SUMMER DOOR HANGINGS.

Three Charming Designs That Can Be Carried Out for Less Than One Dollar Each.

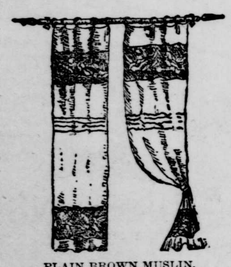

This is the season when doors are taken off and stored in the attic. A free draught of air is what is desired throughout the house. Artistic door hangings can be made of inexpensive materials. There comes this year an old blue linen which is very decorative, and, being smooth, it is easily worked.

If the door curtain is to be used as a screen, select a linen of the desired width and make it a little narrower than the opening in the door. String the top upon a rod and run a rod through the foot of the curtain to keep it in place. It is, of course, easily brushed aside. Thread your needle with coarse embroidery cotton and work circles and crescents upon the linen, letting one cross over the other. Embroider one in red, white and blue if you desire a national curtain, and fill them in with small designs to suit your fancy.

A denim curtain can be worked in scroll design with four-leaf clovers. The curtain when stretched out will look something like this. It should be a third wider than the door.

Plain brown muslin makes a very artistic door hanging. Sew a band of figured creton at the top and bottom, and if you desire to use the doorway frequently you can drape back one of the curtains with a cord. These are extremely simple curtain designs and can be carried out for less than one dollar each.

To Clean White Kid Boots.

When not very dirty, put half an ounce of hartshorn into a saucer. Dip a bit of clean flannel in it and rub it on a piece of white curd soap; rub the boots with this, and take a fresh piece of flannel as each piece becomes soiled. When the boots are really dirty the better way is to stuff them as full as possible with old rags or common cotton wadding, to prevent any creases. Then mix some pipe clay with water to a stiff paste, wash the boots with soap and water with a nail brush, using as little water as possible, to get the dirt off. When they appear tolerably clean, rub the pipe clay well over them with a flannel and hang them up to dry. When dry, beat out the superfluous clay with the hand, and rub them till they look smooth.

How to Press Flowers.

Place them before they have time to wither between sheets of writing paper. Spread the flowers out in as natural a way as possible, with neither leaves nor petals crumpled. Lay on the top of them several sheets of drying paper, then more flowers, putting a stout board over all and heavy weights. The paper must be changed several times each day.

EYELASHES RENEWED.

By Transplanting the Hair, It Is Said, Unattractive Eyes May Be Made Irresistible.

Transplanted eyelashes and eyebrows are the latest things in the way of personal adornment. Only the brave and rich can patronize the new method at present, for besides being painful and costly, it takes a long time to accomplish it.

There is only one person in New York who makes a specialty of the process, but in Paris and London, where the idea originated, there are specialists who make a handsome living out of the process of transplanting hair from the head to the eyebrows or eyelashes. The specialist works by putting in, not on, the new eyelashes and brows wherever they are absent or grown thin, and so cunning is he in his work that not even the closest scrutiny can detect any difference.

By means of the new process, it is said, eyes which are at ordinary times only passable become languishing in their expression, while eyes which were previously considered fine have their beauty much enhanced.

This is the way new eyelashes are put in: An ordinary fine needle is threaded with a long hair, generally taken from the head of the person to be operated upon. The lower border of the eyelid is then thoroughly cleaned, and in order that the process may be as painless as possible, rubbed with a solution of cocaine. The operator then by a few skillful touches runs his needle through the extreme edges of the eyelid between the epidermis and the lower border of the cartilage of the tragus. The needle passes in and out along the edge of the lid, leaving its hair thread in loops of carefully graduated length.

When this has been done another and another length of hair is sewed through the lid until finally there are a dozen or more loops projecting. By this time the effect of the cocaine has been lost and the operator is obliged to desist and put off the further "sewing of hair" for another sitting.

The next step in the process is cutting off and trimming the ends of the loops, and the result is a fine, thick, long set of eyelashes. It is the finishing touch, that is to come, that makes them look like nature's own. When they are first cut they stick out in the most singular fashion, giving the person operated upon the most uncanny look. The operator's next step is to take curling tongs, made of silver and no larger than knitting needles, and to give them the curve which is essential to perfect beauty. Then the eyes are carefully bandaged and kept so until the following day.

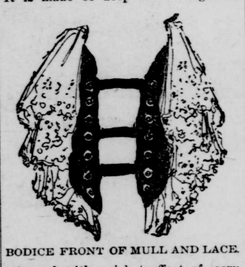

Most of the hairs that have been transplanted take root and grow, but a few of them fall out and have to be attended to. For the first month it is necessary to curl the new eyelashes every day, but after that they become properly assimilated, and it is not necessary to give them any further attention.

