"IAMOND STATE TELEPHONE,
nton Exchange Number 20.

Denton, Maryland.

THURSDAY MORNING, MAR. 24, 1904.

EMPEROR WILLIAM, of Germany, has conferred the decoration of the Order of the Crown upon General Passenger Agent George W. Boyd, of the Pennsylvania Railroad, in recognition of his services to Prince Henry of Prussia, during his visit to this country

THE actual loss to the insurance c mpanies by the great fire in Baltimore is said to have been $28,144,899. The estimate is that 25 per cent., of the loss is borne by New York State companies, 39 per cent. by companies in other States and 34 per cent, by foreign countries.

FREEMAN RASIN announces that he is permanently out of politics, and that he has fought his last fight, and that he never again will take an active part in a primary or general campaign. For forty years he has been the leading spirit of Maryland Dem cracy. "What I Know About State and County Politics" would meet with a large sale, but it is hardly probable that the retiring boss will put into print anything of the sort.

WHEN Rev. Joseph F. Smith president of the Mormon Church, returned home after his visit to Washington as a witness in the Smoot investigation case, he was welcomed by five wives and thirty-two children who lined up at the railroad station, Salt Lake City. The family gathering lasted three hours, including the numerous calls he made at his different houses. In all this turmoil and excitement, following a severe cross examination at Washington, Rev. Mr. Smith was unruffled and serene.

THAT $5,000 SURPRISE.

There has been talk of building a new jail, and of having the necessary legislation passed; there has been talk of changing the road working system, and people from all parts of the county are informed in regard to it and interested in it; but lo and behold, we are to have a new $5,000 almshouse, and a bill authorizing the Trustees of the Poor to borrow the money passed both branches of the Legislature before a dozen citizens of the county knew anything about it. It appears the Trustees of the Poor and the County Commissioners just took it upon themselves to surprise the people with a little $5,000 debt, and they kept it quiet until the matter was fixed. It has been suggested that the County could put up the necessary buildings for less money by using the timber from the farm, but now comes another little surprise for the dear people—the timber was sold several weeks ago. The Trustees of the Poor sell the timber and then decide to build a house, and having neither timber or money, they decide, with the permission of the County Commissioners, to borrow $5,000 and tax the people to pay it. This is Democratic financiering.

Perhaps the Trustees of the Poor have the authority to do all these things, but why this secrecy? If the proceedings are legitimate and practical, there should be nothing to conceal, but we have not heard for years, an action more roundly censured on all sides.

First, it is claimed a suitable building can be put up for less than $5,000. Second, that if the County Commissioners desired to have the building put up a considerable of the money could have been raised by putting a part of the 560 acres and the timber, upon the market to be sold to the highest bidder. Third there is a growing sentiment in favor of disposing of the farm and and purchasing 30 or 40 acres near town, and erecting new buildings letting the County get out of the farming business. If this is to be done this is not the time to put $5,000 into a new building there.

Next to the public roads, the Almshouse is the largest elephant the county has on its hands. The total receipts in cash from the products of the farm last year, according to the auditors report just issued, was $393.71, while $2,508 72 was required to run the institution. At a low estimate a 560 acre farm should be worth $10,000. The interest on that amount for one year at 6 per cent. is $600; taxes lost to the county $95 per year, and the amount expended last year in maintaining the institution, $2 508, making a total of $3,203. The expense of boarding 14 people at the Brick Hotel for 52 weeks at $1 50 per week would be $3,276. Why not sell the farm and have the inmates boarded. As shown by the above figures it would only require about $75 in addition to what was spent last year for hotel accommodations. The Sheriff is allowed 50 cents per day for the board of prisoners confined in the jail who require more waiting on than the inmates of the almshouse, why need it cost more to raise the produce to feed the county's poor?

THE PEOPLE WANT TO KNOW.

How many trustees does it take to run the almshouse—one or five?

Has one of the trustees purchased the timber growing on the almshouse farm and is it to be converted into lumber for the new $5,000 structure to be erected on the farm under the recent legislative enactment?

