KING OF BRITISH JESTERS

George Bernard Shaw Has Succeeded in Ambition to Be Much-Talked-of-Man.

"I love order in all things," said George Bernard Shaw, at a public meeting some time ago. "For this reason I am not content with ordering my life; I also order my personality. I have cocoa-colored hair, so I wear cocoa-colored clothes and drink cocoa." Shaw today has reached the position of becoming a public institution. For more than twenty years he has succeeded in fulfilling his boast that every day some leading paper would have something to say about him. George Bernard Shaw is the jester at the court of King Demos. When years ago he was appointed dramatic critic to a well-known journal he refused to obey the iron-clad regulation that occupants of the stalls must wear evening dress. The first night he was stopped at the door of a theater by an attendant. "What do you object to?" inquired Shaw. "My cocoa colored jacket?" The attendant assented. "Very well, then," said the critic. "I will remove it." And the next moment he was striding up the aisle in his shirt sleeves. "That won't do, sir!" shouted the attendant, running after him. "Won't do?" exclaimed Shaw, with a fine assumption of indignation. "Do you think I'm going to take off any more?" The nonplussed attendant handed him his jacket, and Shaw took his seat in the stalls triumphantly.—London Life.

Alike in Education.

All the world will soon be akin, as far as education is concerned as even the Hindu girls, from kindergarten to college, are following the same course of study as their American sisters. The little children have bright papers and beads and "gifts," while their big sisters in the college at Baroda study the ologies, with either Hindu or American teachers.

Question of Hearing.

The burly farmer strode anxiously into the post office.

"Have you got any letters for Mike Howe?" he asked.

The new postmaster looked him up and down.

"For who?" he snapped.

"Mike Howe?" replied the farmer.

The postmaster turned aside.

"You don't understand!' roared the applicant. "Can't you understand plain English? I asked if you've got any letter for Mike Howe!"

"Well, I haven't," snorted the postmaster. "Neither have I a letter for anybody else's cow! Get out."

Love Will Find a Way.

The young couple hastened into the Union station. It was very patent that they were not married. They were altogether too chummy for that. They went out into the platform and stood and talked for a minute, when he took her in his arms and kissed her fondly and again hurried away toward a train.

"What do you think of that?" inquired one of the attaches of the station.

"That looks all right. Why?"

"They do that three or four times a week. They think that everybody else will think that he is going away on a long journey, but he has never got on a train yet. He simply walks around back of the train and disappears. He gets his kiss all right, though."

TIMELY HINTS FOR WORK WITH FLOWERS

Bamboo Poles Are Used to Form This Rose Trellis, Making an Effective and Unusual Support.

(By L. M. BENNINGTON.)

Just as early this month as possible procure some freesia bulbs and plant five or six in a six-inch pot. Put the pot where it will receive the sun for at least half a day.

It does not need to be deprived of light and air, as do the Holland bulbs to start them, but wants a bright airy place with enough sun to insure its growth. The flowers do not appear for several months.

One of the loveliest flowers grown is the Madonna lily (lilium candidum). It should be planted in August, as it makes a leaf growth in autumn. Set the bulb ten or twelve inches deep in well prepared soil, in a little pocket of sand.

Lilies prefer muck and leaf mould, and dislike manure unless it is thoroughly rotten. Protect the lily bed during winter with leaves and other litter. The American Turk's cap, and Canadian bell-flower lily also demand August planting.

The following biennials and perennials should not be planted later than the middle of August: Hollyhocks, wallflowers, sweet Williams, Iceland poppies, foxgloves, Canterbury bells, primroses, English daisies, columbine, larkspurs and pansies.

Rhododendrons, azaleas, and other evergreen shrubs require a summer mulch, especially if planted last spring. They like "cold feet."

If the ground is dug deep, allowing the roots of plants to strike deep for moisture, and the top soil stirred flowers will withstand the dry weather far better than without these advantages.

Farmer's Bulletin No. 138, which can be had from the department of agriculture, Washington, D. C., clearly explains how to use water to advantage in the garden.

The lawn must not be mowed too short during this month. However, do not allow the grass and weeds to go to seed.

Plant evergreens in August in order to allow them time to become established before winter sets in. Do not allow the roots to become dry or chilled, or they will die. Keep the roots in a puddle from the time they are dug until planted.

Dig the hole for evergreen much larger than the ball of roots; fill up partly with good soil, put in the evergreen with all its roots spread out naturally; work the soil between the roots, water and fill up with soil, tramping to firm it. Water and mulch.

