The Apple Dumpling.

The dumplin is about the natral size ov yure phist, made out ov dough, and filled with apples. They are served up hot with soom sweet tasting liniment on them, and are at eazy to struggle with az a sugar-plum. They ain't so good kold as they ought to be. Kold dumplin and raw potato eat similar. I never et apple dumplin yet, without thanking the Lord for that one, and the landlady for another one.—Four apple dumplins at one sitting iz just mi size. I wish i knu who invented these kind-hearted balls, i would like to weep over his memory. Punkin pi and apple dumplin hav dun az much to civilize man az enny two missionarys that hav ever lived. Good vittles iz next to good morals enny how. Yu may talk about virtew as much az yu pleze, yu kant never inokulate a man with virtew first rate on an empty stummuk. Giv a man four apple dumplins, with sum good kind ov ointment on them, and after he haz et them, and they have settled down to hard pan, yu kan krawl up to him on either side with a dose of morality, or even some new kind of sope for taking spots out ov clothes.—Josh Billings.

Beauties of Shadows.

The shadows all day long play at silent games of beauty. Everything is double if it stands in light. The tree sees an unrevealed and muffled self-lying darkly along the ground. The slender stems of flowers, golden rod, wayside asters, meadow daisies, and rare lilies (rare and yet abundent in every nice, level meadow) cast forth a dim and tremulous line of shadow, that lies long all the morning, shortening till noon, and creeping on again from the root all the afternoon, until the sun shoot it as far eastward in the evening as the sun shot westward in the morning. A million shadowy arrows such as these spring from Apollo's golden bow of light at every step. Flying in every direction, they cross, interlacing each other in a soft net-work of dim lines. Meanwhile, the clouds drop shadow-like anchors, that reach the ground, but will not hold; every browsing creature, every flitting bird, every moving team, every unconscious traveler writes itself along the ground in dim shadow.

Mother Forget.

——? Not a morning, ——oks into a corner read Robison ——'s boy.— as that their children are grown out of their childhood. They think of them, advise them, write to them, as though not full fourteen years of age. They cannot forget the child. Three times a day she thinks of those absent from the table, and hopes the next year at farthest she may just "have her own family there,' and if you are there, look out for the fat limb of a chicken, and coffee, which nobody but everybody's own mother can make. Did Hannah forget Samuel? A short sentence, full of household history, and running over with genuine mother's love is telling and beautiful: "Moreover his mother made a little coat, and brought it to him from year to year, when she came up with her husband to the sacrifice.'

Nineveh.

Nineveh was fourteen miles long, eight miles wide, and forty-six miles around, with a wall 100 feet high and thick enough for three chariots abreast. Babylon was fifty miles within the walls, which were seventy-five feet thick and 100 feet high, with hundred brazen gates. The Temple of Diana at Ephesus was 420 feet to the support of the roof—it was one hundred years in building. The largest of the pyramids was 481 feet in height, and 853 feet on the sides. The base covered eleven acres. The stones are about sixty feet in length, and the layers are 208. It employed 350,000 men in building. The labyrinth of Egypt contains 300 chambers and twelve halls. Thebes, in Egypt, presents ruins twenty-seven miles around, and contained 350,000 citizens and 400,000 slaves. The Temple of Delphos was so rich in donations that it was plundered of $50,000,000, and the Emperor Nero carried away from it 200 statues. The walls of Rome were thirteen miles around.

Good Bye.—It is a hard word to speak. Some may laugh that it should be, but let them. Icy hearts are never kind. It is a word that has choked many an utterance and started many a tear. The hand is clasped, the word is spoken, and we part and we are out on the ocean of time—we go to meet again—when? God only knows. It may be soon, and it may be never! Take care that your good-bye be not a cold one—it may be the last you can give ere you meet again. Death's cold hands may have closed his eyes forever. Ah! he may have died thinking you loved him not. Again it may be a long separation. Friends crowd and give you their hands. How do you detect in each good-bye the love that lingers there, and how may you bear with you the memory of those parting words many days? We must often separate.—Tear not yourself away with a careless boldness that defies all love, but make your words linger—give your heart full utterance—and if tears fall—what of it? Tears are not unmanly.

A Good One.—Parson Brownlow tells a good story of an old Presbyterian bachelor preacher, known almost as a woman-hater until he was nearly fifty years old, when he married and settled somewhere among the mountains of North Carolina. The parson says: Our bachelor friend was preaching on the sinner's excuses. "I have bought a piece of ground, and wish to go and see it," said one. Here is want of inclination to attend to divine things, said the preacher. Another said, "I have bought five yoke of oxen, and must needs go and prove them." This seems a case of necessity. A third said, "I have married a wife, and therefore I cannot come."—Here is a case of natural impossibility, from which we may infer,' continued our bachelor preacher, "that one woman will put a man further from the Lord than five oxen."

