FELT HIS FAILING MEMORY

Keen Sorrow That Clouded the Closing Years of America's Great Poet, Emerson.

I had as a fellow-guest a man who had long been intimate with Emerson and whom the poet was very glad to see. Talking after tea in the library, Emerson said:

"I want to tell you about a friend in Germany, his name I cannot remember," and he moved to and fro uneasily, in his effort to recall it. "This friend with whom we have taken tea tonight, whose name also I cannot remember," here again came a distressed look at the failure of his faculty, "I cannot remember his name either, but he can tell you of this German friend, whose name I have also forgotten."

It was a sorrow to see the breaking down of a great spirit and his agitation as he was conscious of his waning power. And yet, so far as I could see, it was only the memory that was going; the intellectual strength was still apparent and the amiability of his spirit was perhaps even more manifest than in the years when he was in the full possession of himself.

This came out in little things; he was overanxious at the table lest the hospitality should come short, troubled about the supply of butter and apple sauce, and soon after I saw him on his knees on the hearth taking care that the fire should catch the wood to abate the evening coolness that was gathering in the room. —From "The Last Leaf," by J. K. Hosmer.

TAUGHT FLEDGLINGS TO SING

Methods of Mother Wren Were Thorough and Productive of Most Satisfactory Results.

The real musicians are the birds, and it is interesting to know that the young fledglings, in some cases at least, have regular singing lessons from the mother. A wren whose nest was in a box near a country house was watched by the family as she patiently instructed her little ones. Placing herself on one side of the opening, and in front of her pupils she first sang her entire song very distinctly. One little flutterer opened its mouth and tried to follow her; but after a few notes its voice gave out and it lost the tune. Mamma Wren immediately took up the melody at that point, and sang it through as clearly as possible, when the youngster tried it again and finished triumphantly.

Then the mother sang again, and another nestling followed her, breaking down as the first had done, and beginning afresh. Sometimes there were three or four failures before the tune was carried through; but the wren always began where the little one broke down and sang to the end. These singing lessons lasted for some time, and several of them were given every day.

ANOTHER MOUTH TO FEED.

Father—And did he give you any encouragement, dear?

Daughter—Yes, father; he asked me if you and mother were pleasant to live with.—Yonkers Statesman.

DRAWING IT FINE.

"Pa, what is meant by a 'nice distinction?'"

"Telling the difference, my son, between spring fever and sheer laziness."

REASON.

"Why do you call the mine you discovered the Perhaps mine."

"Because perhaps it will pay and perhaps it won't."

VALUABLE ASSET.

Tommy—Pop, what is flattery?

Tommy's Pop—Flattery, my son, is an ability to pay compliments instead of bills.—Philadelphia Record.

THE COUNTERFEIT.

"What's that? This piece counterfeit? Go! It is dated 1833. If it were counterfeit it would have been noticed long ago!"—Le Rire.

PENALTY.

He—Dearest, you're the goal of my affections.

She (removing his arm)—Five yards for holding.

MARSHY GROUND.

"Dillberry tells me he is dabbling in suburban lots."

"'Dabbling' is correct. Most of them are under water."

AS EMPEROR HAD PREDICTED

Course of History Bore Out Presentiment Which Had Afflicted the Great Napoleon.

Napoleon the Great was exceedingly superstitious. The following is told as one of the illustrations of this: When Napoleon, in the spring of 1799, was lying before Acre, he was anxious for news from upper Egypt, whither he had despatched Dessaix in pursuit of a distinguished Mameluke leader. Not many days after a courier arrived with dispatches, favorable in the main, but reporting one tragical occurrence on a small scale that to Napoleon outweighed the public prosperity. The commander, as a brave man, felt that any fate that awaited him would be better than to fall into the hands of the enemy. He set fire to the powder magazine. The vessel blew up and the crew perished. For all this Napoleon cared little; but one solitary fact there was in the report which struck him with secret alarm; this ill-fated boat was called L'Italie, and in the name of the vessel Napoleon read an augury of the fate which had befallen the Italian territory. He felt certain that Italy was lost and Napoleon was inconsolable. But what possible connection, it was asked, can exist between this vessel on the Nile and a remote peninsula of southern Europe? "No matter," replied Napoleon, "my presentiments never deceive me. You will see that all is ruined. I am satisfied that my Italy, my conquest, is lost to France." So, indeed, it was.