Eyebrows are doctored in the same way, but there is not so much pain associated with the process as in transplanting eyelashes.—N. Y. Herald.

A BODICE TRIMMING.

One of the Most Conspicuous Designs Among the Summer Girl's Small Belongings.

An attractive addition to any summer frock is found in this little front. It is made of deep scarlet organdie trimmed with a jabot effect of ecru lace.

The little front fastens invisibly to the waist and renders the plainest bodice dressy. It is connected by bands of the scarlet material and its beauty is considerably heightened by the addition of decorative buttons down each side of the straps.

New Fad in Trimmings.

Mrs. John Jacob Astor has started a new craze in trimmings by ordering a gown festooned with real wheat. It is not only a novel but a really pretty idea and is used to very nice effect on hats—especially of tulle.

How to Cleanse Leather.

To freshen old leather covers of books wipe clean, then rub lightly with the well beaten yolk of an egg applied with a soft sponge, and lastly pass a hot iron over a piece of thin paper laid on the surface of the cover.

FLIES AND THEIR WAYS.

Pests Which Annoy Housewives Found in Greatest Numbers in the Vicinity of Stables.

"House flies," said Dr. L. O. Howard, the famous entomologist of the agricultural department, "come mostly from the stables and the dirt left in the streets by horses. If we could do away with horses we would not have so many flies. A single stable in which a horse is kept will fill an extended neighborhood with flies. People living in agricultural communities will probably never get rid of the pest, but in cities, with better modes of disposing of garbage and with the lessening of the number of horses in stables consequent upon the increased use of electric street railways, bicycles and horseless carriages, the time may come when window screens may be discarded."

"How fast do flies multiply?"

"An ordinary house fly will lay 120 eggs during its existence, and 90 per cent. of them will be hatched out. During the ordinary summer 12 or 13 generations of flies will be produced, so you can make the calculation yourself. Every female fly is the progenitor of millions of flies during a single summer.

"There are four or five kinds of house flies. The most common known to entomologists is the 'musca domestica,' a medium-sized grayish fly with its mouth spread out for sucking up liquid substances. It cannot bite. There is another called the 'stomoxys calcitrans,' which resembles it closely, but differs in having an important appendage that is built to pierce the skin. It is second in abundance. Both of these flies are chiefly bred in manure. In our experience and those of other entomologists it has been discovered that they will seldom lay their eggs in anything else.

"There are several other kinds of flies, but these two are the most common, and to them we owe the nuisance that housewives suffer. The eggs are hatched into larvae within 24 hours after they are laid. They remain in the larval state from five to seven days, and in the pupal state a similar time. The average life of a fly is from ten to fourteen days."

"Does the fly serve any useful purpose."

"Not so far as we have ever discovered," said Dr. Howard, "and it does a great deal more injury than people commonly suppose. We are accustomed to think of flies simply as a nuisance, but they are undoubtedly the carriers of contagion, as was abundantly proved during the war of the rebellion and also in the camps of our army last summer. It is the judgment of the highest authorities that a considerable part of the typhoid fever was due to the flies in the camps."—Chicago Daily Record.

FOLDING PIAZZA COUCH.

A Convenience for Lounging or Sleeping in Open Air During the Warm Weather.

For the summer piazza one of the most convenient pieces of furniture is a folding couch that can be raised up and fastened to the side of the house somewhat similar to a mantel folding bed.

The illustration shows such a couch that is attached to the weather boards of the house at the inner side, by means of large strap hinges, while the outer edge is supported on legs fastened to the under side of the woodwork.

An old hair mattress can be employed as the topping, and it should be laid on the platform and held down by means of denim, which is drawn down all around the edges and tacked securely to the wood.

The tufted effect shown in the illustration is obtained by making holes in the wood and with a long pack needle string is drawn up through the mattress and tied at the top through the edge of a metal or cloth-covered button.

Where the string is tied the mattress is depressed so the bottom is deep seated. A valance of the denim is made and gathered around the front and two ends, as shown.

In rainy weather, or when more plaza space is required, the couch can be raised, valance tucked in and the whole thing fastened to the weather boards by means of a strap. — Louisville Courier-Journal.

Pretty Floral Decorations.

When flowers are costly a pretty dinner table decoration may be had by using smilax, laurel or asparagus vine made into wreaths and tied with white, scarlet or pink satin ribbon. These wreaths may be placed at the four corners of the table, inside the covers, or laid around candelabra placed in the center, at the corners or at each end. Or they may be used at two corners, diagonally, with vases of suitable flowers, daisies or carnations, in two other corners. If violet ribbons are used have the dishes for bonbons filled with crystallized violets and mint leaves. Candles with white shades are prettier with violet and green than those of a color, as the light through a violet or green is not becoming.

