The train had left and he was told that he could not leave until the afternoon. The railroad men noticed that his face had a strange eruption on it, but thought it was merely some skin affection.

Later in the morning he arrived at the Maryland, Delaware and Virginia station and purchased a ticket to Queenstown. Reaching Queenstown he bought a ticket for Baltimore and boarded the main line train for Love Point.

Upon reaching Love Point, several of the passengers, noticing his strange appearance, objected to his being allowed to go on the boat, and Dr. W. T. Henry, of Stevensville, was summoned to made an investigation. Profits in Farming.

That a small farm in lower Delaware is a profitable investment, if given proper attention, has just been attested by Charles M. Hammond, a well known agricturist.

He surveyed a plot containing six and thre quarter acres for his experiment. Three acres he planted in peas, the balance in hay. From the peas he realized $99.07, the hay crop has not been sold yet. He then planted the entire plot in tomatoes and sold the crop for $709.84. This together with the money realized from his pea crop made a total of $808.91, which he realized from the six and three quarter acres, in addition to the hay crop of several tons. Land in lower Delaware is profitable when well limed.

Mayor Martin M. Higgins has addressed an open letter to the ladies of Easton asking their co-operation in securing sprinkling wagons for the coming summer. At the National Corn Show held at Columbia, S. C., last week, Mr. Josiah Massey, of Rich Neck, Queen Annes county, won the second prize in the sweep stakes of the United States for white corn. He won a prize for this Eastern zone which includes states from Maine to Georgia. This is a great honor for Maryland. Mr. Massey grows Boone county white corn and not only has the quality but raised sixty and seventy bushels per acre.

Queen Annes bids fair to have another agricultural industry which should prove popular with farmers in all sections of the county. Mr. A. Howard Johnson, of Centreville advertises for 200 acres of potatoes, and agrees to procure for the growers the best New York market prices. There is no reason why potatoes could not be contracted for just the same as tomatoes, and those who have experimented with this crop have found it very satisfactory. A Kent county farmer realized $3,000 from 30 acres of potatoes last year, and he expects to plant even a larger acreage this season. Mr. Johnson requests that farmers interested in this proposition see him at once so that he many go over the matter with them and explain in detail the plan he intends to carry out.—Centreville Observer.

MOTHERS.

Away back, when you were a little bit of a girl she kissed you when no one else was tempted by your fever tainted breath and swollen face. You were not so attractive as you are now. And through those years of childish sunshine and shadows, she was always ready to cure by the magic of mothers kiss, your little, dirty, chubby hands whenever they were injured in the first skirmishes with the rough old world. And then the midnight kiss with which she routed so many bad dreams as she leaned above your restless pillow, have all been on interest these long, long years.

Of course she is not so pretty and kissable as you are; but if you had done your share of the work during the last ten years, the contrast would not be so marked. Her face has more wrinkles than yours, and yet if you were sick that face would appear far more beautiful than an angel's as it hovered over you watching every opportunity to minister to your comfort, and every one of these wrinkles seem to be bright wavlets of sunshine chasing each other over the dear face.

She will leave you one of these days. These burdens, if not lifted from her shoulders, will break her down. Those rough, hard hands that have so many necessary things for you, will be crossed upon her lifeless breast.

Those neglected lips that gave you your first baby kiss will be forever closed and those sad, tired eyes will have opened on eternity, and then you will appreciate your mother; but it will be too late.—Catonsville Argus.
