Smith—Wade Nuptial.

Prof. Roy Clark Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mark H. Smith of this place and Miss Charlotte Wade were married near Morgantown, W. Va., on Wednesday last. The Morgantown Post-Chronicle has the following account of the wedding:

One of the most elaborate home weddings ever solemized in the county was that of Professor R. C. Smith, principal of the Morgantown high school, and Miss Charlotte Wade, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Wade, at the bride's home near Mount Morris. The wedding, the impressively beautiful Methodist Episcopal service, was performed at 8 o'clock yesterday evening by Dr. Charles Kelley Jenness in the presence of about 40 intimate friends of the bride and groom.

The bridal couple entered the parlor, where the wedding was performed, to the processional from Lohengrin, played by Miss Francis Canterbury, of Malden. The bride wore a handsome bridal gown of white charmeuse, trimmed in orange blossoms, and carried a huge bouquet of bride's roses. Miss Myra L. Shank of Auburn, N. Y., was the maid of honor and wore a gown of pink chiffon, and carried sweet peas. Duke Smith of Baltimore, a brother of the groom, was best man. Misses Jessie Wade, sister of the bride, and Georgia Wade the bride's cousin, were the ribbon girls.

During the ceremony, Miss Canterbury played a selection from "The Tales of Hoffman." Mr. Fred Koelz played the recessional.

Following the wedding ceremony, an elaborate wedding supper was served. Mr. and Mrs. Smith departed late in the evening for Waynesburg, Pa., where they left this morning for a wedding trip to Atlantic City and to Mr. Smith's former home at Denton Md. They will return to Morgantown shortly before school opens next September.

The Wade home was artistically and tastefuily decorated for the occasion. Pink candles formed the lights. The table decorations were in pink and white, that color scheme being maintained throughout the decorations.

Wedding Don'ts.

Don't marry a man who says he will die of a broken heart if you don't marry him. I have attended a great many funerals, but never one of that kind.

"Don't marry a man in the hope of reforming him. When he says he will give up all his bad habits after you are married he is lying, though he may not know it.

"Don't marry a man who is avowedly ungodly. Let him find some one else as godless as himself.

Don't marry a man until you know who he is and where he comes from. One will not engage a clerk or a house servant without recommendations, yet many a woman marries a man without knowing the least thing about his antecedents.

"Don't marry a man you know to be selfish. Don't expect perfection in a husband or you will be disappointed."

These were some of the "don'ts" given to the women of his congregation by Rev. Dr. Samuel Woodrow, pastor of the First Congregational Church of Baltimore.

"It is generally best that a woman should marry and have a home," Dr. Woodrow said. "A woman develops in a happy home of her own as nowhere else. I applaud the woman who remains single rather than marry some unworthy man or be joined in a loveless union."
