NAME "BAYER" ON GENUINE ASPIRIN

Take tablets only as told in each "Bayer" package.

The "Bayer Cross" is the thumbprint of genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin." It protects you against imitations and identifies the genuine Aspirin prescribed by physicians for over eighteen years.

Always buy an unbroken package of "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" which contains proper directions to safely relieve Colds, Headache, Toothache, Earache, Neuralgia, Lumbago, Rheumatism, Neuritis, Joint Pains, and Pain generally.

Handy tin boxes of twelve tablets cost but a few cents. Druggists also sell larger "Bayer" packages. Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid.

Kept His Word.

"I suppose it serves me right," said Uncle Bill Bottletop, "for tryin' to do business with Si Simlin!"

"Si's a slicker, all right," replied Jud Tunkins.

"He is. He told me yesterday mornin' that for $20 he'd leave somethin' with a sure enough kick in it on my back porch. So I gave him the twenty, an' last night I found his mule that he's been tryin' to get rid of for twelve years tied to the kitchen doorknob."

Most contributors to charity manage to be caught in the act.

Money talks and it is in a hurry to say goodby to most of us.

Men Attract Lightning.

Mrs. Flatbush—A curious fact revealed by statisticians is that the number of men struck by lightning is nearly four times that of women.

Mrs. Bensonhurst—That does seem strange when we remember that women are so much more attractive than men.

A cup of Garfield Tea before retiring will next day relieve your system gently and thoroughly of all impurities.—Adv.

ONLY ONE HOPE REMAINED

Under the Circumstances, Little Fellow's Suggestion Called for Immediate Adoption.

Members of a boy scout troop were having a knot-tying contest. The boys in each team had a short piece of rope and when the signal was given they had to tie these together, pass on to the leader, who then threw the finished rope out to a boy at a distance, who was to represent a drowning boy.

The signal was given, the boys on both sides hurriedly tied their knots and passed the finished rope to their leaders. Leader of Team 1 had thrown his rope and helped haul in his suffering brother, but leader of Team 2 was not so fortunate. He threw his rope time and again and each time missed his goal.

Then a little fellow far down toward the other end of the team heaved a prodigious sigh.

"No use to throw that rope again," he called out. "He's gone down now for the third time. Better get the pulmotor."

The Precious Apple.

"Every day my favorite pupil used to bring me a beautiful red apple," remarked the woman who used to teach school.

"Splendid custom!" commented the student of educational systems. "If it were still in existence, the perquisites of a teacher might make increase of salary appear less urgent."

Better Results.

"I see they are experimenting with a machine for laying the dust."

"I'd rather have one for raising it."

TAKES SOME TIME TO DINE

Meal Taken in Arabian Bazaar Is Something Like a Progressive Game of Cards.

In his book, "War in the Garden of Eden," Kermit Roosevelt gives a picturesque description of restaurant life in the Arabian bazaars: "I wandered off into the bazaar to get something to eat. In native fashion, I first bought a big flap of bread from an old woman, and then to a pickle booth to get some beets, which I wrapped in my bread. Next I proceeded to a meat shop and ordered some lamb kababs roasted. The meat is cut in pellets, spitted on rods six or eight inches long, and laid over the glowing charcoal embers. In the shop there are long tables with benches beside them. The customer spreads his former purchases, and when his kababs are ready he eats his dinner. He next proceeds to a coffee house, where he has a couple of glasses of tea and three or four diminutive cups of coffee to top off, and the meal is finished. The Arab eats sparingly as a rule, but when he gives or attends a banquet, he stuffs himself to his utmost capacity."

Flight of Geese.

When flocks of wild ducks and geese have to go long distances they form a triangle to cleave the air more easily, and the most courageous bird takes position at the forward angle. As this is a very fatiguing post, another bird ere long takes the place of the exhausted leader.

There is no mean work save that which is sordidly selfish.

SCHEME OUTLINED FOR KEEPING ACCURATE PEDIGREE OF EACH CHICK IN INCUBATOR

Wire Basket and Bobinet Sacks Used to Hold Pedigreed Eggs in Incubator.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

"Cockerel No. 1,164. The dam of this bird was No. 987. She held egg-laying record of 220 eggs in her pullet year. Sire of this cockerel was son of No. 840, that held a 3-year record of 536 eggs."

