CHAUTAUQUA MEANS EDUCATION—DON'T MISS IT

ENTERTAINED SOLDIERS

If we were to say that the Misses Hoyt formed the highest-grade Chautauqua company in the Chautauqua field, you would think we were exaggerating. So we won't say just that.

The Misses Frances and Grace Hoyt are so good at their job that they were the first company sent to France to entertain the soldiers when Director Pearson was in charge of the soldiers' entertainment.

Personally charming and artistically excellent, they are musicians of ability—but their work is popular too. They know the value of attention to detail, of atmosphere, of costuming.

Impersonations, action songs, ballads, duets and solos make a snappy program throughout. There are no waits. All is movement and action.

With them as pianist and accompanist is Harry Wilhelm, who will be remembered for his unusual ability. Mr. Wilhelm's work is mentioned many times in the reports of the committees (something rare for a pianist), requests are made for his return with which we are glad to comply. Perhaps no one on the circuit last year had more encores than did Mr. Wilhelm.

On the second day this trio of artists in two artistic and popular programs will fully maintain the standard set by their talented predecessors.

HAWAIIAN MUSIC

While there are several companies of Hawaiian Musicians in the country, George Vierra's group of talented artists sets the standard for all, and the company to appear on your program will include George W. Vierra himself. Although Hawaiian music is well known from the phonograph records and is justly popular because of its wonderful tone color and peculiarly human quality, the reproductions secured on the phonographs are of course far short of the originals, especially when the originals are rendered by a group of artists such as you are to hear on the last day. Weird Hawaiian cadences charm with their peculiar rhythm and the haunting Hawaiian melodies will linger long in your memory after the song is done. Steel guitar selections, by Mr. Kalani, are a feature of every program. His mastery of this distinctively Hawaiian instrument is complete. Whether technically trained or not, all music lovers can appreciate the beauty of the tones and chords of the ensemble and solo numbers of Vierra's Hawaiians which are poems of harmony. The two programs on the last day by this company will close a week of wonderful musical programs.

It is true that often the first active systematic savings effected has been through the opening of an account in bank.

With the saving spirit thus awakened it often follows as night the day that banking relations are established by that newly created deciple of thrift.

If you have no banking relations with any institution at this time do not allow the coming months of 1921 to pass without finding you associated in a business with some banking institution.

When you choose your bank you expect—

Safety for your deposits.
Certainty of accommodation.
Courteous and efficient handling of your banking transactions.

We want to see you start right.