RIDDING CHEESE OF MITES

High-Frequency Currents of Electricity Are Employed for the Purpose by French Scientist.

Not satisfied with ripening peaches by electricity, a French scientist has hit upon the plan of ridding cheese of mites by the application of powerful high-frequency currents.

He has invented a brush with fine silver bristles. The brush is connected with a powerful high-frequency apparatus and then is passed slowly over the surface of the cheese. The surface is bathed in heatless sparks and the organisms are instantly electrocuted. This scientific expert also has had remarkable success in ripening cheese by electricity.

American ingenuity, however, has overshadowed this Frenchman. We are told the most successful raisers of broilers for the city markets have discovered that electricity is an indispensable aid in promoting the growth of chickens. Since the chicken does its feeding exclusively in the daytime, electric lights in the brooders play a trick upon the unsuspecting fowl and makes him a glutton. He eats all the food he requires in eight hours and utilizes another eight hours to digest it. Thus the chicks live three electric days in two ordinary days and consequently reaches the markets weeks ahead of their country cousins.

GOOD RETORT.

An army officer, noted for his bluntness of speech, rudely remarked in the presence of a clergyman. "If I had a son who was an idiot I would make him a parson."

"Evidently your father held a different view, sir," responded the clergyman quietly.

STARTING EARLY.

"It was a notable wedding."

"Did the mother of the bride weep?"

"No. She was too busy glaring at the mother of the bridegroom."

APPROPRIATE.

"How can you introduce any dancing numbers in what is a racing drama?"

"Couldn't you have a pony ballet?"

COLOR DISTINCTIONS.

"When is a woman a blue-stocking?"

"Strange to say, when she is well read."

ON THE TROLLEY.

"They say there is always room at the top."

"Not always. Sometimes you can't even get a strap."

PARADOX.

"The man who lendeth money—"

"Yes."

"Borroweth trouble."

BALKAN PERFUMERY.

One of the incidental consequences of the conflict in the Balkans is the rise in the price of perfumery. Of attar of roses Bulgaria is said to have practically the monopoly. Various attempts have been made to create a rival product both in the chemical laboratory and in other soil than that of central Europe; but Australia is the only country that offers any promise, while the material which the Bulgarians extract from the roses remains superior to all others. Balkan mountain roses grow in great abundance, and when cultivated yield marvelous amounts of the extract.

IN LONDON.

London Mother (to crying son, in park)—So you tried to take her hoop away, and she boxed your ears? Well, it served you right.

Bobby—Oh, mummy, mummy, you see I didn't know she was a suffragette.—Punch.

VINDICTIVE.

"Going to make a garden this spring?"

"No; I'm going to disappoint a lot of insects that have infested my yard for years, and I won't care a bit if some of them starve to death."

NOT SO BAD.

"Did the play have a happy ending?"

"Comparatively so. All money was refunded after the second act."

ON THE CONTRARY.

"Jubbs sold his daughter when she was married."

"No, you're mistaken there; I saw him give her away."

DANGEROUS PHILANTHROPY.

"That pretty little missionary looks to me sweet enough to eat."

"Then she had better not try to convert any of the cannibal tribes."

HIS CHANCE.

"I notice the private detective you spoke of is using an automobile."

"Oh, then he is sure to run his man down."

ENERGY MINUS.

"He's a regular human dynamo."

"Yes? How so?"

"Everything he buys is charged."—Newburgh News.
