Town and County News

THURSDAY, MARCH 15, 1917.

Frogs awake.

Robbins singing.

Fresh fish this week.

Roads improving fast.

Don't miss the debate.

Gardeners cleaning up.

Batter! Batter! Pitcher!

April Court drawing near.

Much water standing in low fields.

No complaint of mud on Main st.

Apple-growers are spraying their trees.

Mrs. Clarence Kern has Indian Runner Duck eggs for sale.

FOR SALE—A span of two-year-old mules for sale. W. W. Newcomer.

Most of the farmers are contracting to grow tomatoes at $15 per ton.

The Harrington Gun Club will hold a merchandise shoot on Monday, the 26th.

An opening for a good girl to learn the millinery business at Mrs. I. S. Holligsworth's.

The Community Chorus is doing finely, but more tenor singers are needed, we understand.

Contractor Kauffman goes to Sudlersville this week to arrange for beginning work on his road contract there.

Draper & Slaughter are preparing to plant about 8 acres of potatoes, and have secured 80 bushels of seed potatoes.

Two town ordinances are published in this issue of the UNION. They will be strictly enforced and everyone should read them.

Undertaker Watson, of Seaford, reports having had charge of fifteen funerals last week, nearly all the persons having passed 50 years of age.

The Denton Gun Club has leased a range on the stone road, adjoining Tower's Park, and will erect a new stand, in readiness for the shoot on April 4.

Owing to several belated advertisements we are unable to handle the County Agent's letter this week, as it did not reach the office until Wednesday morning.

Mr. William Bullock has rented the large store room adjoining the electric light office, where he will display and demonstrate the handsome Regal automobile. See advertisement.

Mr. Lloyd E. Holsinger, manager of Sunshine Poultry Farm, and Dr. C. A. Whisler have purchased the plant and stock of the Sunshine Farm. A 10,000 egg incubator is turning out baby checks almost continually, which are shipped to all parts of the country.

The new Smithville road is about completed, and the State Inspector, Mr. J. Allen Reynolds, will be transferred to the road being constructed by Contractor Kauffman at Sudlersville. Mr. Reynolds is well known in Denton, having been located here several years ago. Mrs. Reynolds was formerly Miss Ruth Walker, of this place.

Wheat has again crossed the $2 mark. No. 2 red Western selling at $2.10. Corn is also establishing a highwater mark, being quoted at $1.16½. The farmers are complaining of the lack of facilities for shipping wheat and corn, as they are unable to take advantage of the market because of the scarcity of cars.

J. Franklin Baker, the base ball hitter who put Trappe on the map, left Baltimore a few days ago for Macon, Ga., where he will join the Yanks. Before he left he said that he hoped he would have better luck than he had last season, when he met numerous accidents, the most serious being when he ran into the grand stand and was injured. This kept him out of the game for a long time.

The town had a big mad dog scare on Friday last, when a strange dog appeared in town fighting with and biting every dog it met. Esther, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Rairigh, was bitten on the arm, and on Tuesday morning she was taken to Baltimore for treatment, where the dog's head was examined and the animal declared to have hydrophobia. There is no way of knowing how many dogs were bitten before the dog was killed, but the owners of dogs, for their own protection as well as the public's, should keep their dogs chained.

The first of the series of School Debates will take place on Friday evening at the High School. The question will be—"Resolved, That the Federal Government Settle Disputes Arising Between Capital and Labor." The discussion will be between representatives of Preston and Denton schools. Denton will have the affirmative side and be represented by Miss Octavia Lewis and Carroll George. Admission 10 cents. Miss Margaret Pastorfield and Matthew Garey will go to Federalsburg on te same evening, where the same question will be discussed, Denton having the negative side.

PERSONAL PARAGRAPHS.

Mr. J. Lester Everngam has returned from a visit to friends in Carlisle, Pa.

Mrs. W. R. Allaband has been seriously ill at her home, on Second street, this week.

Rev. John S. Bowers, President of the Maryland Annual Conference, preached at the M. P. Church here on last Sunday.

Mrs. Charles E. Miller, of Baltimore, was called to Denton a few days ago by the serious illness of her daughter, Mrs. Raymond Cohee.

Mrs. Mamie McShane Guernny, of N. Y., and Miss Katharine McShane, of Baltimore, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Knotts, last week.

Mrs. Norman Cheezum was called from her home here last Thursday by the death of her father, Mr. Sam'l Dickerson, whose home was in Nanticoke, Wicomico county.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey L. Cooper spent the week-end at their cottage at Rehoboth, having as their guests Miss Lucetta Sisk, Miss Hazel Bullock and Miss Bessie MacDonald. The party made the trip in Senator Cooper's Packard car.

Mr. Ormond Neal, of Wilmington, and Miss Grace Woolen were married on March 1st at the home of the bride's parents. They drove from Hurlock to Andersontown, where dinner was served, afterwards taking the train at Greensboro. They will reside in Wilmington, where Mr. Neil is in business.

