ETIQUETTE
by Flo

Readers desiring personal points of Etiquette or heart affairs may write Flo, care of this newspaper, enclosing a self addressed and stamped envelope.

Dear Miss Flo—When a lady and gentlemean go calling together—who should first suggest leaving. When getting on or off a train, who leads the way—the lady or gentleman? Thank you. V. S.

The gentlemen must always wait until the lady signifies her desire to leave. In getting on a train, the gentleman permits the lady to enter first, assisting her by a slight touch at he elbow. He follows direcly back of her—finds her a seat, and takes his place next to her. In leaving the train the gentleman leads the way, assisting her to reach the ground.

Dear Miss Flo—When a gentleman is escorting a young girl an elderly lady, where should he walk—between them or alongside of the elderly lady? A. B.

The gentlema nnever walks between two ladies. He should walk beside the older of the ladies—the younger girl taking her place next to the older woman.

Dear Miss Flo— When a lady bows to a gentleman in a restaurant is it necessary for the gentleman to rise? When a lady makes a business call on a gentleman in his office, is it necessary for him to rise to receive her? Is it necessary for a gentleman to lift his hat in the elevator? M. M.

When a lady speaks to a gentleman in a restaurant, the gentleman merely makes the gesture of rising by getting up half-way from his chair as he speaks. A gentleman should receive a lady in his office with the same courtesy that he would receive her in a drawing room. He must rise when she enters, offer her a chair, and remain standing until after she is seated. When she rises to leave, he must get up instantly and stand until she has left the office. A gentleman always lifts his hat in an elevator when a lady enters.

Dear Miss Flo—How should lump sugar be taken from the bowl— with the fingers or with a spoon. How should a married man and his wife register at a hotel? R. W.

Lump sugar should be taken from the bowl with the fingers—if no tongs are there. A husband and wife register as Mr. & Mrs. ———. After the name, the town and state should be written. The husband, of course, registers for his wife.

SHORE NEWS

Reports that myriads of young crabs were seen within a few days in Chesapeake Bay near the mouth of the Choptank river thi week aroused State Conservation Commission Officials.

The report was made by Capt. W. J. Haddaway of the State powerboat Queen Anne to State Game Warden E. Lee LeCompte. It was confirme by river oystermen.

Appearence of such enormous numbers of young crabs in the bay is regarded as unusual at this season, especially in cold weather. Officials are unable to account for it.

At the same time it was reported that millions of canvasback ducks are alighting at night in the same vicinity. Their presence is accounted for by LeCompte, who said the ducks are on their way to breeding grounds in Canada where the Dominion has set aside 280,000 square miles for propagation. Even the taking of eggs is prohibited on these grounds.

THE GRAND CANYON. GAS BOMBS AT HOME 3000 BULLSEYES. MUSHING FOR GOLD.

This is written with scenery. On the left the sun is sinking, an Arizona sunset. Come out here, if you want to know how it looks. On the left the moon is up, gaining color, as the sun goes down. And from this spot you could walk a few feet, then jump down one mile. This is the Grand Canyon of the Colorado, with its thousands of towers, mountains, forts, peaks of every shape and color rising up from the canyon's floor one mile down.

The western horizon is a rim of gold, the farewell effort and defiance of the sun, rolling down to China. And the canyon below is changing its colors and shadows, obedient to fading sunlight and growing moonlight. It would be worth your while to see that. Shadows and bands of color a mile high, exposed layers of old earth that took millions of centuries to build laid bare by the rushing waters, each with its color and character, each an open book to the geologist, showing exact age as plainly as you read it in a painted face.

A genuine artist, with soul, temperament and similar things, would be sick and probably faint if he could look up from these typewriter letters, carefully padded with rubber, toward the cast and west. Below the pale moon, almost full, the sky is a dark rose purple. Below the purple there is a dark broad band of heavy blue. The moon, queen of heaven, rides in triumph on a colored throne as wide as the sky.

Somebody should warn owners of mills in Passaic that they are running risks. This nation was interested when gas bombs first appeared in the big war. It will not be pleased to hear of employers fighting a strike, legal in character, using gas bombs against their workers, and turning heavy streams of cold water on women and children, when tear gas failed to do the work.

Now the workers have bought two thousand gas masks to be ready for the next attack, which is not pleasant reading in this prosperous republic. We are doing pretty well here; industrialists are not exactly starving to death. They should warn those Passaic idiots against upsetting the apple cart. Employers have considerably more to lose than employees in the game of violence.

A solemn Washington dispatch says the President and Cabinet discussed the Wall Street scare, and "President Coolidge let it be known that he felt there was nothing taking place in the business world symptomatic of a letup in the present prosperity."

The trouble, just "nervous prosperity" among those of the gamblers, afraid of their own profits.

The revised income tax rate will bring hundreds of millions out of the income tax proof non-taxable securities, and business will boom more than ever.

You read of young Americans going to the dogs via the Charleston, jazz and bootleg whiskey. Then Samuel Moore, seventeen-year-old captain of the high school rifle team at Newton, Mass., reassures you with his new world's record.

That young gentleman, it sounds unbelievable, made three thousand consecutive bullseyes between eight o'clock in the morning and five in the evening. Neither Charleston nor premature hootch has ruined that young man's nerves.

The world has been much explored since and before the days of Marco Polo, and the exploring goes on. Ten expeditions are about to start for the polar regions, some to find the Pole again, others to seek new lands, and, perhaps, oil, gold, etc. Others go in the interest of science.

In Canada frozen roads are packed with gold seekers, defying the temperature fifty degrees below zero, in a new gold rush; gold seekers, mushing in dog sleds, racing to the new strike where "gold is showing over a stretch of country five miles in length, with good ground still unstaked." It won't remain unstaked long. Say "gold" and people move as when you cry "fire."

About Your Health

Things You Should Know

by John Joseph Gaines, M. D.

THE SIMPLE LIFE

We have almost abandoned wholesome, air-cured meats, from which most of the deadly nitrogens have been removed by the pure air of the country, and have espoused instead the chemically treated product of commerce. During a fraction of the year we eat fresh vegetables from the garden—at least some of us do; others buy vegetables that have passed through a half-dozen dealers' hands—wilted and stale. Most of the year we resort to the factory product, housed within its tin can, from the shelves of the wholesaler. Verily the road back to the simple life is growing longer every feverish minute, yet the simple life is the strong lieutenant of health and happiness.

The law of right living has been ignored, trampled upon, despised. We fill our bodies with food at the hours when the digestion is at its lowest efficiency — we overpower the stomach, thus starving the nerves. Hours of rest are pirated into hours of activity, until the inevitable failure comes.....then we consult the specialist to find out why we can't sleep! Very few people observe the Sabbath day; it is spent in the harness. There is a great measure of happiness in accomplishment, it is true,—but not at the expense of life and health.

Greed and speed are the unwholesome twin sisters of early obsequies. This applies as well at the dinner-table as in the marts of trade, and on the paved highway. To abandon both is to take a long step forward to health, happiness and longer life!

Hall's Catarrh Medicine

Those who are in a "run-down" condition will notice that Catarrh bothers them much more than when they are in good health. This fact proves that while Catarrh is a local disease, it is greatly influenced by constitutional conditions. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is a Combined Treatment, both local and internal, and has been successful in the treatment of Catarrh for over forty years. Sold by all druggists.