After August first stop pinching the chrysanthemums shoots. When the flower buds appear rub off where too numerous, and the small weakly ones if you want specimen blooms.

Make cuttings with three or four eyes removing all the leaves, but the top cluster, and bury them almost to the top leaves. Turn an old tumbler or glass can over each cutting, and keep moist.

It is very important not to let weeds mature their seeds in the garden and vicinity, and they do it quickly this month. Eternal vigilence is the price of a weedless home place.

Do not forget to gather seeds from only the finest flowers. It is well to tie a string about the stem of the most perfect blooms, and cut the rest. Watch the pod as it matures, and gather before it scatters the seed.

Don't be niggardly with your flowers. Cut them for the house; give them to friends and neighbors; send them to the poor and sick, and the stranger. You will scatter "sunshine," and your plants will bloom all the better for your generosity.

It is not safe to fertilize young shrubs and trees after this month, as the growth thus encouraged will not be able to stand the cold of winter.

Keep up the summer pruning of roses, shrubs and perennials. For instance, several varieties of roses, besides the everblooming tea, will flower repeatedly if the gardener remembers when cutting the open bloom to cut back to a strong bud (a "bud" is a dormant shoot found at the axis of leaf and stem). The bud will grow and likely bear a flower. Try it.

Go over the lawn and pull the weeds, or cut them below the crown, especially the plantin.

A reliable authority advises us that if moles disturb the lawn and flowers insert moth balls in their runs, and they will bother no more.

The blight often attacks the aster just as it is about to bloom. As soon as you observe the leaves blotched pinch off all the diseased ones, and dust the plants with equal parts of fresh slacked lime and flower of sulphur while they are wet with dew or rain.

Roses, many of the shrubs, and such plants as hardy pinks and carnations are easily propagated by layering. Do it now.

If aphis trouble your chrysanthemums mulch the soil with tobacco stems, and syringe the plants with strong tobacco tea.

Strips of cloth are far better for tying plants to stakes than cord, as the latter is apt to cut through the stalk.

Feeding Cows.

If it is worth while to keep cows at all it is worth while to feed them liberally and upon a ration adapted to milk production. Anything that is worth doing is worth doing well. The care of a dozen cows involves just about so much labor whether their average production is large or small. If the care is to be given and the regularly recurring milking times are to be observed make it worth while by feeding the cows that are to be milked liberal quantities of the right kind of food.

Knows Just How the Book Ended.

Mabel and Johnny are nice children, but they love to argue. The other day they got into a heated discussion as to which one had read the more books. Finally Johnny said: "Well, I've read 'Robinson Crusoe' and you haven't."

"Oh, yes, I have," returned Mabel, not to be outdone by a mere boy.

"Now, what does it say at the very last?" he asked.

The little girl studied for a moment, then her face brightened.

"Why, it says 'The End,'" was the unexpected answer.

The Kind You Have Always Bought.

THIS is the caution applied to the public announcement of Castoria that has been manufactured under the supervision of Chas. H. Fletcher for over 30 years—the genuine Castoria. We respectfully call the attention of fathers and mothers when purchasing Castoria to see that the wrapper bears his signature in black. When the wrapper is removed the same signature appears on both sides of the bottle in red. Parents who have used Castoria for their little ones in the past years need no warning against counterfeits and imitations, but our present duty is to call the attention of the younger generation to the great danger of introducing into their families spurious medicines.

It is to be regretted that there are people who are now engaged in the nefarious business of putting up and selling all sorts of substitutes, or what should more properly be termed counterfeits, for medicinal preparations not only for adults, but worse yet, for children's medicines. It therefore devolves on the mother to scrutinize closely what she gives her child. Adults can do that for themselves, but the child has to rely on the mother's watchfulness.

Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

SMILES NOT FOR "FLASHY"

Masculine Charmer Convinced He Had Made a Mash, but He Had Wrong Impression.

"I got a good one on Flashy," said Squirt as he shot the fine stream into the ice cream soda and pushed it over the marble counter.

"Who and what?" asked Squirt's friend.

"You know Flashy?" continued Squirt. "He of the ice cream suit and high browed hat. He was sittin' in here this afternoon when up floats the classiest little dame you ever saw and stops right outside the window. She cocks her head over to one side and smiles, her face right up close to the glass. Flashy tightened up his wash tie and straightened up his coat lapels. All the time the girl was smilin' and rubbin' her nose with the palm of her hand.

