James Ray did bring a letter of Introduction to the Deponent from Captain Robert Livingston of the English East India service a nephew of the Deponent which letter represented the said James Ray to be a man of respectability and fortune the Deponent has not the said letter and believes it to be lost or destroyed.

To the 3d. Interr. He does not recollect that any mention was made in the said letter of the said James Ray intending to go to India.

To the 4th. Interr. he saith he recollects some thing of having heard that the said James Ray brought to this Country a letter of credit but for what amount or to what the Deponent does not now recollect his memory having greatly failed him, nor does he remember any thing relative to the other matters enquired of by this Interrogatory

To the 5th. Interr. he saith that he does not know that the said James Ray committed any act of fraud in the City of New York.

To the 6th he saith he hath no recollection of any of the matters enquired of by this Interrogatory

We certify that the preceding is a Copy of the Deposition of James Livingston, now deceased to the Interrogatories referred to in the title of the said Deposition, the said Copy having been made by the Clerk employed by the Subscribers in the Execution of the Commission in this Cause and that the said James Livingston after his examination and before the said Copy was prepared for his signature departed this life

Interrogatories put on behalf of James Ray one of the Defendants upon a cross examination of sundry Witnesses who had been before produced and examined on the part of the Complainants.

On the cross examination of Mr Joshua Waddington 1st. How long did James Ray reside in the City of New York. 2d. When did you first know, or hear of, that general reputation, of which you speak in your answer to the twenty fourth Interrogatory, exhibited by the Complainants - Was it before or after the said Ray left New York? and have you any knowledge or belief of the source from whence that reputation took its rise? If so declare the same.

3d. Whether or not doth that general reputation which hath caused you to doubt the character of the said Ray to be as good as you once supposed it, arise, as you have understood from his want of veracity morality and fair dealing in transactions which took place in New York or elsewhere and where?

4th. Whether or not are Samuel and Henry Waddington Gentlemen of integrity and respectability, and whether or not do you believe that they would have recommended the said James Ray to you as a man of respectability and considerable property, if they had not either themselves
