When the most glamourous picture is over—and you come outside to the bright lights and the brighter laughter of friends —have a Camel!

WHEN the exciting scenes are over. And you leave the great theatre thrilled at what you've seen. When, as the organ peals forth its rolling music, you come outside with jovial, laughing friends—have a Camel!

For nothing else on earth could be so refreshing among the great white lights as Camel. Camel adds of its own bright goodness to the enjoyment of every pleasing scene. Camel is the hale friend and companion for eventful days and carefree evenings. Here is something worth writing in words of gold: "Camels never tire the taste, or leave a cigaretty after-taste, no matter how freely you smoke them." And what's more, you can't buy choicer tobaccos or more perfect blending, no matter how much you pay.

So, this night as you leave for the brilliant scenes. And when the big show is finished and you've seen life in its tense and purposeful moments—know then the mellowest fragrance that ever came from a cigarette.

Have a Camel!

No other cigarette in the world is like Camels. Camels contain the choicest Turkish and domestic tobaccos. The Camel blend is the triumph of expert blenders. Even the Camel cigarette paper is the finest—made especially in France. Into this one brand of cigarettes is concentrated the experience and skill of the largest tobacco organization in the world.

Our highest wish, if you do not yet know Camel quality, is that you try them. We invite you to compare Camels with any cigarette made at any price.

SING AND SMILE

If you can, sing a song as you journey along,
Over mountain or valley or plain;
Tho' heavy the load and rugged the road,
And lofty the heights to attain.
For some one behind new courage may find,
And hope that will brighten their way;
So just sing a song, as you travel along,
Perhaps 'twill cheer some one today.

If you can, wear a smile, laugh once in a while,
Although lone and dreary the road.
Trouble coming? it may—but don't meet it half way,
For that only adds to the load.
Your smile and your song may help someone along
Who has dropped by the way in despair,
So just sing and smile—laugh once in a while,
And scatter good cheer everywhere.

Sing, smile and be kind, for you always can find
In the world, wherever you go,
Somebody whose need of a kind word or deed
Is greater, perhaps, than you know.
Your smile may make glad some heart that is sad,
Your song may help lighten the load
Of toil and of care that is found everywhere
On the journey o'er life's rugged road.—Selected.

He (taking a correspondence course in love-making)—"Come, walk with me, dear and we will pick violets."

She—"But there are no violets this time of the year."

He—"Dang it, that's right. I must have prepared the wrong lesson."

THE MONKEYS TRIED IT. IMAGINATION'S POWER. CORN LOW, HOGS HIGH. ZERO WILL HELP.

Charles Garland, an earnest young New Englander, inherited a large fortune, refused at first to take the money, saying no man had a right to money not earned. He changed his mind and drifted into a sidetrack. Convinced, perhaps, that he was an original thinker, he decided that marraige was an unnecessary institution. Now he is arrested, because a young child born on his farm died, having for its mother an unmarried girl.

The young man should realize that his experience was tried by our alleged simian ancestors for thousands of years before man appeared, and abandoned by our human ancestors of 100,000 years ago.

Not to do away with marriage, but to make men WORTHY of it, is the task of the human race. "Away from the monkey life" is a better motto than "Back to nature."

Imagination is more powerful than fact. James Dempsey, not the Dempsey you mean, owns a restaurant. Two men entered, held him up, he delivered his money.

A policeman dashed in, arrested the man "pointing the gun" at Dempsey. The only gun was two fingers that had been pointed.

The second man, escaped, came back that afternoon, pointed one finger at Dempsey, and the latter again gave up what money he had.

Corn prices are low, "hogs are high." This puzzles farmers. Corn and hog prices should go up and down together, since the pig is really corn changed into meat. There is always something to puzzle and distress the farmer. He has no sufficient national organization, and after election day he hasn't much influence in government, compared with railroads and other big financial units.

At the midday luncheon club in New York you can see eating at the same time those that control ten thousand millions of dollars. Farmers are scattered all over the land, and if you could get them together there wouldn't be any hall that could hold them.

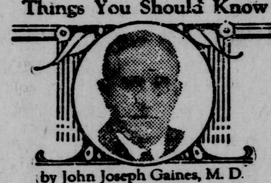

Uncle Sam is riding along on velvet. Severe competition abroad in the world's markets at home is said to be ahead of our producers. But everything, including Providence, seems to be with us now.

Citizens of Minnesota get from their State University interesting information about their State. It contained the beginning of life on this planet, in the form of algae, two hundred million years ago. The first life came as soon as the earth's temperature fell below the boiling point.

One of the first real animals was an ancestor of our frogs and salamanders, living on land and in water, with a foot four inches in diameter. It is from the five toes of the salamander, you know, that we get the five fingers on each hand, according to the evolutionists.

Mathematicians wish that salamander had had six toes. That would have given us the duodecimal system instead of the decimal system, which is based on our ten fingers and thumbs. The duodecimal system would be a great improvement on the decimal, twelve having four divisors, ten having only two.

Mr. Green, of the American Federation of Labor, predicts an early end of the coal strike, now distressing the East and other parts of the country. The thermometer at zero may help. Americans are "docile," as Northcliffe said. You must pinch their fingers with the cold or pinch their pockets hard to make them take action. And, unlike mine workers and owners, the people are not organized.

THE CHILD'S THROAT.

Be very vigilant in caring for the child's throat in winter.

Formaldehyde in solution is the most effective, reliable of the fumigants with which I am acquainted. In epidemics of infectious disease it is a servant of inestimable value. The case of scarlet fever demands isolation and quarantine, but the rest of the family may be protected by the judicious, timely use of formaldehyde. Kept sprinkled about the bedding, clothing and rugs, it is fatal to germs which are abroad in the air. Formaldehyde is a good defense against pneumonia, small-pox, and influenza. It should be used in forty percent solution, and its use limited to a point where it gently irritates the eyes and nasal passages. It is never used in contact being too strong, but should be carefully sprinkled about the room and breathed in with the air which it purifies.

Germs that attack the throat are among the easiest to destroy, if combatted early—before they become deeply imbedded in the tissues. Even a weak solution of boracic acid is effective if used as a gargle, spray, or nasal douche at the first sign of disturbance. Babies and small children may be sprayed with a suitable atomizer for the nose and throat after trips through dust, or after attendance on winter gatherings where somebody coughs and thus sets free infectious bacteria. A good plan is to spray before going to bed and on rising, and the boracic acid solution is one of the simplest and best preventives of trouble.

Cold, icy air is dangerous for adults as well as children. Cover baby's face with a light woolen fabric, if he is to be carried through extreme cold to a neighbor's house, no matter how short the distance.

"Do all the women of your intellectual advancement organization make speeches?"

"Oh, no, the more useful ones make tea and sandwiches."

Shimmy—Have you seen father?

Jimmy—Often, honey, but I love you just the same.

Hall's Catarrh Medicine

Those who are in a "run-down" condition will notice that Catarrh bothers them much more than when they are in good health. This fact proves that while Catarrh is a local disease, it is greatly influenced by constitutional conditions.
