Safety First.

Mrs. Smith and her daughter attended the movie. On entering they found it very dark. The daughter, taking the lead, found seats No. 2 and 3, about midway in the balcony. The man in seat No. 1 stood up to let the two pass, and when they had entered the row the mother thought she was falling and reached her hand forward to catch herself. The man, still standing, said to the mother: "Lady, you have your hand on that man's head."

Drawing her hand back with surprise, she turned to the speaker and said: "Oh, I thought it was a post, for it shone like that post up there."

After seating herself she addressed her daughter in a loud voice, and said: "I put my hand right on that man's head," pointing to a man in the row below. Much laughter followed and many lost interest in the rest of the film.

When the Brazen Hussy moved into the house next door, the "Uplifter" said: "Of course, I can't exactly call. But if she comes out on her veranda to sit, I shall smile at her. The only way to get a hold on people like that is to be friendly."

And the Brazen Hussy looked at the "Uplifter" next door and said to herself: "Poor fright! I suppose I might as well speak to her. Perhaps after a little she will let me show her how to do her hair."—Life.

KING HAD SOME IMAGINATION

Wonderful Story of "Waterless Sea" Would Have Done Credit to Baron Munchausen.

Prester John as a title was like the Egyptian Pharaoh and belonged to whole lines of kings who reigned in the East and in Ethiopia in particular. One writer of long ago sets Abyssinia as the kingdom of Prester John. Abyssinia used to be called "Middle India."

It is related that before the year 1241 a letter was addressed by Prester John to Manuel Commenus, emperor of Constantinople, saying that in Prester John's country there is a "waterless sea," which none have ever crossed. It consists of tumbling billows of sand, never at rest, and contains fish of most excellent flavor.

Three days' journey from the coast of the sand sea is a mountain whence rolls down a "waterless river," consisting of small stones, which crumble into sand when they reach the sea.

Whoever Prester John may have been, if he invented that story, he certainly possessed a vivid imagination and considerable originality.

NEW MILITARY SCHOOL OPENED IN MEXICO CITY

Elaborate ceremony marked the opening by president Carranza of Mexico's new military academy at Mexico City. For years the academy for training officers occupied a building connected with the palace of Chapultepec on the summit of the hill by that name. Lack of sufficient drill ground and the dilapidated conditon of the building led to the erection of the new school. This photograph shows a front view of the new academy.

SAYS U. S. MUST LEARN SHIPPING

America Is Not Ready for Great Merchant Marine, Asserts Payne.

URGES EXTENSIVE CAMPAIGN

Shipping Board Head Insists That People of This Country Must Be Taught to Think and Act in Terms of Sea.

New York.—The tales of the sea must become the gossip of the nursery and of the fireside if the United States hopes to develop a great, successful merchant marine and become a nation of shipping, in the opinion of John Barton Payne, chairman of the United States shipping board, who, in a message to the members of the Old Colony club, urges that a great public campaign be inaugurated to teach the people of America to "think and act in the language of shipping.

"The war has given us ships," says Mr. Payne. "We now have 1,300 shipping board ships, operating 41 trade routes, carrying our products under our own flag into the important world ports. By the end of 1920 this number will be increased to some 2,250. Sales of ships to Americans are being made, but the sales do not keep pace with the new launchings."

Is Pressing Problem.

The problem of establishing a permanent marine presses for solution, Mr. Payne emphasizes. He contends that no question of government ownership is involved. The question, he says, is not between public and private ownership, but between American and foreign ownership.

"We want an established American merchant marine; how it shall be owned is less important," he says. "We desire that every ship now government owned shall be sold to and be privately owned and operated by Americans for Americans, but that will come later. The chief thing in hand is to create a merchant marine."

Ships alone will not create a merchant marine, Mr. Payne reminds the Old Colony club members. "Indeed," he warns, "unless we have men, money and brains in the shipping business, ships may become a liability rather than an asset. How, then, may a merchant marine be established? It cannot be done in a day. It cannot be done by legislation. It requires time, habit, growth and individual capacity, initiative and enterprise.