Miss Gertrude Woolford, aged 25 years, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. J. E. Woolford, of Baltimore, formerly of Denton, died at a Baltimore hospital on March 6th. The remains were brought to Denton, and the funeral took place from the home of the deceased's aunt, Mrs. Benjamin Cohee. Interment was in Denton Cemetery.

INTERESTING EXTENSIONS TO THE SCHOOLS.

The Chautauqua Reading Hour.

William Byron Forbush, Ph. D., Editor.

There is going to be a substitute for the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. some day that will reach every village school and every outlying schoolhouse in the city. "Anything that a Y. M. C. A. considers worth doing for its members," sensibly says Elsa Denison, "is worth getting done for all boys." Instead of doing about one-half of 1 per cent. of the social and physical training work that needs to be done, in a building that is open only after school is out and that is supported by the special gifts of a few people, we are going soon to remodel our school buildings so that they may be used when school is over by all the people at public expense.

Let us put down in two columns the work done now by the Y. M. C. A. and the similar work that might be done in an ordinary school house.

Y. M. C. A.	SCHOOL HOUSE.
Study rooms.	Study - recreation rooms.
Clubs for boys and girls.	Clubs for boys and girls.
Entertainments.	Entertainments.
Games and athletics.	Athletic leagues.
Clinics.	Medical inspe'tion
Music.	School choruses and orchestras.
Gardens.	School gardens.
Playgrounds.	Playgrounds.
Secretaries.	Teachers.

I have seen plans by which a small city proposes to erect a Municipal High School that shall be adapted for this purpose, having even a swimming pool for the alternate use of boys and girls.

In the meantime we are already beginning to introduce informally some of these social and physical and civic features in buildings that have not yet been remodelled. And as is often the case when new things are tried, the work has been inaugurated by a semi-public institution. I am glad to give the rest of my space this week to an account of the club work in schools that is conducted in many of the towns that read this series, prepared for me by the Supervisor of the Clubs themselves.

THE "MODERNEST" OF MODERN EDUCATIONAL IDEAS.

"Junior Chautauqua Club today! Can't git kep' in this time! Got to give my report." Jimmie smiled up at his teacher. "Tell me the subject of it, James." "What is Respect for Authority?" he answered, glibly. "Some of the kids on the Law and Order Commission tells stories about it, and some of them reads things, but I got to talk mine. I been practicin', too." Then, with the rest of "the kids," he ran out of the school room, down the stairs and away to the hall, toward which many little feet were hurrying, his face glowing with eagerness, and his lips set as with the importance of the job on hand.

Within the hall, seventy or eighty other youngsters were gathered as Jimmie entered and took his place among the five Law and Order Commissioners seated facing the others at the front of the room. The Mayor and Town Clerk were already at the desk and the Supervisor preparing to open the meeting. At a word from her, all was quiet, and she announced that the program would begin with the singing of "Depend on the Boys and Girls"—and eighty lusty voices pledged sturdy fidelity to Uncle Sam, in singing that did good to the heart of the adult inclined to be a bit skeptical on such subjects. Why, there really was patriotic ardor left in American citizens, after all! Here it was, warm and true in these Juniors!

Following the song came a story, and every eye was on the Supervisor as she told a tale of chivalry—of a young knight who won a great reward because of his fidelity to an uninteresting task. Were there not young heroes in that crowd of eager children whose ambitions were being stirred, whose vision was being heightened and broadened by that tale of a youth of long ago? Spontaneous applause greeted the close of the story and, unable to conceal her pleasure, the story-teller smiled back until it had ceased—a full half minute or so. Then another song, and after the leader said, "And now we are ready for our Town Meeting, and I'll turn things over to our Mayor." Whereupon she took her stand at one side of the room and the young Mayor of Junior Town stood before the Citizens.

"TOWN MEETING."

"The meeting will please come to order. We'll hear the minutes of the last meeting." And the Town Clerk read her record of the meeting of the previous month. Well written and well read were those minutes, and when they were finished they were duly approved in parliamentary fashion; the Mayor leading very capably, albeit with a word of help now and then from the Supervisor. It was his first appearance, it seemed, in this capacity. He had been instructed and coached a bit beforehand, as part of the training. The Mayor said, "We'll hear the report of the Law and Order Commission." The Chairman of said commission rose.

"The Law and Order Commission submits the following laws:

"1. There shall be no talking during the meeting.

"2. Boys and girls shall be still and listen to the teacher when playing games.

"3. No swearing on the playground.

"4. Junior Citizens shall play fair in games.

"5. The Law and Order Commissioners shall keep order and any one not obeying the laws shall be sent home, and may not play in the games."

FREE DISCUSSION FOLLOWS.

