The Emblem of
LIBERTY AND HUMANITY

WILLIAM N. ANDREWS, candidate on the Republican ticket for the nomination for Congress, is a man of fine character and ability and worthy of the support of all good citizens.

HARDING thinks Wilson and Bryan could boss the party. They could if Wilson could boss Bryan.

WHEN it comes to acting without precedent, the present occupant of the White House holds the blue ribbon.

THE Democratic Party must be growing angelic, judging it by the number of wings it is sprouting. It now has a Wilson wing, a McAdoo wing and numerous other smaller.

A Washington dispatch says the Democrats are worrying about the possibility that President Wilson may want a third term. Probably the Democrats can find enough to worry about if they confine themselves to the President's first and second term.

SECRETARY OF STATE Colby is sending the usual protests to Mexico over the killing of Americans. In time he may find the task as disagreeable as Mr. Lansing found it towards the end of his administration as head of the State Department.

MR. McADOO says he is waiting for the Democratic presidential nomination to seek him. He seems to be due for a long "watchful waiting." but then as the son-in-law of the originator of that policy, he should be conservant with the fact that there is no end to it.

THE framers of the Federal Constitution never dreamed that there never be a President who would refuse to join the Senate in giving peace to the United States. Probably that is why in the instrument they omitted any reference to the establishment of peace after a war.

BOTH of President Wilson's Industrial Conferences having failed to recommend any definite course of labor legislation approved by employers and employes, it is up to the Republicans to search for a solution of the big problem. The Republicans have never failed in any great crisis. They will not fail in this.

MR. WILSON seems to be slipping a bit. Heretofore he has felt equal to filling anything, all by his lonesome, including Paris, Versailles and the rest of Europe. But now he is taking along with him "several hundred" clerks, stenographers and others to help him fill Wood's Hole in little old Massachusetts.

The Denton National Bank
Denton, Md.

IS as unchangeable as the famous laws of the Medes and the Persians.

The individual who spends more than he earns—or, as is far too often the case, spends all before he earns—travels in a hopeless circle. He cannot advance, and "he who does not advance, recedes."

The person who ssves BEFORE he spends inevitably registers progress. Why not put the principle to the test?

A CAMPAIGN DIRECTOR SAID

"Let me tell you how much I appreciate your prompt action in installing telephone service for the Red Cross Christmas Seals Campaign. It took a lot off my mind that Friday morning while the fire was still burning, to know that we would have telephone service at our new headquarters within twenty-four hours."

Twenty-four hours after the fire the service had been installed.

Prompt action is the keynote of good service, and the Telephone Company is on its toes to provide just that kind.