"Many seem to think the shipping board can do this by reducing prices of ships, and instantly shipping men will spring up and all our ships will be bought by private owners, and, presto! a merchant marine is a fact. This is a serious error. A substantial reduction in price would undoubtedly sell some 300 ships, but this would not touch the problem. Ships cannot be sold in large numbers until the country is prepared to buy them. It is not now prepared.

"We have not acquired the ship habit. Who loans money on ships? Whom of your acquaintanceship would buy a ship mortgage? Are your neighbors sending their boys to sea? These things must come to pass before we are a maritime nation, prepared to buy over 2,000 ships.

"My conclusion is it is not possible to have a successful merchant marine until the country grows into the ship habit. The American newspapers and magazines must arouse the thinking men among manufacturers, investment bankers, farmers and labor to the necessity for a merchant marine; teach the people to think and act in the language of shipping. They must first understand, then they will act.

"Already great strides are being made. Even now we have 300 firms or companies operating shipping board ships. They employ on land and sea nearly 60,000 men in the service. We maintain a recruiting service and school to teach officers, engineers and sailors how to do the work and fit them for the sea.

"American insurance is essential. Companies must be encouraged and new ones established, that we be not dependent on foreign companies for our ship insurance. The American bureau of shipping must be developed and strengthened to the end that in all technical matters affecting shipping we may be independent of any foreign institutions. To accomplish this task, all Americans must pull together. The tales of the sea must become the gossip of the nursery and of the fireside."

CLOSE LARGE SHIPYARD

Philadelphia.—The world's greatest shipyard, at Hog Island, built to overcome the ravages of the German submarine and help win the war for the allies, will launch its last wartime ship in June and turn it over to the government in September. When the last of the fabricated ships of the wartime contract leaves the vast plant on the Delaware, Hog Island will have turned over to the government 122 vessels, a record of more than one ship a week since the first boat was sent overboard in August, 1918.

There have been several double launchings in one day, and on Memorial day last year five ships were launched in a little more than an hour, establishing a world's record.

When Hog Island was going at top speed during the war, with 50 ways occupied, approximately 35,000 men were employed. This force has been reduced to about 22,000, and after the last ship is launched in June the force will be reduced to 25 per cent of this number. These men will complete and equip the ships still left to be turned over to the government.

What is to become of Hog Island is the great problem confronting the owners of the yard. Recently the United States shipping board took over the title to the ground. Philadelphia has been urged to take over the yard and continue it either as a shipbuilding plant or convert it into a great terminal. Efforts to interest the state also have been made, but the amount of money required to buy the great plant has been a stumbling block. It was proposed that the state purchase the 900 acres with two miles of water front and lease them out to manufacturing and other concerns.

WAR SURGERY PASSES

Medical Science Makes Fine Record in War Period.

New Epoch to Medicine and Knife Brought by Great Conflict.

Washington.—What may be termed in medical science the "war surgery period" in America is about to pass.

This means that for the wounded in the war about all that human skill can do for them has been performed.

The number of wounded Americans in hospitals in Europe and America was 277,000 at the time of the armistice. The present number is 12,000, all in the fourteen military hospitals in the United States.

Surgeon General Ireland was told that it had been reported that in the last few months high-class specialists, surgeons and doctors had left the service to resume private practice and that many wounded were left in the hands of men of little experience.

"Nothing to it," said General Ireland. "By just saying the word every big specialist in the country would come running to help us."

General Ireland pointed out that surgeons had been reduced from 31,000 to 2,200 or 93 per cent, and Col. William H. Monerief, who had charge of all the war surgery, pointed out that 95 per cent of the major operations from overseas injuries have been performed.

"They all worked faithfully till the armistice was signed," said Colonel Moncrief. "From then on we had a hard time. But we discharged no men that we couldn't get along without."

Sister's Mother-In-Law.

