Who Owns The Bell Telephone System?

SOME people look upon the Bell System as a large corporation owned by a group of capitalists.

On the contrary, the stock of the Company is owned by 175,000 people. This does not include many thousands who are owners of the Company's bonds, or those who are paying for stock in installments.

More than half of these stockholders are women. The average number of shares held is 30 and no shareholder owns as much as one-half of one per cent. of the stock. More than one-third of the stockholders own five shares or less each.

These people buy this stock because they believe in the efficiency of the organization and the integrity of its management. They believe their money is safe and they expect to receive a continuous dividend on their investment.

The further extension of our system is dependent upon these people and others who may be attracted as investors. If we are going to continue to meet the growing demands for extension of our service, it is imperative that these people shall continue to receive satisfactory pay for the use of their money.

How to Prevent Hog Cholera

Hog cholera has broken out on a number of Caroline County farms. Hog owners should take every precaution to prevent an infection of their herd and to keep close watch for any sick hogs.

Some of the things Dr. Atherton of the University of Maryland recommends are as follows:

1. Stay away from other peoples' hogs; keep people away from your hogs.
your premises for any purpose.
3. Keep your dog tied up; keep other dogs away.
4. Promptly burn or bury the car- your premises.
5. See that other people do the same.
6. If a hog in your herd appears sick, lose no time in calling a competent person, veterinarian if possible, to examine it.
7. If evidence hf hog cholera is found in your herd, if there is or has been a possibility of exposure, lose no time in vaccinating.
8. Advise your neighbor of the above noted outbreak.
9. If you know of sick hogs in the county, notify your county agent.

For a time County Agents were permitted to treat hogs for cholera, however, there has been made a ruling which prevents them from so doing. It is possible for me to have a state veterinarian diagnose a case of sick hogs where cholera is suspected. If it proves to be cholera, owner to have a local veterinarian do the actual vaccinating.

The state veterinarian will recomcautions to be taken against the possibility of a future outbreak. He will send out notices to neighboring hog owners warning them of the outbreak and suggesting means to prevent their herds from becoming infected.

Farmers suspecting hogs sick from cholera should notify me and I will see that they get the proper assistance.

W. COLLINS THOMAS,
County Agent.

When To Shoot In France

They set out to shoot rabbits—two Frenchmen and an Englishman. All were eager, anxious, active. Suddenly they beheld a rabbit. The Englishman elevated his gun.

"No, do not shoot!" cried his companions. "That is Mimi. We never shoot at Mimi."

The Englishman, wondering, disgusted, desisted. Another rabbit. Again the gun of the Englishman was elevated, but he was not permitted to fire.

"That is the adorable Lulu," they cried. "C'est un vrai bijou! We never shoot at Lulu.

When a third rabbit appeared the Englishman was tired, but his companion cried out:

"Shoot, shoot! That is Alfonse! We always shoot at Alfonse."—Le Sport (Paris).
