PRESIDENT PAYS ELOQUENT TRIBUTE TO G. A. R. VETS IN LETTER TO COMMANDER

Washington, Aug. 23—President Harding has been compelled "because of the requirements of public business" to decline the invitation of the G. A. R. to attend its 55th national encampment to be held in Indianapolis the week of September 25. The President's' reply to the Hon. William F. Ketcham, Commander-in-Chief of the G. A. R., states that it is with the profoundest regret that he cannot attend, but at that time it will be absolutely impossible for him to absent himself from Washington. Continuing, he says: "I am sure that I do not need to tell you that if it were among the possibilities you would be assured of my immediate and eager acceptance.

"The years wil not be many more during which it will be possible for us to pay the tribute of love and reverence to the men who served their country during the crucial struggle of its existence. Their services, neither we nor our posterity can ever forget. As the years pass and the tremendousness of that conflict is in perspective magnified rather than diminished in our eyes, we realize more and more what a supreme effort was put forth during those four tremendous years for the cause of human freedom and the unity of our own beloved country. The heroes of those years taught us the lessons and handed down to us the inspiration which have done most to insure the maintenance of the national honor and integrity through the decades which have since passed.

"We have come now to a time when there is the spiritual essence as well as the political fact of established and maintained national unity. For it, and for the great part which it enabled our country to play in the recent crisis of the world's history, we owe everything to the men who saved the Nation during the great Civil War. To them and to their members will ever go out the love, the affection and the gratitude of a united Nation."

PEACE TREATY TO BE SIGNED AT BERLIN

Washington, Aug. 24.—Details of the peace treaty between the United States and Germany were laid before Republican members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee by President Harding and Secretary Hughes at a conference held at the White House early this morning.

Terms of the treaty were said to have met with no opposition by any of the majority members of the Foreign Relations Committee and it was declared that all gave to it their cordial approval.

Hopes for Early Ratification

The president, it was stated, hopes for ratification at an early date. It was explained, however, that he would not ask the Senate to forego its 30-day recess, set to begin tonight, inasmuch as it was desired that the German Reichstag and the Senate consider the treaty at the same time and the German legislative body does not convene until September 20.

Republican members of the Senate committee attending the conference refused to discuss the terms of the treaty but it was learned that it is a comparatively short document.

Is Mainly a Peace Treaty

The official statement with respect to the conference made at the White House emphasized that the treaty was primarily a peace treaty and that its ratification would be followed by a treaty of commerce and amity.

If you put off until tomorrow the things you should do today, occasionally somebody will come along and do them for you.

BE A BOOSTER

When the people stand back of the merchants you depend on it that the merchants will stand back of the town. When a merchant prospers he is sure to invest his money in enterprises at home that will give more men and women work at good wages because he knows that plenty of work and good pay makes more business for him. Patronizing home merchants is co-operation between buyer and seller and always boosts a town.

MORAL—If the home town is not prosperous, organize and co-operate and make it so.

NAVY DEPARTMENT OWNS SOME "RARE OLD" REAL ESTATE PROPERTY

Washington, Aug. 22—In going over an inventory of all property owned by the U. S. Navy Department, which was ordered prepared by the new administration, it was discovered that Uncle Sam owns some "rare old" real estate. Probably the most valuable is 1,100 acres of white oak timber near Blythe's Island, Georgia, which was purchased before the Civil War at a time when navies were built of wood. The battle of the Monitor and Merrimac sounded the knell of the wooden fighting ship and with it passed the value of the government's oak forest—insofar as its use for building fighting ships was concerned. Its value today is purely a commercial one, which is not small.

Another piece of real estate which probably everybody connected with the Navy Department—except the caretaker and the paymaster—was ignorant of is a strip of land at Sackett's Harbor, N. Y. It was purchased in 1814, some say for navy yard purposes. The navy hasn't used it for at least a generation although it has paid a caretaker to watch over it. Still another piece of property discovered by the inventory is 141 acres of sand—just, plain sand—at Dry Tortugas, purchased in 1845, probably for a naval station.

Other pieces of obsolete property have been discovered by the inventory and they will be disposed of and the money turned into the public treasury. Secretary Denby and Assistant Secretary Roosevelt expect to realize a tidy sum from their "housecleaning" cut down their operating expenses and get the Navy Department so "shipshape" that nothing connected with it wil be useless and "in the way."