Toledo, O.—Miss Florence Dewey, forty-three years of age, the daughter of J. N. Dewey, wholesale fish dealer, and William Lindsay, a Milwaukee business man, eighty years of age, were married in Milwaukee the other day. The marriage causes a peculiar relationship to exist in the two families. The new Mrs. Lindsay is a sister of Mrs. Herbert Lindsay, her husband's daughter-in-law. Through her marriage to Lindsay, Mrs. William Lindsay now becomes sister's mother-in-law, while Lindsay is his own son's brother-in-law.

English Church Refuses to Let Women Preach

London.—"In view of the statements of St. Paul on the subject of the uniform practice of the church in the past, it is not desirable to grant permission to women to speak and pray in consecrated buildings." This is the reply of the lower house of convocation to a suggestion from Canon Temple that women might be allowed to enter the ministry under regulations and conditions laid down by the bishop.

Spanish to Introduce Goatskin Clothes Here

Exhibitions will be given in several American cities and Spanish girl models will display the apparel. Many of the skins bear fine fur, Mr. Hernandez said, and certain grades are turned into men's clothing and women's dresses.

HOHENZOLLERN WEALTH VAST

Estates of Former Emperor Total a Billion Marks, Some Private, Some Public.

Berlin, Germany.—The value of the estates which belonged to the former German emperor and his family may reach 1,000,000,000 marks (normally $250,000,000). In attempting to fix the compensation to Count Hohenzollern for that part of his private property taken over by the state, the authorities have experienced difficulty in deciding what part belonged to the crown and how much was strictly private.

The difficulty arose in part from the fact that the appraisers have had to inventory properties which have been accumulating for five centuries.

The settlement will be dictated, it is stated, by a desire to offer to the Hohenzollerns a generous adjustment. Their acquiescence is said to have been obtained to the bill in the Prussian diet to pay the former emperor 100,000,000 marks (normally $25,000,000) for property taken and permit him to retain a number of castles, real estate and personal property.

Pupils Underweight.

Columbus, Ind.—Declaration on the part of parents of boys and girls attending the public schools of Columbus that their children were undernourished because of the high cost of living has resulted in an investigation of conditions. The investigation, as far as it has proceeded, shows that 46 per cent of the children are more than four pounds underweight. Only 12 per cent of the thousands that attend school have been found to be normal in poundage.

MODERN YOUTH HARD TO TRAP

Little Near-Tragedy Story That Is an Example of His Quick Wit and Duplicity.

Of course, he shouldn't have done it, and all that sort of thing, but both Hazel and Betty were charming girls, and it was summertime, and he was young, and he had gone and got himself engaged to both of them. He was sitting on the beach pondering the various problems this situation presented, when two soft hands were laid lightly over his eyes and a soft voice whispered at the back of his head, "Guess who?"

Now, the voices of Hazel and Betty were much alike, too much alike when heard as a whisper to make identification sure. And it didn't help any when the voice cooed—"I'll give you a hint—it's some one you told you loved."

Still he hesitated, his mind in a whirl. Should he name either girl and chance it? Already he felt a cooling of the air, as the voice continued: "Well, if that doesn't tell you who—"

"Of course I know who it is!" he exclaimed. "It is the prettiest, sweetest, dearest, smartest little girl in all the world!"

"Oh, you dear old boy!" she chirped in satisfied delight. "How did you really know for sure it was I?"

FASCINATED THE FAIR SEX

Marat, Repulsive in Person and Manners, Was Noted for His Attractiveness to Women.

Jean Paul Marat, one of the leading and most infamous figures of the French Revolution, was described by a contemporary as "beyond any question the ugliest man in the whole of France—and not merely ugly, but positively repulsive in person, habits and manners." And yet, in his early years, he was the most popular physician in Paris, not because of supposed professional skill, but on account of his attractiveness to women, the most wealthy and beautiful women of France daily crowding his consultation rooms, pushing, almost fighting, to get a word or perhaps, a smile from him. That he turned a cold shoulder to their allurements seemed only to inflame their ardor, and at one time he contemplated flight, so embarrassing became their attentions. Even when he contracted a loathsome skin disease while hiding in the sewers of Paris, fair women continued to adore him.