"Flashy smiled back two or three times and then he up and dusts out the door. Right up to her he went and purses up his pretty lips and lifts his hat. Say, you ought to have seen that girl do the rockbound glide away. She elevated her nose on a level with her eyes and drifted right off down the street.

"Flashy was crushed. The woman had a powder rag palmed in her hand. She had been smilin' at herself in the plate glass."

One good turndown may eliminate the necessity for another.

HAD NOTHING AT ALL TO SAY

Under the Circumstances Captain Could Hardly Be Blamed for Preserving Silence.

Everybody in Middle Bay knew that Mrs. Captain Liscomb was talking about making a visit to her married daughter in Cincinnati. She had been talking about it for two years, but age and the natural timidity of a woman unused to travel had postponed the great event from month to month, until the neighbors began to wonder whether it would ever come to pass.

So one morning, when Uncle Billy Evans met Captain Liscomb in Eccles' store, there was twinkle in his eye as he asked:

"When's Mis' Liscomb going out to Ohio, Daniel?"

"Don't ask me!" returned the captain, a little peevishly. "I don't know nothin' about it. If I tell her to go, she says I want to get rid of her. If I tell her to stay to home, she says I'm mean! I ain't saying a single word!"

How He Knew.

"I have got to quit smoking."

"Doctor order you to?"

"Oh, no.'

"Then how do you know you have to quit?"

"My wife told me so."

Appreciated No Less.

Post Toasties

Are mighty handy to have in the house as well as mighty good to eat direct from the package with cream.

Besides being the most delicious ready cooked cereal food made of corn these crisp, crinkly flakes serve many another useful purpose in home cooking.

Rolled into crumbs and used as an outer dressing for breaded veal, lamb, chicken, pork or ham; they give a zest to the 'fry' that makes the home folks ask for more.

Softened with milk and used with usual spicing and fixing as an inside dressing for baked fish or fowl they impart a delicate flavor to the finished dish, remindful of the chestnut fillings that cast a halo around the days of old-time cooking.

Post Toasties are sold by Grocers everywhere—and everywhere folks who relish good things to eat, appreciate the delicate Indian Corn flavor that makes

SUPERIOR HORSES FOR GENERAL FARM WORK

The illustration shown here represents full brothers—five and six years old. This pair is well matched as to size, color and height. Their combined weight is 2,400 pounds, color a rich coal black; height about 16 hands.

They are a kindly disposed pair but full of life. This is a breed which the farmers of Kentucky breed with more profit than any other, as it will adapt itself to pulling the plow on the farm, the loaded wagon, or may be driven to the carriage at three-minute gait with perfect ease to themselves and driver.

Horses like these are generally from the old Morgan breed.

Care of Blue Grass Pasture.

Blue grass makes very little growth during the summer months. In view of the fact it is not advisable to pasture meadows too heavily during the growing season. The green grass of early spring has not the dry matter or feeding value of the mature, dry grass of June and July.

Plowing Plan.

In plowing the ground it is a good plan to finish each day's work by harrowing what has been plowed.

Shredded Corn Fodder.

Shredded corn fodder is one of the things that have not been fully appreciated on the farm. It is good for bedding the stock, it is convenient to have in the hen houses as a litter, and it is easily worth considerable as a feed.

Care of Sows.

After weaning the litter sows should not be fed heavily but should have plenty of good pasture and be bred again in the early winter.

Accurate Reply.

"Do I take this steamer to Boston?"

"Well, I'd let the captain do that, if I were you."

CRUST COVERED BOY'S HEAD

Bolton, Ga.—"My little boy's head was covered with a hard thick crust which cracked with the least pressure causing a discharge of bloody corruption which was so offensive that I could hardly hold him. He was very cross. Some called it milk crust, another running tetter and another eczema.

"After trying several patent medicines I decided to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment. After using the sample I purchased some Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment. After using Cuticura Soap and Ointment three days I was able to remove all the crust and in one week he was entirely cured. Cuticura Soap and Ointment also cured my baby of an ulcerated sore behind her ear and now we think we cannot keep house without them." (Signed) Mrs. Charles Poss, Nov. 5, 1912.

Poor Man's "Meat."

In the Woman's Home Companion, Zona Gale, writing an article entitled Ethics and Cooks, says: "The family of the legumes, 'the poor man's meat'—the peas, beans, lentils and peanuts—are found next in importance to meat and eggs, with peanuts one of the best balanced foods available, and a peanut butter sandwich is quite as nourishing as a ham sandwich."

His Advice.