A bird with a pedigree like the one above is the kind that is commanding a fancy price in poultry circles today. Ancestry counts in chickens quite as much as in cattle or horses, and every poultry man or woman who is endeavoring to build up the egg productivity of his flock seeks a bird with a good egg-producing ancestry to head it. Better still, he buys a pen of pedigreed birds and gradually culls out his common stock. For these birds he goes to a reliable breeder of the variety that he keeps. It is not profitable for the owner of a large flock who is producing eggs and chickens for market to pedigree. The breeder, handling fewer birds and making a relatively higher profit on each one, can afford to expend more time and care on the individuals. With him it is not "how many," but "how good.'

Trap Nests Necessary.

Pedigreeing a chicken means the keeping of a complete breeding record. This involves a record by a leg band or some other accurate means of identification of the male and female which are mated; a record, with the aid of a trap nest, of each egg laid; an arrangement of the eggs in the incubator so that the baby chicks can be identified and the labeling of the chicks by a leg band after their removal from the incubator.

By means of leg banded hens and trap nests the breeder is able to identify every egg produced and to mark each egg. The United States department of agriculture poultry specialists mark the big end of the egg with the number of the hen and then put underneath that the pen number. The number on the leg band of the hen gives the clue in the record book to her pedigree. The pen number gives the information regarding the sire.

If laying heavily enough eggs from one hen for one setting may be safely saved when a hen is used for hatching. When an incubator is used a tray contains eggs from several hens. The method which the department of agriculture specialists use to identify the baby chicks when they hatch is as follows:

On the 18th day the eggs in the incubator are sorted. Each hen's eggs are put into a wire box or bobinet sack. These containers must be large enough to permit of plenty of room for the chicks. Each box or bag is tagged with the hen's number and the incubator is closed, not to be opened until the birds are hatched out of the shells.

Under ordinary conditions as soon as the chickens get their "sea legs" after hatching, they go toward the light in the front of the incubator and drop into the nursery below. Here the temperature is cooler. The pedigreed chicks in the boxes or bags, being unable to leave the tray, may become too warm. After the hatch is over, if they show signs of panting, the door should be fastened open so a little more air may enter.

Metal Band Applied.

As soon as the chicks are dry, or after about 12 hours, they are taken out of the bags and a small metal band with a number is wrapped around the leg. This should be folded until it will not slip over the foot. Some breeders put one of these baby chick or pigeon bands on each leg so if one gets off accidentally, there is still one left by which the bird can be identified. As the bands are put on, the record is made in the book. For instance, No. 1 would be the first chick's number and opposite this in the pedigree book would be written the hen's, and pen's number of the egg from which it hatched. By this means the accurate pedigree of each chick is assured.

How the identification of each bird is kept as it grows older and outgrows the baby chick leg band is another story.

PLANS FOR MAKING TIMBER PAY PROFIT

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Farm forestry helps farmers in:

Marketing timber profitably.

Supplying timber for farm needs.

Furnishing paying employment during the winter.

Making waste lands yield a profit.

Increasing the sale value of the farm.

Farm forestry means:

Improving the woods by the right kind of cutting.

Protecting the woods from fire and other injuries.

Utilizing farm timber to the best advantage.

Reclaiming gullies and utilizing waste lands by planting forest trees.

Keeping woodlands growing at their maximum rate of production.

Farm forestry, as a branch of agriculture, is the handling of forest trees and woodlands in such a manner as to increase the income and permanent value of the farm and add to its comfort and attractiveness as a home.

Build Up Vigorous Calves.

We should do everything to build up a strong and vigorous constitution and a healthy frame during the first year of the calf's life, for unless this is being done we are doing exactly the other thing. There is no middle course in growing a calf.

Make Use of Machinery.

Make the greatest possible profit out of machinery by using it continuously for profitable work until it is worn out.

Implement Rusts Out.

The average farm implement is only about half worn out by use alone. The rest of the wear is due to rust and decay.

Harbor Insect Pests.

Old cabbage stumps left in the garden harbor next year's pests.

PROVIDE DUST BOX FOR HENS

Chickens Cleanse Themselves of Insects by Wallowing in Dust—Best Size of Box.

