When winter's snow is falling outside—and the wind roars through the trees—when the friendly logs blaze up in the fireplace —have a Camel!

WHEN it's a winter night and the day that was busy is done. And outside the snow is driving through the trees before the wind. When, inside, the crackling logs catch fire and burst into flames above the hearth—have a Camel!

For Camel is the tried and trusted friend of millions of experienced smokers. Whether your returning steps bring you home tired or jubilant, no sweeter, more mellow fragrance ever came to you from a cigarette. There's not a cigaretty after-taste, not a tired taste in a whole county full of Camels Only mild and mellow flavor, deep-down contentment in your home or any home where Camels are lighted.

So this night, before your roaring logs of oak or hickory—have a Camel. Open up the famous package of Camels and know the fragrance, the contentment that brings happiness to millions. Put a Camel between you and a light and taste the mellowest, most delectable blend ever made into a cigarette.

Have a Camel!

No other cigarette in the world is like Camels. Camels contain the choicest Turkish and domestic tobaccos. The Camel blend is the triumph of expert blenders. Even the Camel cigarette paper is the finest—made especially in France. Into this one brand of cigarettes is concentrated the experience and skill of the largest tobacco organization in the world.

Our highest wish, if you do not yet know Camel quality, is that you try them. We invite you to compare Camels with any cigarette made at any price.

SHORE NEWS

Chestertown, Jan. 18—Campaigns being planned by the large cities contiguous to the Maryland-Delaware peninsula for more stringent regulations regarding the distribution and production of milk, notably Philadelphia and Wilmington, have stirred the dairymen of the peninsula not only to securing the best sanitary arrangements possible in production, but there has developed a desire not heretofore manifest for the best kind of cows from which the milk is to be produced.

Not many years ago the average farmer on the peninsula was not much concerned with the breeding and health of his cows, just so they produced the desired quantity of milk.

With the advance of modern ideas and methods the dairyman finds himself up against a proposition which requires a virtual revolution in the quality of his milk, regardless of the quantity, and he is face to face with the problem of being compelled to produce only the purest grade of milk if he is to continue in a business which has come to be the greatest asset on the farm.

The farmer today has become greatly interested in the health of his dairy herd, and he is a stickler for knowing that his herd is immune from tuberculosis, because it is to his financial interest, and he is therefore learning to co-operate more and more with those associations which control the distribution of his product and to which he must look for his profits from the industry.

Today farmers in Kent, and the entire peninsula, are turning their attention to raising and breeding only years ago, a mongrel herd of cattle pure-bred stock, whereas, only a few could be found on many farms.

About Your Health

Things You Should Know

by John Joseph Gaines, M. D.

CROUP.

The word "croup" is ages old. It has no scientific meaning, but no mother is mistaken in what it implies. Its presence is announced by a drowsy, feverish condition of the baby, and by a sharp, ringing, yet hoarse cough, unlike that of most other diseases. The symptoms are intensified as night approaches. At bedtime the little fellow is hard to arouse—again the hoarse, loud, brassy cough. The pulse is quick, the breathing rapid. Yes, it's croup.

Other, and more serious diseases of the little throat, exhibit radically different symptoms; diptheria has very slight if any cough. Scarlet fever and measles begin with slight, frequent, rather loose cough, with no outcry during the effort. Pneumonia lays a heavy hand on the lung; the breathing is painful, shallow, and the cough is suppressed as far as possible, because very painful. Every mother should know these simple points in diagnosis.

Croup should be "nipped in the bud" if possible. You can do much if your physician is not available. He may be away on a long call and cannot come for several hours. Give baby a large dose of castor oil, after a brief, warm, sponge bath. Try to induce sweating as soon as you can. Give the juice of a roasted onion—it is sedative to the inflamed air-passages—ten drops every fifteen minutes. Rub the skin over the throat with a mild irritating ointment. If you have a family medicine-closet, maybe you have a small bottle of tincture of aconite. With a dropper put five drops in a four-ounce bottle of water. For a child six months old or older, give a teaspoonful of the mixture every hour, being careful to cease giving as perspiration begins.

EMBROIDERED SIGNATURES.

The name may be transferred from a letter or from any piece of paper. Use fine embroidery thread and a fine needle. The lines are given a raised effect by working over and over a strand of heavier thread as I have shown at A. Only one or two threads of the material directly on the outline should be taken on the needle for each stitch and the strand of thread used for padding should be kept perfectly smooth. In all double portions of the letters as shown here in the M and the A the padding thread is held double so that at these points you work over two threads at one time.

READERS:—If you have dressmaking problems let Ruth Wyeth Spears solve them for you. Address her in care of this newspaper.

Missus—Aren't you the same man I gave a mince pie to last summer?

Tramp—No ma'am, and what's more the Dr. says I will never be.

"Don't you think I sing with feeling?"

"No, if you had any, you wouldn't sing."

Hall's Catarrh Medicine

Those who are in a "run-down" condition will notice that Catarrh bothers them much more than when they are in good health. This fact proves that while Catarrh is a local disease, it is greatly influenced by constitutional conditions.

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is a Combined Treatment, both local and internal, and has been successful in the treatment of Catarrh for over forty years

Sold by all druggists.
