The passengers enroute for Rehoboth on a Queen Anne's Boat from Baltimore a few days ago were highly entertained by the actions of a young man and young woman, who made love in the most approved fashion and in reckless disregard of the presence of their fellow-travelers. They were spotted by most everyone on the boat but seemed to be perfectly unconcious that they were attracting any attention. One of the stopping places enroute is known as Love's Point. After a particularly affectionate 10 minutes the young man turned to an officer of the boat with the question, "Aren't we nearing Love's Point?" The officer replied with a broad smile, "I don't think there is any doubt about it, sir." The only persons on deck who failed to see the joke were the young man and his best girl. They probably haven't seen it yet.

Pink Lightning in Baltimore.

Lightning of a different brand from any ever seen before in these parts accompanied a recent thunderstorm, and those who saw the blinding flashes could hardly believe the testimony of their own eyes, for the color of three gleaming streaks of fire that shot downward from the dark cloud above the city was pink—an unmistakable, uncompromising shade of pink.

Reputable gentlemen of unmistaken veracity, imbibers of nothing more stimulating than lemonade, saw the triple flashes and hastened to call attention to phenomenon. With the flaming meteor of Sunday night and the pink lightning of yesterday there is much speculation among Baltimoreans as to what further and weird sights are in store for the citizens of this community.

National Magazine for July.

The National Magazine for July opens with a remarkable group picture of eleven distinguished western university presidents. Homer Davenport, greatest of American cartoonists, contributes his very best picture—a labor of love—a noble and beautiful portrait of his father, holding in his arms Gloria, the tiny daughter of the famous artist. Joe Mitchel Chapple, chatting about affairs at Washington and at the World's Fair, tells how Davenport has won success on the lecture platform.

A curious interest attaches to the group of schoolboy essays written by John D. Rockefeller, Celestia Spelman (Mrs. Rockefeller) and Mark Hanna, fifty years ago, when they, with ex-Senator Wolcott of Colorada and Jones of Arkansas, were fellow students in Cleveland, Ohio. Mr. Rockefeller wrote on "The Caracter of St. Patrick," on "Freedom," on "Education" and on "The Recollections of the Past," while Hanna's themes were equally prophetic of his later career. Facsimiles of essays in the handwriting of Mr. and Mrs. Rockefeller are shown.

The fiction of the number includes "The Prince and the Girl," a sparkling story of modern city life; "How Gib Turner Got His Fourth," a rattling "boy" story; 'Tanikalang Guito" a dramatic Philippine episode with a moral; "June's Wedding," last of the delightful June Winston stories, and "Tough Jake Bills," a vivid sketch of a boy soldier's return.

CURED OF CHRONIC DIARRHOEA.

"I wish to say a few wordsin praise of Chamderlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Mrs. Mattie Burge, of Martinsville, Va. I suffered from chronic diarrhoea for ten years and during that time tried various medicines without obtaining any permanent relief. Last summer one of my children was taken with cholera morbus, and I procured a bottle of this remedy. Only two doses were required to give her entire relief. I then decided to try the medicine myself, and did not use all of one bottle before I was well and I have never since been troubled with that complaint. One cannot say too much in favor of that wonderful medicine." This remedy is for sale by R J Colston, Denton, Davis, Druggist, Ridgely.

...nlet upon ... to be issued about ... the Maryland Geological Survey to meet the requests for information which come from various sections of the state, will show clearly to the County Commissioners and individuals interested, how to proceed under the law to early obtain the advantages of the act.

As stated in previous publication, $200,000 of state funds will be available under this act to assist the counties to build good roads by paying one-half of the cost, each county receiving such proportion of this money as the public road mileage of the county bears to the total road mileage.

A feature of the law which has been much misunderstood and which will be explained with unusual pains in the pamphlet is the section regarding the payment of 10 per cent of cost by the property-holders. Many of the latter have been frightened by thinking that the two-thirds of the the property holders of any section of the road can compel the remaining one-third property holders to help pay the 10 per cent levy, but such is not the case. In no instance does anyone who does not wish the road, have to pay any part of the cost.

The County Commissioners of a county petition the State Commission for aid to build a certain piece of road. If it is found upon examination by the Commission that the road in question is one of general public convenience and a proper one to construct, an estimate of the cost of improvement is made, together with plans, specifications, etc. for doing the work. This is undertaken by the County Commissioners either by contract, or, if the prices for doing it in this manner are considered too high, then in other ways that they may deem best.

In the event that the County Commissioners fail to petition for state aid under this law it is provided that the owners of two-thirds of the land binding upon any public road or section of road, not less than a mile long, can compel the County Commissioners to petition for the construction of the piece of road provided that the owners petitioning have paid or have pledged 10 per cent of the work. Those who have paid or have pledged 10 per cent of the cost cannot, however, compel any other property-holders along the road to bear any of the cost. The work then proceeds as already described except that the County Commissioners cannot be compelled by this payment of 10 per cent by propeaty-holders to contract for work to an amount greater than one-fourth of the road levy of the county.

Any expense due to the payment for land that may be necessary to secure a proper location for the road or any damages that may arise through the construction of the road will not be paid by the state.

After the work is done according to the specifications and the State Commission has so certified to the Comptroller, then one-half of the cost of constructing the road will be paid by the state to the county building the road; but in no case is the amount paid by the state to exceep one half of the cost as shown by the estimate of the cost of the work as at first made by the Commission.

To Build City ...

William A. Moore and ... Henderson, officers and pro... of the American Protective Lea..., an organization having for its object the general betterment of the colored race, were acquitted of the embezzlement of funds of the corporation and conspiracy to swindle subscribers to the stock.

The witnesses in the case, all colored persons, stated that the corporation was to build a town in the state of New York, with railroads, trolley lines department stores etc., and guarantee 6 per cent dividends on investments. The corporation was capitalized at $122,000 but the evidence was that only $2400 had been paid into the treasury. When it was learned that the expenses amounted to $2600 the stockholders dsmanded their money back, and when it was not forthcoming they had Moore and Henderson arrested. There was nothing to show that any of the corporations money had been applied to any other than legitimate purposes.