Chickens never wash as many birds do, but cleanse themselves of insects by wallowing in dust. Where board or cement floors are used in the chicken house, some means of dusting during the winter months should be provided. A dust box 3 feet by 5 feet, or 4 feet by 4 feet will be found large enough in most instances, the United States department of agriculture suggests, for a flock of 50 or 60 fowls. It should be placed where it can be reached by sunlight during as much of the day as possible.

Fine, light dry dust is best for the box, but sandy loam is good. Road dust is recommended by many, but it is often hard to secure. Coal ashes may be mixed with the soil if desired to make it lighter.

POULTRY NOTES

A sandy soil makes the best poultry run.

• • •

A filthy henhouse is a sure breeder of disease.

• • •

To get winter eggs the first essential is good laying stock.

• • •

A dry mash hopper in which feed is always kept will mean more eggs and less bother in feeding.

• • •

All kinds of vegetables are good for poultry and those which they cannot eat raw can be cooked.

• • •

On extremely cold nights, we think it advisable to put all males with high combs into boxes or barrels and put a thin burlap over the top.

• • •

Plenty of clean water (not ice water or snow) should be given the fowls, and if it freezes a new supply should be furnished three times a day.

• • •

A good ration balancer is a dry mash of one part cornmeal, two parts bran and 10 per cent by bulk of high-grade beef scraps, kept within reach of the fowls in a hopper.

GREEN'S AUGUST FLOWER.

Constipation invites other troubles which come speedily unless quickly checked and overcome by Green's August Flower which is a gentle laxative, regulates digestion both in stomach and intestines, cleans and sweetens the stomach and alimentary canal, stimulates the liver to secrete the bile and impurities from the blood it is a sovereign remedy used in many thousands of households all over the civilized world for more than half a century by those who have suffered with indigestion, nervous dyspepsia, sluggish liver, coming up of food, palpitation, constipation and other intestinal troubles. Sold by druggists and dealers everywhere. Try a bottle, take no substitute.—Adv.

Really Not Her Fault.

Aunty took Elsie to the shoe shop for a pair of shoes. They were out of certain sizes and the child fancied a particular pair. Aunty told her to be sure and get them large enough and was quite provoked the next day when, having worn them for about an hour, Elsie complained of their being too tight and hurting her.

"I just knew those shoes were too small for you!" angrily said aunty.

"They wasn't a bit too small, aunty," defended Elsie, "but I dess my foots growed awful since yesterday!"

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments; corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcels Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.—Adv.

Only Wings.

"How can you expect children to believe in Santa Claus in this practical age," remarked a primary-grade teacher the other day. I said to one of my tots:

"How do you know it was a stork and not an angel that brought your little brother?"

"'Cause I heard pa complain about the size of the bill, and I guess angels don't have bills."

A Lady of Distinction.

Is recognized by the delicate fascinating influence of the perfume she uses. A bath with Cuticura Soap and hot water to thoroughly cleanse the pores, followed by a dusting with Cuticura Talcum Powder usually means a clear, sweet, healthy skin.—Adv.

Acquaintance Cultivated.

"They met at a lawn party. Appropriate, wasn't it, seeing she was a grass widow?"

"Yes, and he such a rake."

Garfield Tea, taken regularly, will correct both liver and kidney disorders.—Adv.

Some grocers adulterate allspice until it isn't spice at all.

Charitable.

Mrs. Flatbush—So your husband went to church with you?

Mrs. Bensonhurst—Yes, he did.

"What was the minister's sermon about?"

"Charity toward all."

"And did your husband derive any benefit from the discourse?"

"Well, I'll say he did, for when the preacher asked him what he thought of the sermon my husband refrained from replying."

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR.

To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ oz. of glycerine. Apply to the hair twice a week until it becomes the desired shade. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and will make harsh hair soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off.—Adv.

Knights of Malta.

The order of the Knights of Malta is of great antiquity and is supposed to have originated during the first crusades, from about 1070 to 1090. After the capture of Jerusalem, the order was founded by Gerard, who died in 1120.

Its Advantage.

"Do you think bee culture is a good business?" "Well, it is one which keeps on humming."

Scrap Leather Used on Roads.

It has been estimated that 55,720 pairs of old shoes are needed for every mile of a road composition made of slag, rock, asphalt and scrap leather that has been patented in Great Britain.
