaken England to the realization of her rapidly deteriorating commercial prowess. They have shown her that both Germany and the United States were out selling her in manufactured iron products in her own market; that cotten spinning business was slipping from her; that America was usurping her place as the leader in the production of tinplate, and so on down the varied lists of her products. The crisis has come, and now the British government proposes to meet it by the Republican plan of levying a duty upon imports, having realized that cheapness is not always as beneficial as the general good of her own people. She has forsaken her long-time Democratic ally, and can now be classed among those in the Republican column. Her change of base is a positive and distinct triumph for those econmic principles applied during a third of a century of Republican domination, under which our country has leaped into first place as an industrial nation.
