A bird like this makes a model husband

HER NICE new husband.
STEPPED OUT of the house.
WHISTLING LIKE a bird.
WHICH ALARMED young wife.
ESPECIALLY WHEN.
SHE FOUND she'd picked
THE WRONG package.
AND INSTEAD of oatmeal.
HAD GIVEN him birdseed.
BUT DON'T think from this.
THAT EVERY guy.
YOU HEAR whistling.
HAS NECESSARILY.
BEEN ROBBING the canary.
OTHER THINGS inspire.
THE ALMOST human male.
TO BLOW through his lips.
AND MAKE shrill noises.
A RAISE, for example.
OR A day off when.
A DOUBLE header is on.
OR AN everyday thing.
LIKE A good drag.
ON ONE of those smokes
THAT SATISFY.
WHICH CERTAINLY are
THE REAL birdseed.
FOR MAKING men.
TRILL THEIR pipes for joy.
SO LADIES, if hubby.
GOES AWAY whistling,
YOU NEEDN'T worry.
ALL'S SWELL.

WHEN you say that Chesterfields "satisfy," you're whistling. You know—the instant you light one—that the tobaccos in it are of prime selection, both Turkish and Domestic. And the blend—well, you never tasted such smoothness and full-flavored body! No wonder the "satisfy-blend" is kept secret. It can't be copied.

Did you know about the Chesterfield package of 10?

BELL OPERATORS AWARDED MEDALS

Three Maryland young women have been awarded the Theodore N. Vail Distinguished Service Medals for heroic action. One of the young women is a Baltimorean, Miss Mae P. Seibert, 733 East 30th Street, and was the Private Branch Exchange operator at Mt. Holley Inn the night of December 2 when the hotel burned. The other two are Miss Naomi K. Workman, Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Company operator at Ocean City, Maryland; and Miss Helen B. Adams, Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Company operator at Cambridge, Md. They will be given medals with citations, descriptive of the action which impelled the Theodore N. Vail Memorial Committee of the Telephone Company to make awards. The Vail medal was recently established by the Bell system as a memorial to the late Theodore N. Vail. The citations are:

Miss Naomi K. Workman, a cripple who can only walk with the aid of crutches, remained on duty at the telephone office at Ocean City, Maryland for fifteen hours during the worst storm experienced there in many years. This storm was the cause of damage estimated at $250,000. The boardwalk was ruined and several houses were completely demolished, the basement and first floor of practically every house in the town being under water. The Coast Guard was unable to make its customary patrol and the water supply was broken and the electric light plant put out of service.

On June 13, 1920, a severe electrical storm in the vicinity of Travers Wharf killed one of a party of young people who were bathing in the vicinity and stunned several others. One of the party immediately hurried to the nearest telephone, a rural line about two miles distant, to secure assistance. When the call came in at the Cambridge, Md. Central Office, the storm was at its worst, and Miss Helen B. Adams, the operator who answered the call, heard someone say, "Send a doctor quick, someone is killed." The line then went out of servcie and Miss Adams was unable to get any further details. She immediately got in touch with a doctor and told him of the telephone call, advising him to go to Travers Wharf as the call was from a rural line in that vicinity and that was a popular place for people to swim. It later develops that one person had been killed, two others severely injured, several slightly stunned, and they all were taken to Cambridge Hospital, and the two who had been severely injured would undoubtedly have died if it had not been for the prompt work of Miss Adams in sending a doctor.

Miss Mae P. Seibert, P. B. X. operator at Mt. Holly Inn, Baltimore, came on duty about 6:30 P. M., Tuesday, December 2, 1920, and was about to take her place at the switchboard to relieve a Miss Walpole, when one of the guests called out, "There is a fire somewhere upstairs," and another guest said, "The roof is on fire." As the elevator, located directly alongside the switchboard, came down, Miss Seibert smelled smoke, and immediately called the fire department. She then notified all the guests in their rooms, and continued to call the room telephones until the service was put out of order, due to the outside trunks to the central office being burned through. It was some time before the fire department responded to the alarm, and in the meantime, Miss Seibert, together with Miss Wampole and Mr. Swartz, a manager, carried out of the burning building what records and books they could, and locked other valuables in the safe only leaving the building when the elevator supports were burned thru, allowing the car to crash to the first floor, when they were ordered out by the police.

Attention is called to the statements of the Denton National Bank the Peoples Bank, and the Farmers and Merchants State Bank, which are published in this issue of the AMERICAN UNION. These reports show the condition of the banks at the close of business, June30th.

Who remembers when girls wore high collars with white ruching at the top that gave their heads the effect of an inverted lamp shade?

LESS LATIN AND MORE OF THIS

The above lesson is one of which every man, woman and child in the community should be interested. It is a lesson of co-operation between the home merchant, manufacturer and consumer—an appeal to our community spirit—a plea for us to "get together."

A little less Latin and more civic pride should be taught our children. They receive their education through taxation of the home merchant and citizen. So they are never too young to be shown the folly of sending money away from their home town. Teach your children to respect the hand that feeds them and to honor the town that contributes to their welfare. Teach them that buying away from their home town is a menace to the growth of the community in which they live.

MORAL—A lesson learned early in life is never lost.
