On the older sections, which were oiled last year, the average spread is one-third of a gallon per square yard. On the new sections the average is one-half gallon.

Children's Day services were held in both the M. E. and M. P. Churches on Sunday evening. The larger children, who were in the midst of school work, were not called upon to take an active part in the program at the M. E. The Chautauqua.

The Denton Chautauqua opened on schedule time Monday last with an audience of nearly six hundred at the afternoon session. The Florentine Band gave an excellent program both afternoon and evening. Dr. Turner's lectures are proving especially interesting, and on Tuesday night Rev. Frank Dixon, of Washington, held the large audience with the exception of less than a dozen persons for a full hour and a-half. The moving pictures are especially interesting as well as educational, and are particularly enjoyed by the children. The more the people see of the Chautauqua the better they like it. A large crowd is expected for the lecture of Ex Governor Glenn on Friday evening. The Commonwealth Quartet, which made a special hit here last winter will also be here on Friday.

Automobile Accident.

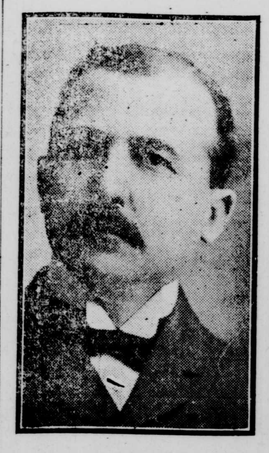

Quite a serious accident occurred on Main Street shortly after noon on Tuesday, when Mr. Samuel Diggins, of Queen Anne, ran his automobile into the carriage of Mr. B. F. Rickards in front of the bank. Mr. Rickards had gone into the bank leaving his wife in the carriage which was driven up along the curb. The automobile came up the hill and on toward the hotel, but close to the bank side of the street when it struck the carriage knocking it against a telephone pole and cutting every wheel from under the body. One of the front wheels was forced into the carriage breaking Mrs. Rickards' arm and seriously bruising her about the body. Mr. Diggins claims his machine became uncontrollable. The carriage was completely wrecked with the exception of the body and top.

A Big Reunion.

On July 1, 2 and 3 the battlefield of Getteysburg will witness one of the most interesting reunions of veterans of the Civil War since the close of that memorable conflict. Peculiarly interesting for the reason that the old soldiers of both the North and South to the extent of some 40,000 will meet there to celebrate together the half-century anniversary of those memorable days of 1863. A descriptive story of the arrangements made for the entertainment of the veterans, entitled "Civil War Veterans to Meet on Gettysburg Battlefield," is printed on another page of this issue. Every reader will find it of interest.

As Chautauqua lecturer and organizer, Dr. Turner has been a great success. The series of lectures he will deliver each day at our Chautauqua will be, The Scope of Sociology, The Problem of the City and the Country, Sociology and Social Customs, The Family and the Social Unit, Sociology and Education, The Conventional Conscience. New Railroad in Maryland.

Conference was held recently at Cambridge, by Governor Goldsborough of Maryland and other officials of the State with officers of the Pennsylvania railroad to discuss first teps for the extension of the Seaford-Cambridge branch of the Delaware railroad from Cambridge, Md., to Fishing Bay, a distance of 35 miles. The Governor has high hopes that the proposed railroad enterprise will appeal to the residents of the county through which the road will pass. Since his inauguration the governor has seized every opportunity presented to build up his county. To him was made the offer of $350,000 by a rich New Yorker with which to erect a maternity hospital as an addition to the Cambridge Hospital. When the selection of a site for the Eastern Shore Hospital for the Insane came before the commission in charge of the proposition, he urged a site in Dorchester, near Cambridge, so forcibly that it was accepted. The proposed railroad, which the governor will enthusiastically advocate, will bisect Dorchester county, penetrating a section rich in agricultural resources, thickly populated, and without transportation facilities. Fishing Bay, the proposed terminus, is a tributary of the Chesapeake Bay and is near the confluence of the Choptank and Nanticoke Rivers. The road, if built, will forestall an electric line which has been projected from Salisbury to Nanticoke, Wicomico county, which is in sight of the shores of Fishing Bay.

Rowan Drug Co., is an Old Reliable House, write to day for the free medicine. Cure the affiicted members of your family, then tell your neighbors and friends about this remedy.

Natural Gas In Delaware.

