and of course knew how to make an equitable distribution, he wished them to execute that direction of the Law - But when he perceived that nothing was likely to be done by them in this business, he desired a Member to inform them that he would take charge of the whole of the Specifics and did. The Council observe that the Intendant has in no instance since the last Session, complied with the direction of the Act of Assembly in consulting them on the State and Management of the Revenue &c. admitting this to have been the Case, and admitting that the Law required that before he bargained for any Specific Article that he should Consult them, yet as there was no material alteration in the prices of Specifics from what they were before, and during the sitting of the Assembly it became unnecessary - But the Intendant must refresh the Memory of the Council in the Instance of a Sale of upwards of Forty thousand pounds of Tobacco to Mr. Wilkins upon which he had their approbation before the Bargain was Concluded, and this was some time after the rising of the Assembly. And that in the Sales