Has the Democratic party so lost faith in the ability and wisdom of its board of County Commissioners to handle finances as to make it necessary that the control of the $5,000 appropriated for a new almshouse must be placed in the hands of the trustees?

When did the creature (the Board of Trustees) rise above their creator (the County Commissioners)?

If the County Commissioners represent the people, who do the Trustees of the Poor represent?

Had the people no right to know of the proposition to borrow $5,000 on their credit?

If any Caroline business man had 560 acres of land, free from taxation and with considerable free labor, which brought him in $393.71 a year, at an operating expense of $2,508.72, what would he do with it?

Why not turn the almshouse farm into cash and build a modern structure where the people can keep an eye on it?

PERFECT CONFIDENCE.

Where there used to be a feeling of uneasiness and worry in the household when a child showed symptoms of the croup, there is now perfect confidence. This is owing to the uniform success of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the treatment of that disease. Mrs. M. I. Basford, of Poolesville, Md, in speaking of her experience in the use of the remedy says: "I have a world of confidence in Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for I have used it with perfect success. My child Garland is subject to severe attacks of croup and it always gives him prompt relief." For sale by R. J. Colston, Denton; Davis, Ridgely.

Where Are We Drifting?

Mr. Editor:

The above is decidedly an important question, but the more important is "Where are we sending our children," and "To what are we subjecting their mental, moral and physical health?" You, mother, who read this article, did you ever take the time to consider to what you are subjecting your dear little ones when you send them out to school, to school under the present rigorous system, a system diabolical in the extreme?

An intelligent physician will tell you that to have good health (physical) one must have a free and abundant circulation of blood. Now, the child is taken into the school room at ten minutes to nine o'clock in the morning, sits down at a desk and remains there, mind hard at work, the body getting no exercise whatever, until half-past ten, one hour and forty minutes, when he is allowed TEN MINUTES to get outside of the building in order to straighten out his cramped limbs and get a breath of fresh air, he then returns to the school room, remains until TWENTY-FIVE MINUTES AFTER TWELVE, sometimes one will be kept in until nearly time for school to call at ten minutes to one when, if he does not live near, he must run and snatch a few mouthfuls and rush back with fear in his heart that he will be late and be kept in after school. When he enters the school room at ten minutes to one he takes his seat and remains until half past two, when he is given another ten minutes to go out, turn around a few times and return to the close school room where he remains until four o'clock, if he does not have to stay until five, which quite often occurs with many of the pupils. After supper he must study great long lessons for the next day, working until ten or eleven o'clock, and often until two and three o'clock in the morning. Will any sane person say that such a condition is conducive to sound mental or physical health? On the contrary an intelligent person will tell you decidedly, no.

That more than eighty thousand Philadelphia children have had their nerves impaired and their eyesight rendered defective by the rigor of the system of public school instruction, is a statement made by Henry R. Edmunds, president of the Board of Education, at a meeting of the Parents' Association of the School of Observation and Practice in the Girls' Normal School, Philadelphia, on Tuesday of last week. He said further, "Of the one hundred and sixty-two children attending the public schools of Philadelphia, probably half that number are afflicted with nervous troubles and defective eyesight due to excessive home study and the crowding of so many branches into the elementary grades."

Not only is the scholar kept in the close school room of uneven temperature all day without sufficient rest for the brain or proper exercise by the body, but must take home the studies for the next day, and are forced by an unthinking parent to hard study from two to five hours, getting no brain rest, no body exercise to create a free and abundant circulation of blood, no diversion of any kind whatever, and when they retire to their couch they toss about seeking sleep, and when it does come to them they may be heard during the night working out examples in arithmetic, reciting Latin, reading history, spelling, working out problems in algebra and quite often leaving their couches in their sleep seeking some one to assist them with their lessons, as they would be kept in if they did not know their lesson. I have heard little children get up in the small hours of the night crying because they did not know their lessons because the lesson was so long they could not remember it all and that they would be kept in. I have personal knowledge that all of the above is absolutely true.

