FARM BUREAU NEWS

WORCESTER COUNTY PROFITS BY WOOL-TO-BLANKET CAMPAIGN

During the last five years farmers of Worcester county have disposed of between 8 and 9 tons of wool through its manufacture into 1,760 pairs of high grade blankets and automobile robes. Blankets made from wool which was pooled during the wool-to-blanket campaign last July under the direction of County Agent Oswald in cooperation with the Farm Bureau members of that county who composed the campaign committee, have just been received in Snow Hill, and are being disposed of to families in that vicinity.

According to advices from Snow Hill, this arrangement has not only been the means of aiding the farmers and Farm Bureau members in the realization of much better prices for their wool, but has enabled purchasers to secure a very superior grade of blanket for home use and at a price much below the average purchase price of blankets and robes of a similar grade and quality. Some of these farmers still have a surplus of these blankets made from this year's wool and will be glad to dispose of them at reasonable prices. The blankets from this year's wool crop are said to be of unusually fine quality and extra large. Information may be had concerning these robes and blankets by applying to the County Agent's office in Snow Hill.

The Maryland Farm Bureau Federation, acting in co-operation with the Salisbury-Wicomico Chamber of Commerce, Salisbury, and the county Farm Bureaus of the Eastern Shore of Mary land, has just come out victorious in a fight to prevent the putting into effect of a higher freight rate on petroleum and its products by the transportation lines serving that section of the state. M. Melvin Stewart of the Farm Bureau Federation, and W. T. Gardner, of the Salisbury-Wicomico Chamber of Commerce, were the leaders in the protests that were made to the Interstate Commerce Commission against the proposed increase.

Recent developments show that the Pennsylvania Railroad system, after noting numerous protests to the new and higher tariff scale, cancelled the rates under suspension by the I. C. C. in the proceedings and the hearing which was scheduled to take place in Salisbury on October 13 was likewise called off.

This means a complete victory for the farmers and merchants of the Eastern Shore of Delaware, Maryland and Virginia and insures a continuation of the present freight rates on petroleum. It further shows what may be accomplished for the farmers when they use their Farm Bureau organization to cooperate with the other interests in fighting unfair and burdensome freight rates.

Several months ago the farmers and business men of this same section were called upon to protest against an increase in the class freight tariff of the same railroad system. The State Farm Bureau and the Salisbury-Wicomico Chamber of Commerce are active in this fight also. The case is now pending before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

HUNTERS, SAVE THE WOODS!

With the autumn hunting season getting under way in the northeast and in the south, the Forest Service, United States Department of Agriculture, issues an appeal to all sportsmen to guard against forest fires.

Ordinarily, say forestry officials, a great number of devastating forest fires are caused each fall by hunters. These fires not only destroy valuable timber, but also the better forms of game animals, and thereby defeat the plans of the hunters themselves.

Those whose duty it is to guard forest lands from fire are usually apprehensive of the fall hunting season. From bitter experience these men have learned that hunters are frequently careless with matches, smoking tobacco, and camp fires. A great many sportsmen's associations have for years taken measures to prevent this carelessness by their members. Other clubs and organizations are following suit.

In fact, the time is rapidly approaching when hunters everywhere will seek the woods with full knowledge of forest fire conditions, and these hunters will be of invaluable assistance in protecting the country's forests rather than being the agencies through which so many fires are started.

The Federal Government employs its rangers, guards and lookouts to protect the National forests. Most states likewise have fire wardens and rangers with police powers. Hunters should take warning and be the first to protect the woods. They should erase from the records any reference to forest fires traceable to hunters.

The citizens of no community want its beautiful landscape blotted out with smoke from burning woodlands.

Bebe War Entertainer in "The Crowded Hour"

In "The Crowded Hour," her latest picture as a Paramount star, Bebe Daniels has the role of a telephone operator in a New York hotel, who, through an amateur performance on the Bowery, is brought to the attention of a prominent Broadway theatrical producer, becomes the hit of the "Follies" and then, upon America's entry into the World War," goes overseas with the boys as a "Y" entertainer.

"The Crowded Hour" was adapted to the screen by John Russell from the Jane Cowl stage success by Channing Pollock and Edgar Selwyn. It's a romantic thriller with Kenneth Harlan, T. Roy Barnes, Helen Lee Worthing and others playing in support of the star.

The picture is not all war stuff, tho that part of the production is said to far surpass anything of the kind ever before attempted for the screen and carries with it wallop after wallop for audiences. There is plenty of New York atmosphere—the Bowery, the flaming forties of Broadway, Park avenue wealth and Seventh avenue delicatessen stores.

There's comedy, too. Every one who has seen "Miss Bluebeard" knows what to expect of Bebe and Barnes at an amateur performance on the Bowery in "get-ups" more eccentric than Fanny Brice ever dreamed of.

Frank Morgan, Alice Chapin and Armand Cortez are other big names in the cast.

"The Crowded Hour" at the Palace Theatre, Denton, Tuesday, October 27.

FALL SCHEDULE GOES INTO EFFECT

The fall and winter schedule of the Child Health Conferences of the State Bureau of Child Hygiene, according to an announcement from the State Department of Health, goes into effect this week. In addition to the conferences that are held all the year around at regular intervals. in selected places throughout the state, specially arranged conferences have been held all the summer, in connection with the visits of the child healthmobile in the counties on the Western and Eastern Shores.

Eleven counties were visited by the healthmobile; stops were made in 89 towns; 1466 children were given a careful physical examination and their mothers were advised as to the general care of diet. The examinations were made by a physician, especially trained in the care of children, assisted by the public health nurse. The children ranged in age from babies in arms to youngsters getting ready for school.

In accordance with the rule of the Bureau in regard to these health conferences, no medical treatments were given, but children in need of special care were referred by letters, giving the result of the examination, to their family physicians.

A large proportion of the children examined during the summer needed dental care and were referred to their family dentists. The Bureau of Child Hygiene owns a portable dental equipment and follow up dental clinics were arranged for children on request in Calvert, Charles and St. Mary's counties. At these dental clinics 114 children were given much needed care. The dentists were kept busy filling, extracting and cleaning teeth, the records showing that 114 fillings were put in and 183 teeth extracted.
