Annapolis April 20th 1782.

Mr. Beale Randall has complained without Cause, and the Information he has lodged with you is unjust — I wrote Capt. Hamilton some days ago, who he had brought suit against, to direct him to call here and that his Apprentice should be delivered up, upon his returning his Cloathing and Bounty — Upon his Application for the Apprentice, he agreed to do both, and urging his Apprehensions of Symonds's going off again, proposed exchanging him for John Kildaire, a Canquid Soldier, and to refund Symonds's Bounty and Cloathing; this I agreed to, and, at his request, in Consequence thereof, wrote Colo. Howard the inclosed Letter, I then told him if Kildaire should be pronounced by Doctor Worcenthall, in a fair way of becoming unfit for active Duty, he should have Symmonds, upon restoring his bounty and Cloathing, which he agreed to, and said he would call upon me for Colo. Howards Letter in about an Hour; after he had done some Business in the Auditors Office;