Silent People.

We all reckon among our friends or acquaintances some silent man or woman, whose influence is felt, whose rarely expressed opinion carries weight, whose words are few, indeed but well chosen, spoken in clear, harmonious tones, go to the point and decide it. We all meet with quiet, well-read and well-bread women, whose society we have sought and found an ever-increasing thirst for—women minds unfolded, leaf by leaf, rare beauties which make one feel better for every hour spent with them. To know such women is to study them, is to love them, to hunger for their society, to prize their presence, and to mourn for them for ever when they have passed away into the "spiritland."—To such women the world owes much, far more than those who speak; these are the women who make home happy and life beautiful; to whom the cross words, the impatient tones, are strangers, whose children are surprised at a harsh tone, and who never fear the blow they have no knowledge of; these are the women whose highest privilge is making their home happy.

Waiting for Home.—I do not know a more beautiful sight on earth than a man who has served his Lord for many years, and who, having grown gray in service, feels that in the order of nature he must soon be called home. He is rejoicing in the first fruits of the Spirit which he has obtained, but he is panting after the full harvest of the Spirit, which is guaranteed to him. I think I see him sitting on a jutting crag by the edge of Jordon, listening to the harpers on the other side, and waiting till the pitcher shall be broken at the fountain, and the wheel at the cistern, and the Spirit shall depart to God who gave it. A wife waiting for her husband's footsteps, a child waiting in the darkness of the night till its mother comes to give it the evening kiss, are potraits of our waiting. It is a pleasant and a precious thing so to wait and so to hope.

To Girls.—My pretty little dears, you are no more fit for matrimony than a pullet is too look after a family of fourteen chickens. The truth is, my dears, generally speaking, you need more liberty and less fashionable restraint; more kitchen and less parlor; more exercise and less sofa; more frankness and less modesty; i like a buxom, bright-eyed, rosy cheeked lass—one who can darn stockens, make her own frocks, mend trousers, command a regiment of pots and shoot a wild duck as well as the Dutches of Marlboro, or the Queen of Spain, and be a lady withal in the drawing room. But, as for young pining, moping, screwed up, wasp-waisted, putty-faced, music-murdering, novel destroying daughters of fashion and idleness, with your consumption soled shoes and silk stockings, you won't do for wives and mothers.

In the "dark days" of '64 there lived two well to-do Irish neighbors, each of whom had a son who had gone west to seek their fortunes. The old boys meeting one day, mutual inquiries were made about the youngsters.

"Well, Pat, how is Mickey making out wid his trip out West?'

"Illigantly! tin dollars a wake and bossin' himself. And how's your boy gettin' on, Dennis?'

"Teddy, ye mane? He's doin' splendid, the darlint! Why, his lasht lethyr, was bustin' wid granebacks, and so asy, too.'

"And what's he doin'?

"Faix, I hardly know, but it's in the Government employ he is.'

"The divil ye say? the Government! What's he doin' for the Government?'

"Faix. I hardly know what it is, but I thiuk it's what he calls laapin the bounty.'

The Place of Prayer.—Poor persons, who have but one apartment, may enter into the spirit of the Savior's direction by praying wherever they can be retired.—Isaac's closet was a field. He went out to meditate in the field at the eventide.—David's closet was his bed-chamber.—"Commune with your own heart upon your bed and be still." Our Lord's closet was a mountain. "When he had sent the multitude away, He went up into a mountain apart to pray, and when the evening was come He was there alone." Peter's closet was on the housetop, Peter "went upon the house-top to pray about the sixth hour." Hezekiah's closet was turning his face towards the wall, and praying unto the Lord.—Bickersteth.

Time.—Time is life's tree, from which some gather precious fruit, while others lie down under its shadow, and perish with hunger. Time is life's ladder, whereby some raise themselves up to honor, and renown and glory; some set themseles down into the depths of shame, degradation and ignomy. Time will be to us what, by our use of the treasures we make it; a good or an evil, a blessing or a curse.

That was a wise man as well as a worthy man who wrote, "I expect to pass through this world but once. If, therefore, there be any kindness I can show, or any good thing I can do to my fellow human beings, let me do it now. Let me not defer nor neglect it, for I will not pass this way again."

A man was seen coming out of a Texas newspaper office with one eye gouged out, and his nose spread all over his face like a piece of raw beef, and one of his ears chewed off. To a policeman who interviewed him, he replied: "I didn't like an article that 'peared in the paper last week, an' I went in ter see the man who writ it. He war thar, stranger.

"N-body surpasses me in this speciality," said a Lawsburg girl to her new lover the other night, as she gave him a parting kiss with a report like that of a pistol. The astonished youth walked away, wondering where the girl got her experience.