I am personally acquainted with several scholars attending the Caroline High School who are farmers' children and live quite a distance from Denton, who have to study from eight in the evening to two and three o'clock in the morning, rise at five and assist their parents in the house work, and after breakfast go over their lessons again to IMPRESS them upon the mind. What is the inevitable result of this diabolical system of rigorous study without sufficient rest for the mind or sufficient proper exercise of the body to produce a free and abundant circulation of blood? I will tell you, and can produce facts to prove my assertion. The result of all this is to make of our children, murderers, thieves and sharpers, lunatics and suicides.

W. H. SMITH.

MORE RIOTS.

Disturbances of strikers are not nearly so grave as an individual disorder of the system. Overwork, loss of sleep, nervous tension will be followed by utter collapse, unless a reliable remedy is immediately employed. There's nothing so efficient to cure disorders of the Liver and Kidneys as Electric Bitters. It's a wonderful tonic, and effective nervine and the greatest all around medicine for run down systems. It dispels Nervousness, Rheumatism and Neuralgia and expells Malaria germs. Only 50c and satisfaction guaranteed by R. J. Colston, Druggist.

Rural Carriers' Sidelines.

Postmaster General Payne is after the rural delivery carriers. Hundreds of complaints are pouring into the Department protesting against rural free delivery carriers being permitted to act as agents for every known article and commodity. They sell provisions, dry goods, furniture, horseshoes, farming implements, fertilizer, chocolate caramels and tar roofing; take subscriptions for newspapers, magazines and turf investment bureaus; insure lives and houses; erect lightning rods and put down driven wells. One storekeeper in Iowa, where the rural routes are so thick that a map of them makes the State look like a huge spider's web, wrote to inform the Postmaster General that the rural carrier in his neighborhood had made him close up because he could not compete with "a general store on wheels and moving in three sections.

According to his letter the carrier in question went out on his route, followed by three wagons, containing everything that would likely be needed in a farm house on short notice. "Sometimes he even forgets to take the mail along, he's so busy," the storekeeper complained, "and I am thinking of moving into another county and getting a route myself so as to make a living."

Postmaster General Payne would like to see legislation at the present session of Congress increasing the pay of rural carriers from $600 to $750 a year, and prohibiting them from acting as express agents or doing anything else not in line with the duties now prescribed for regular city mail carriers. At present it looks very much as if Congress would not pay much attention to the Postmaster General's desires, and that the rural carriers would be permitted to sell everything from beef on the hoof to rye in the bottle.—Ex.

Lettuce Prevents Small Pox.

Don't forget that lettuce is a preventive of small pox.

So far as it is possible for a human being to be protected from catching small pox, lettuce is a protection.

No need for vaccination whatever. Any person who eats a small quantity of lettuce twice a day, morning and evening, is as well protected against small pox as it is possible for any one to be.

To be sure, one ought to be clean, ought to live in ventilated rooms, and avoid dirt of all sorts. Also avoid contact with people who have small pox. Foolish exposure to the contagion of small pox is not to be thought of. But there is no need for vaccination.

Go calmly on about your business. Provide a small quantity of lettuce morning and evening, and you can feel sure that you have protected yourself and your family in the best possible way against small pox.

Lettuce is one of the oldest vegetable remedies known to the medical profession. Long before it was used as food it was used as medicine. It has been claimed that it has magical or miraculous powers to prevent contagious disease. We believe this is carrying matters altogether too far. But lettuce does furnish to the system exactly what is needed to protect it against the poison of small pox.

We defy any one to produce a case of small pox that has been contracted by any person who made daily use of lettuce as a food. If there is any such case on record we would be glad to hear of it.—From Medical Talk for March.

A Cube Puzzle.

Take a small block of wood which is a perfect cube, say one whose sides are an inch square. Give it to a carpenter and ask him to make you one exactly twice as large. The chances are that he will cheerfully accept as quite easy a task which thousands of years of experiments have failed to perform. He would probably start by making a cube with sides two inches long. He would be equally likely to think you had gone out of your mind when you told him he had made a block eight times the size of the other, and yet it would be the truth. The task in question is classified with the other impossible ones of squaring a circle and trisecting an angle.—Ex
