4th Dis't. League of Women Voters

The League of Women Voters of the 4th district will hold their regular meeting Monday evening at 7:45 o'clock, in the auditorium of the Preston High School.

The chief features of the meeting will be the discussion of plans for the "Citizenship Schools" and a get-together meeting of the legislative candidates on the proposed date, October 25.

Everyone is invited to attend.

Safe to Sow Wheat Now

The damage done to many wheat fields last season by the "fly" should be sufficient to keep any farmer from sowing his wheat early. It is a well established fact that early sown wheat is most subject to the attack of this insect. Sowing can probably be done with safety after the 15th of this month. Before that time it would seem that a farmer would be taking chances.

The Teacher Training Class of the Methodist Episcopal Church began its season's work last Monday night. The meetings are held every Monday night at 8 o'clock in the old parsonage.

See Miss Myrtle Dukes if you would like to join.

Why I Shred My Fodder

For years and years I fed fodder direct from the shock. Daily through the fall and winter I would drive into the fields and haul up the supply necessary for the day. Often when the snow and ice lay deep over the ground I have been compelled to pry the fodder loose from its frozen moorings. On those nights when I could hear the snow and sleet pelting against the windows I would shiver in anticipation of the cold, disagreeable task awaiting me on the morrow. Now, thanks to the corn shredder I no longer torture myself in this way.

I find that shredded fodder is a wonderfully easy feed to provide. I constructed a rough shed to hold the fodder. The framework was of heavy poles, the sides of woven wire, and the roof of 3-ply prepared roofing laid over rough boards. On one side there was an arrangement of slats through which the animals could eat. At shredding time I fill this shed to the eves with the shredded fodder. The animals eat at their will. Of course, the fodder from time to time has to be forked down to the slatted openings. However, this is such a small task compared with the daily visits to the field that it seems as nothing. I am very sure that cows and horses get vastly more good from fodder in the shredded form than as it comes direct from the shock.—E. V. L. in Farm Life.

FARM FACTS

Fall plowing is especially valuable for heavy and weedy soils. The action of the winter freezing will be most beneficial on the soil, and the plowing checks the weed growth.

Many times the plows and other tools were put away in poor condition. It is worth while now to go over all the implements, clean them good, then rub them well with coal oil, and lastly smear all the polished metal with vaseline. Next spring you will bless the day you did it.

There is only one thing that brings a rat to your place, and that is his desire for food. If one will make certain the corn cribs, grain bins and feed boxes are rat-proof, they will not stay long, and the premises will be kept more free of rats than if one kept a whole barn full of cats.

There are still hundreds of farmers in every county who do not test and weigh each cow's milk. But even on these farms, there is one month when each cow should be thoroughly tested and her value as a milker determined, at least approximately. That is in October, when cows come in off the pasture and a long period of heavy feeding is ahead.

If the young calves were neglected and their horns allowed to grow, it is a good plan to have them dehorned now that warm weather is past. The stock will soon be spending much of their time in sheds and stalls, and a lot of damage to each other can be done with horns, besides their being a constant menace to human life.

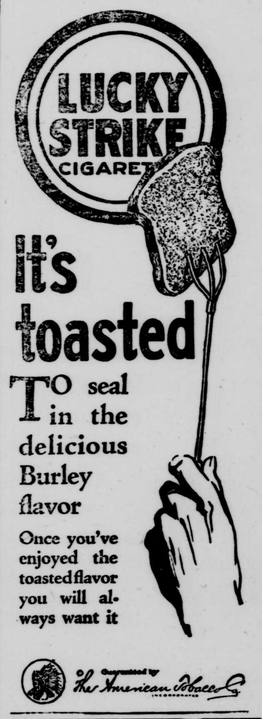

Rapid growth can be put on hogs this month. The tang of frost whets their appetites as well as man's. It is wise to remember that feeding corn alone is mighty poor business. But corn supplemented by tankage and some green stuff, such as pumpkins or some root crops, makes almost an ideal ration.

Epworth League Convention

The Epworth League Convention will be held at Centreville, Md., on October 12th and 13th.

Mr. T. W. Bradley and Mrs. Newman Rickards were elected delegates, with Miss Martin and Mrs. Hegeman as reserves. Several of the younger people are planning to attend the convention. A fine program has been arranged, with prominent speakers from away.

Somebody asks about the biggest hen egg. A report some time since from Vernon, Tex., says Mrs. John Floyd of that place exhibited an egg which weighed four ounches and measured 6¼ inches around. The egg was laid by a Rhode Island Red hen belonging to Mrs. Floyd. It is believed to hold the world record for weight and size of a hen egg.

Reply to "Old Line Republican"

To the Editor The American Union:

Replying to an article in your last week's issue signed "Old Line Republican," where he states among other things that I bought a scow for ten dollars and sold it to the County Commissioners for one thousand dollars.

I wish to say, that I never sold a scow to the County Commissioners at any time, at any price, as the auditor's report will substantiate; but that there is just about as much truth in this statement as any other the writer made, or that is likely to be made or published against me by any one during this campaign.

Very respectfully,
