PAPINI'S "LIFE OF CHRIST"

There is no narrative with a more gripping appeal than Giovanni Papini's "Life of Christ"—rated as one of the most engrossing volumes of the present century. Papini was originally a believer of Christ, but afterward drifted into atheism. The World War brought him to his knees before God again, and he wrote "The Life of Christ" with the avowed hope of turning the world again toward the Savior. The power of the story on its readers may be appreciated from the fact that half a million copies have already been sold here and abroad. With their usual enterprise the Hearst newspapers have secured the exclusive rights for the publication of this sublime story which will begin in the New York Sunday American next Sunday, April 6th, and continue in the daily and Sunday editions until completed. "The Life of Christ" by Papini is the most notable contribution to the literature of the current century and as a newspaper serial, should command extraordinary attention.

We have a few boxes of writing paper which we are selling at reduced prices. The American Union.
