FARM BUREAU NEWS

Farm Bureau forces in nine counties of Maryland have united in a big effort to increase their numbers thru an intensive membership campaign to be conducted during the month of November. This campaign, for which weeks of preparation has been made, will be conducted simultaneously and with every indication that it will be successful.

One of the features of the preliminary work was the training school for campaign managers which was held in Baltimore during the last week of October and which was attended by the county Farm Bureau secretaries, the county agricultural agents, and representatives of other agencies more or less interested in the campaign, its success, etc. From Monday until Friday of last week these men and women attended the sessions of the "school" which were held in the Hotel Rennert, and were given ample opportunity to learn more about the Farm Bureau and its worthwhileness to the agricultural interests of the state as well as to the individual farmers.

Judging from the preliminary plans, it is expected that this campaign will be successful and surely the plans are on a more extensive and elaborate scale than any campaign of a similar nature yet put on in this state. Following the week's training in Baltimore the Farm Bureau campaign managers and county agents have returned to their respective counties where, in accordance with plans already made they wil proceed to the work of erecting the county campaign organization

Meetings and rallies will be held in various parts of the counties during the next 10 days and these will culminate in the final solicitation work which will occupy at least three or four days. The state and county Farm Bureau officers and leaders and all others interested are bending every effort toward the complete success of this membership campaign.