To Clean Plaster Busts.

Plaster busts and statuettes may be cleaned by dipping them into thick liquid starch and drying. When the starch is brushed off the dirt comes with it.

Tinsel Fabrics for Summer.

This is a glittering season. Summer dress goods continue to be woven with tinsel threads and very pretty are the effects thus obtained. In the dark diaphanous materials the gleaming suggestive of tinsel is most effective. The newest gauze used, either as a trimming or for entire evening gowns comes traced in swirling design in gold and silver threads, and the latest mousseline de soie is embroidered with glittering threads. To the English is due the praise for the luminous powder which when applied to fabrics gives them the brilliant, scintillating coloring of the opal by day and render them phosphorescent by night.

Hints to Wheelwomen.

Lady cyclists should always be provided with a needle and thread in case the dress comes to grief. A stitch in time saves nine, and sometimes a nasty fall. Matches are another thing that should not be forgotten, and also an addressed luggage label, and sufficient cash in case rain comes on or one wishes to return by rail. If going for a long ride, a small waterproof cape should always be carried.

An Unsuccessful Ruse.

A Philadelphia grocer persuaded a patron to take a barrel of flour different from the kind she usually bought. After two bakings she returned the flour, as it was unsatisfactory. The grocer, after filling the returned barrel, put in a new head and again sent it, saying it was what she wanted. In the barrel she found a lost saucer she had used to scoop up the flour.

It Was Declined.

"We shall have to decline the Geezers' invitation to their card party," wheezed Mrs. Gazzam.

"That's odd," replied Mr. Gazzam. "You enjoy playing so thoroughly."

"But I shouldn't enjoy it to-morrow night, for I'm so hoarse I can't speak above a whisper."—Detroit Free Press.

Rail and Reed Birds.

Local gunners are now taking observation to find out the prospects for the reed and rail bird season. The chances are that there will be more reed and rail bird shooting than there has been for many years on the Peninsula, but the reed bird season will be short.

We Don't Blame Him.

The maddest man in Maryland lives at Federalsburg. He attended a social, and during the evening the ladies inaugurated a hugging bee, the proceeds to go to the Sunday school. Prices were graded according to the person hugged. For instance, for hugging a young experienced girl, the bidder had to give up ten cents, married women brought fifteen cents, and widows a quarter. Well the man was blindfolded and giving up 15 cents, he said he would take a married women. After he had hugged 15 cents worth the bandage was removed from his eyes, and lo and behold, he had been hugging his own wife. Then he kicked and wanted his money back.

Four Men Hanged

Four colored men were hanged in Baltimore at 9:45 o'clock Friday morning. Three of them Cornelius Gardner, 23 years old; Charles James, 21 years old, and John Myers, 19 years old, were put to death under the Maryland law for assault on Annie Baily, a 15-year-old negro girl, on May 8 last. The fourth, Joseph Bryan, 32 years old, paid the penalty for the murder of Mary Pack, a woman, on April 23.

Gardner, James and Myers were captured on the day after their crime was commited. Their trial began on May 15 and they were sentenced to death on June 26. An appeal was made to Governor Lowndes to commute their sentence, but he refused to interfere.

When the drop fell the rope about Gardner's neck slipped and he choked to death.

As early as 7 o'clock crowds of morbidly curious persons thronged the streets leading to the jail. Sheriff Hoffman had been overrun with applicants for passes. His deputies, jail wardens and twenty witnesses, the spiritual advisers of the condemned and representatives of the press were the only persons within the inclosure.

Gardner, the only Catholic in the quartette, was attended by Father Busch the others being accompanied to the gallows by evangelists.

Accompanied by the clergymen, the solemn procession began at the office of Warden Hell. Here final statements of the men were made, and their farewells said. Then the deputies garbed the men in black robes.

Again the procession was formed and the march began out through the jail corridor to the back entrance. Upon arrival at the scaffold the men immediately ascended it, and the deputies preformed the final offices of binding the limbs and pulling down the masks over the face.

This done, deputies and clergymen left the structure, Sheriff's Clerk Heine being the last to descend the steps. When all was pronounced in readiness, Sheriff Hoffman sprung the trap and like a shot the four men dropped to their death. The necks of James, Meyers and Bryan were broken by the fall and they died instantly. Gardner's cap became disaranged in the fall, and his contorted face was visible to the horrified spectators. He was apparently conscious about one moment, after which he slowly strangled.