Delaware, if the claims made by Jacob Mroczka, a farmer in White Clay Creek hundred, are well founded, may be able to use natural gas for fuel purposes. Mroczka, who recently purchased a farm three miles from Newark, was digging a well last week when, after he had driven an iron rod into the ground, he detected the smell of gas. He threw a match over the hole and caused an explosion. A more thorough investigation showed that he had struck a vein of natural gas. The find came at an opportune time for the man, who has been in hard luck ever since he purchased the farm. First his home, furniture and practically all of his goods were destroyed by fire; then he lost a newly purchased horse and much valuable timber.

Injured by Road Scraper.

William Hatfield, a well known farmer, was injured near Greenwood while working on a road scraper. Hatfield had gotten off of the machine in order to see how deep the scrapper was cutting, when his foot slipped and he fell directly in front of it. His right foot was badly crushed and strained. This is the second accident reported within the past week to men operating these machines. The same day W. O. Lynch, a man weighing 300 pounds, fell down stairs at his home in Greenwood. Lynch, notwithstanding his enormous size, received only a few scratches.

The old "Spanish prisoner with a concealed fortune" swindle is still alive and in good working order. Notwithstanding the apparent transparency of this swindle, it still lives, and it must thrive by finding victims willing to invest good money in the vague and vain hope of being permitted to share liberally in the unearthing of a concealed fortune. And while the swindlers deserve punishment, the victims of their weak wiles are not entitled to sympathy.

Roy Webb, a young farmer of near Felton, with a few friends, went to Harrington Saturday evening, to the parsonage, and bashfully explained to the minister that he expected to be married at 8 o'clock, whereupon the minister made all preparations for the occasion. Then they awaited the coming of the bride-to-be, Miss Lulu Bernard, daughter of Joseph Bernard of near Harrington, but she did not appear. At 11 o'clock young Webb left the house, badly disappointed, explaining to the parson that something serious must have occurred. The reason leaked out Wednesday morning, when it was learned that the mother of the girl had persuaded her not to get married.

The Dietrics

MAGIC AND MUSIC. AT THE 1913 CHAUTAUQUA.

The great zylophone on the table at the right in the above cut is responsible for only a part of the delightfully "different" musical numbers of these two joy-makers. The Dietrics ring bells, whistle bird-calls, carol solos, sound bugles, tinkle tambourines, astonish us with trick piano playing, convulse us with witty phrases.

During half the evening, the swift swirl of magic on the platform puts the whole audience on tip-toe with wonderment. For everything wholesomely delightful in sights as well as in sounds, one must arrange for at least a two-hour stop-over in the tent town of the Chautauqua this summer.

NERVOUS GIRLS.

Most persons who live in large cities work too hard and play too hard. The result, an exhaust nervous system, is pitiful enough in the middle-aged, but it is tragic in the young. Nature never intended a young girl to know that she has any nerves. And yet we are constantly hearing that some young girl has "broken down." Overstudy gets the blame oftener than too much amusement, but in most cases there are several causes at work: necessary school work, unnecessary and silly dissipation, and an inherited nervous system—she is feeble.

A mother who has herself become a nervous bankrupt cannot bequeath strong nerves to her daughters. She must learn that only the wisest management will bring them to healthy womanhood at all.

The strain of getting a modern education is all that most young girls can stand. School duties ought to occupy almost all the time that is left from absolutely necessary rest, sleep, and relaxation in the open air. If the girl adds parties and dances, with their late hours and late suppers, she depletes her reserve force rapidly, and some degree of nervous breakdown is sure to follow. She is fortunate whose mother is old fashioned enough to think it wrong for schoolgirls to take part in that sort of dissipation.

Economic conditions oblige many young girls to earn their living, and they, too, must learn that the candle cannot be burned at both ends. The very young and very strong may be able to stand all day behind a counter and then spend half the night in dancing but the women who rise to be heads of departments are not found among the dancers.

No girl need be in doubt whether she is overtaxing her strength. Nature's danger signals are plain, and if we goad her on in spite of them, she takes her revenge sooner or later. If you are a schoolgirl, postpone your playtime for a year or two. You will enjoy it the more when it comes, and you will be the prettier and fresher for your self-control. Tired nerves are one of the most unbecoming things in the world.

White Muscovy Ducks.

Eggs $1.00 per Dozen

White Muscovy Ducks are best for table use. They are large and dress away but very little. The flesh has flavor equal to wild duck. They are becoming very popular. Are easy to raise and, unlike other varieties, make no noise. They are good layers and splendid setters. Drakes weigh from 12 to 15 pounds, according to age. It takes five weeks to hatch white muscovy duck eggs. They require about half the amount of feed as other varieties of ducks. Will thrive well in small enclosures and need but little water. Give them a trial.