The portly lady had accidentally taken a rear seat in a surface car reserved for smokers. With unconcealed indignation she watched the man beside her fill his pipe.

"Sir," finally came her frigid tones, smoking always makes me feel sick."

"Does it now, ma'am?" said the man as he carefully lighted up. "Then take my advice an' quit smoking."

Small Chance.

"Waiter!" called the customer in a restaurant where an orchestra was playing.

"Yes, sir."

"Kindly tell the leader of the orchestra to play something sad and low while I dine. I want to see if it will have a softening influence on this steak."

It Sounded So.

"Let me see," said the dentist, "I'm afraid we'll have to treat—um, yes—one tooth, two, three teeth—ah, yes—five teeth, eight, eleven—hah!—thirteen teeth, fifteen and two make seventeen—"

"Hey, there! Wait a minute," interrupted the shaking patient; "what do you think you're treating, a comb?"

Its Readers Are Legion.

"Has Judkins' paper much of a circulation?"

"Has it? I don't suppose there is a straphanger in this entire town that isn't a subscriber to it."

Serious.

"Dear me!" exclaimed the fond father, anxiously, "whatever can be the matter with the baby?—it isn't crying!"—Puck.

Effective.

"You say your first speech made several converts?"

"Yes," answered the orator regretfully, "from my side to that of the opposition."

Some people manage to make a little truth go a long way by stretching it.

Thirteen states have boiler inspection laws.

GOT OUT THROUGH SKYLIGHT

Brooklyn Woman, Locked in Office Building, Left by the Roof Instead of the Door.

A prisoner in her ladies' tailoring shop on the top floor of the 5-story building at 49 East Broadway, New York, Mrs. M. W. Winston, weight 180 pounds, was eventually rescued a few days ago from her predicament by two firemen, a policeman and a janitor, who lowered ropes from the roof of the building through the skylight.

Mrs. Winston, whose home is at 795 De Kalb avenue, Brooklyn, went to her shop in the morning to finish some work, and requested the janitor to leave the front door open so she could get out. The janitor forgot his instructions and Mrs. Winston found the door on the lower floor locked when she wanted to leave.

As she realized there was no other method of getting out she attracted a crowd by pounding on the glass panels of the door, but the spectators were unable to understand her predicament. She then returned to the fifth floor, wrote a note explaining she was locked in and threw it out the window.

The crowd read it and offered suggestions, while a more thoughtful person hurried to Engine Company No. 9, on East Broadway, and explained the situation to the firemen. Volunteers Stephens and Keill, with ropes and an ax, were sent to liberate the woman and they picked up Patrolman Little on the way.

Assisted by the janitor of the adjoining building, the rescuers got to the roof of No. 49 and smashed the skylight. Stephens was lowered into the room and, after considerable persuasion, Mrs. Winston allowed the rope to be tied about her waist.

The three men then pulled and finally got their burden to the roof. Stephens was pulled up later. After thanking her rescuers Mrs. Winston hurried home.

Properly Named.

"Why does this piano manufacturer call his business an infant industry?"

"Because he manufactures mostly baby grands."

AN OLD NURSE

Persuaded Doctor to Drink Postum.

An old faithful nurse and an experienced doctor, are a pretty strong combination in favor of Postum, instead of tea and coffee.

The doctor said:

"I began to drink Postum five years ago on the advice of an old nurse.

"During an unusually busy winter, between coffee, tea and overwork, I became a victim of insomnia. In a month after beginning Postum, in place of tea and coffee, I could eat anything and sleep as soundly as a baby.

"In three months I had gained twenty pounds in weight. I now use Postum altogether instead of tea and coffee; even at bedtime with a soda cracker or some other tasty biscuit.

"Having a little tendency to Diabetes, I used a small quantity of saccharine instead of sugar, to sweeten with. I may add that today tea or coffee are never present in our house and very many patients, on my advice, have adopted Postum as their regular beverage.

"In conclusion I can assure anyone that, as a refreshing, nourishing and nerve-strengthening beverage, there is nothing equal to Postum."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Write for booklet, "The Road to Wellville."

Postum comes in two forms.

Regular (must be boiled).

Instant Postum doesn't require boiling but is prepared instantly by stirring a level teaspoonful in an ordinary cup of hot water, which makes it right for most persons.

A big cup requires more and some people who like strong things put in a heaping spoonful and temper it with a large supply of cream.

Experiment until you know the amount that pleases your palate and have it served that way in the future.

"There's a Reason" for Postum.
