AN ORIENTAL PAGEANT

Julius Caesar Nayphe presents a program as unique as his name and just as Oriental. This young Athenian, born of the Grecian aristocracy and educated in Palestine and America, will give his lecture-demonstration—"An Oriental Pageant"—on the opening night.

Appearing in Oriental costumes of rare richness and beauty he delivers a marvelously clever and interest-arresting lecture on the life and customs of the peoples of the Near East. His lecture is timely. All are now interested in the lands and peoples he so vividly describes. From a Western Chautauqua town comes this tribute which will lead you to better anticipate the treat in store—"What a strange life his has been. A resident of Palestine, born in Athens, Greece, he attended Robert's University of Bagdad, Mesopotamia, then came to complete his education at Harvard University in our own country, where he learned our language and became a true American.

"His lecture yesterday was a novelty—it was almost a dream. In fact one might have thought it so had it not been for his endless string of witticisms, his excruciatingly funny descriptions and with it all his serious-minded expressions of the beautiful and true. One was entranced, delighted, mystified, amused beyond measure."

Hear Nayphe on the first night by all means. You will remember this brilliant young Athenian long after Chautauqua week is over.

FOR HEALTH'S SAKE

Dr. Carolyn Geisel, that inspired "apostle of health" is repeated over this circuit because you want her. Of course that's reason enough. She will have a new lecture, "Safe-guarding the Heart of the Nation" in which she takes up the important subject of the protection of the infants and children of the country.

You know Dr. Geisel, we need not write of her. You know she is a veritable dynamo of power, that she fairly lifts you from your chair by the unexpected virility of her delivery, that she starties you by her facts and convinces you with her logic, that she charms you with her humor and touches you with her pathos.

She is Carolyn Geisel, there's none other like her. There will be a crowd there on her day—and you'll be in it.