A murmur ran over the audience at this last, and the Supervisor stepped forward. "There seems to be some objection, Mr. Mayor. You had better ask what it is." "What's wrong with these laws?" from the Mayor. But not a voice was lifted in objection. "Very well, then, we shall have a motion that they be accepted." One of the older girls responded, and it was voted to accept the laws as the code of the Junior Town.

Following the business the Chairman of the Commission in charge announced the various numbers on the program for the day. The theme was "Respect for Authority." Two girls told two anecdotes illustrative of the subject, and told them so well that not a word of explanation was needed to put the ideas "over." A boy read the "Pledge of the Athenian Youths," a bit of discussion followed this, applying the spirit of the pledge to modern Junior City. The last two numbers were the talks by Jimmie and another; one on "What Is Respect for Authority?" the other "Why Must We Learn to Have Respect for Authority?" And enthusiastic clapping voiced the approval of the audience when the Chairman sat down. A motion for adjournment of the business meeting was made, seconded and carried, and the Supervisor reassumed charge. Another story, and the program was concluded by the singing of Junior Town song—

"I Am Proud of My Town,
Is My Town Proud of Me?"

AN HOUR OF FREE PLAY.

But this did not mean that the Juniors went home. Instead, they adjourned to the playground, and there for a half hour, divided into groups according to ages, they enjoyed hilarious fun in games organized and directed by the Supervisor and her helpers. From six to fourteen and fifteen years of age, they exercised legs and lungs to their hearts content, and not one instance of foul foul play or "squabbling" was seen. And promptly at the end of the allotted time they dispersed, while the leaders held an enthusiastic mutual-commendation meeting over the success of the afternoon.

And what does it all mean? And who is doing this? And where does it happen? It's the work of the Junior Chautauqua Winter Club, organized in the small towns and cities of our Eastern States by the Chautauqua Association of Pennsylvania. In 61 such places it is going on, keeping three young women strenuously on the job directing the work. These Supervisors visit each Club once a month, and their "circuit" includes between 18 and 22 towns. The work is supported by the parents and other interested folk of the towns into which it goes. The foregoing account shows the kind of support given by boys and girls, and there are no more enthusiastic, eager workers in any branch of our modern, busy educational system than these young women who are engineering this Junior Citizen's Club.

FEDERALSBURG

A special excursion to Philadelphia will leave here next Sunday 5.47 a.m.

The railroad company, it is reported, contemplate building another side track near the ice plant.

Messrs. Donald Jefferson, Homer Turner, Arthur Johnson and Wm. Smith left town on Friday for an auto trip to Baltimore.

Mrs. Ford Breeding is seriously ill at the Maryland University Hospital, having submitted to two surgical operations last week.

Mrs. Frank L. Williams is visiting her brother, Mr. H. H. Cade, at Youngstown, Ohio. Mr. Cade is from Denton, and is a leading florist in that part of the State.

John C. Foster, mill owner, was seriously injured at his mill near here. He was testing and setting a new saw for his workmen, when his right hand came in contact with it. His thumb was cut off at the joint and his forefinger had to be amputated. His middle finger was badly cut.

Federalsburg voted Monday for the first time in its history on a bonding issue, and overwhelmingly decided to assume a bonded indebtedness to improve the streets. The vote was the largest ever cast at a town election here, and there were only 10 votes cast against bonding. This means the town will co-operate with the State Roads Commission in laying a macadamized roadway through the town.

At the Fourth Quarterly Conference of Reliance Charge, Methodist Protestant Church, held Friday last, the official members of the three churches—Gethsemane, Liberty and Wheatley's—were out in large numbers, and extended unanimous invitation to the pastor, Rev. Thomas C. Jones, requesting him to return for his second year. Levin H. LeCates was elected as delegate to the coming Conference at Baltimore. Mr. Jones is expecting to build a new church in the Wheatley community during the coming summer.

Mr. John Wesley Beauchamp, a well known resident of the Eighth District, died on the 4th inst, at his home near Jones' Corner, aged 68 years. Mr. Beauchamp, who was known as an eccentric individual, lived alone for over 20 years on a tract of woodland containing about 50 acres, about ½ acre cleared land, his home being built in the woods. He never married and has no brothers or sisters living. Funeral services, conducted by Rev. Melvin E. Wheatley, were held at Concord and burial was made in the adjoining cemetery.

George E. Noble, of Federalsburg, and George W. Woolford, of Cambridge, who spent several days in Ohio purchasing cows for the Federalsburg and Cambridge Co-operative Cow Associations, returned last week. Two cars of cows were purchased, the car for Federalsburg consisted of Guernseys and Jerseys, while the car for Cambridge consists of Holsteins principally, with a few Jerseys, these two breeds representing the instructions of the associations. The cattle will be examined and tested by the Ohio State officials before being shipped, each cow being guaranteed to be healthful in every particular. These cows will be used to stock sections around Federalsburg and Cambridge.
