And would have had this Deponent ~~[illegible]~~ writt his the said Chesseldynes will To which this Deponent answered he was but an Indifferent Scholl ar And that his the said Chesseldynes Brothers could doe it better for him to which the said Chesseldyne answered that it was an Easie Matter to make his will for that if God Almighty had bestowed a thousand times as much on him he would give it all to his wife and Children And being asked if he would not leave his Sisters to the Vast of a ring a piece answerd he would not Impoverish his wife and Children for that his Sisters had Enough allready or to that Effect and told him this Deponent how he Intended to dispose of his Lands and personall Estate and as to his personall Estate the next day by his will to which this Deponent was an Witnesse he devised the same accordingly But made no Mention of the Lands according to his first Intention Thereupon the said Chesseldyne ordered this Deponent to call his the said Chesseldynes wife wch this Deponent did whom when she came he askt her before this Deponent if she was willing that he should Joyne his Brothers Grimsfield and Jowles with her in the Executorship who answered it was What he pleased or to that Effect whereto he replyed if you are soe Easie and Contented you shall be whole and sole Executrix your Self and Ordered her to fetch some paper and get Ink ready against Mr. Grimsfield gott up Thereupon in the Morning Mr. Grimsfield came and by his Orders all went out of the room Except him the said Grimsfield and the Testator who this Deponent believes writt the will And afterwards Mr Grimsfield called into the room William Groome Will Cooke and this Deponent to Subscribe as Witnesses thereto who — when they Came in the said Grimsfield carryed the will to the said Chesseldyne and askt him if he liked it saying that he had heard him read it once or twice to which Mr Chesseldyne said yes but let me see it and then as it seemed to this Deponent by the Motion of his Lips he read it throughout and said he liked it and Calling for pen and Ink went to sign it but their wanting Ink Enough to write his Name said he had given him a penn without Ink Thereupon he put more Ink into — it and then Mr Chesseldyne Executed it and then desired him to seale it up and give it to his the said Chesseldynes wife which the said Grimsfield did Accordingly to the Libellants and this deponent Saith that at that time he was of sound and perfect mind and Memory to the best of this Deponents knowledge and this deponent further Saith that about Eleven or twelve days after he made a Codicile to the same will all which time he seemed to be of sound and perfect mind
