DENTON, MARYLAND:

The Inflation Fallacy.

If the inflationists of this country desire to see the practical results of the rag money theory they are advocating they have but to refer to the inflation policy of Jeff. Davis' defunct confederacy when his paper was worth but five cents in the dollar;—flour $50 per barrel, bacon $5 to $6 per lb; a gentleman's suit of clothing costing $200 to $300, and every other article inflated far beyond real values and a currency in circulation really worth nothing. Are the laboring men of this country willing to exchange their labor for worthless rag money, simply for the sake of having it abundant. Like every article of trade, the demand should regulate the supply, or like the recent peach crop the abundance will glut the market and destroy the value.

The Result in Maine.

Official returns from all the cities and towns in the State of Maine except thirty-one give Connor, (rep.) for Governor 57,852, and Roberts, (dem.) 53,077; Connor's majority 4,755. The places to be heard from gave last year a republican majority of seventy-seven. The Senate will stand nineteen republicans, eleven democrats, and no choice of one member in York county. The vacancy will be filled by the Legislature, giving the republicans a majority in the Senate of nine. The House will be eighty-five republicans to sixty-three democrats, two independents. Last year the republicans in the House numbered eighty-nine, democrats fifty-five, and independents seven.

S. Teakle Wallace.

The Baltimore Daily Times, of Monday, speaking of the nomination of S. Teakle Wallace by the Reformers of Maryland for the office of Attorney General, says:—

"The opinion however, is universal, that he will adorn the place if elected. His high culture, his unspotted integrity of character, his life long devotion to principle—for which he has paid for with his body—and the total absence from his life of place seeking and the arts of politician, are everywhere recognized. His almost entire exclusion from public life for the last decade, and the substitution of men morally and intellectually his inferiors, furnish another evidence of the deplorable state of our local politics. During the time he has been in complete accord with the principles of the dominant party; he has had the respect and admiration of all good men, and has amongst competent judges, been recognized as pre-eminently fitted to adorn the highest public stations, and to reflect credit on his State. Yet, that party has ignored him. Men who have sought office have prospered, while men whom office should seek are left to private life. Whatever may come of the election, no citzen need doubt that he has discharged a high duty when he deposits his ballot for S. Teakle Wallis."

It Thunders all Around.

That there is considerable dissatisfaction in the Democratic ranks in this State is evident to all men. The manner in which the State nominations were made, and the candidates of that party foisted upon the people, created a spirit of opposition on the part of the sober thinking men of the party that broke out in open revolt to the high handed acts of the ring elements, which has so long controlled the action of Conventions and thwarted the will of the masses. This spirit of determined opposition, born in the State Convention, has spread into the counties, and there has not been a convention since that time to nominate county tickets, in which this same spirit has not manifested itself, and so general is the demoralization that the thunders of discontent are heard all over the State. Democratic newspapers are becoming alarmed at the breach in their ranks and would fain pour oil on the troubled waters, if this would still the rising tempest.

We give below a few extracts from some of our exchanges, and from the wail sent up, it is but reasonable to conclude that the days of the Ring Democracy in Maryland are over, and that the people of the State will write over the door of their guilded temple of thievery and corruption, "thou art weighed in the ballance and found wanting."

The Baltimore Times says, "there is, in the ranks of the Democratic party of this city, a profound dissatisfaction. Those members of the party who are most loyal must admit this. If the party does not introduce a reform of some kind, it is inevitably destined to lose its supremacy in this city and State at no distant day. It may sustain itself in the coming conflict; but the discontent, and open defection, shown by the Merchant's Reform meeting, will grow unless there is a revolution of policy or change of leaders, or both. A study of the causes of this state of things will, we believe, disclose the fact that the personal characters of certain recognized leaders, and the means to which they stoop for the accomplishment of their puposes, have lowered the tone of the party. The use of money in elections, and elaborate combinations and swappings of influence, are bound to corrupt politics."

Even the unwashed and unterrified in Queen Anne's, who have endured the wrongs and insults of the Ring for years past have at last thrown off the shackles of party slavery and are about to declare themselves freemen. The following advertisement appeared in the Centreville Record of last week, one of the Democratic oracles of that county.

"The delegates of the 1st, 2nd and 3d Districts of Queen Anne's county assembled at the Court House in Centreville, 14th inst., for the purpose of nominating an Independent Democratic Ticket, but owing to a misunderstanding on the part of the committee ordering a call through the county papers for district meetings, Queenstown and Kent Island were not represented, therefore the delegates declined making nominations, and now call upon the voters of the 4th and 5th districts to meet at their accustomed voting places on Saturday, 18th inst., and elect delegates to meet their brother Democrats on Tuesday 21st., in Centreville, to nominate a full county ticket." John Coppage, Prest.

W. G. Temple, Secy.

And old Dorchester, too, is a about to throw off the manacles that have bound her limbs and declare for freedom from partizan slavery. Rings, cliques and factions have ruled throughout the State with a high hand and all those who dared oppose the decrees of the Ring or refused to wear the collar that partizan intolerance chose to place upon their necks, are denounced as traitors, disorganizers, and bolters. But old Dorset is too proud to stoop to such party meanness as has characterized the proceedings of the would be party leaders, and has indignantly refused to bow down and worship the Gods recently set up at Baltimore.

The Cambridge Democrat of last week thus notices the condition of affairs in that county. "Thus, under extremely favorable auspices, a new political combination in Baltimore, called the "Reform party," was started some months ago, and the tidal wave reached Dorchester even before the nominations were made, and not only has it a foothold here, but also in every county in the State, disintegrating old party ties and making independent voters everywhere. Not even the strongest and best nominations could have wholly withstood its influence or paralyzed its effect."

Since the county nominations have been made things have grown worse, and the editor makes an appeal for conciliation and compromise. Hear him:—"Since the day of the Democratic nominations the "independents" have been at work, and as active as men could be. The "regulars" have done nothing. One week more and an independent ticket will be in the field. We ask the question in all seriousness, can't there be something done in the meantime to restore harmony? Some compromise made that will so disarm opposition as to render success inevitable to the ticket?"

Thus, Democratic thunder is heard all around the horison, and the indication is a terrific storm is brewing. Let it come, it will purify the atmosphere and restore health to the body politic, which is so desirable at this time. The politicians and partizan pimps will lose by the change, but an over-burdened, tax ridden people will be relieved of the political drones who are feasting and fatening from the treasury of the State. Let it thunder and we hope the lightening may strike somewhere in such close proximity to the Comptrollers office that the present incumbent may be sent in a jiffy to the quiet of his Somerset home, content to rest peacefully on the laurels of his third term, and where he may have time from his public duties to acquire a sufficiency of pecuniary means to furnish himself and family with the means of the necessaries, if not the luxuries, of life.

What Causes High Taxes.

Since the Reform movement was inaugurated in the State, the Baltimore City Council have been searching out some of the leaks which have been a terrible drain upon that city in the way of taxes, for several years. A resolution was passed to investigate the salaries of the officers of the different Courts, which has brought out an extravagance unheard of:

Baltimore City Court—George M. Hollins, crier, $1,500; J. R. H. Robinson, bailiff, $1,500; R. C. Smith, bailiff, $1,500; G. P. Gold, bailiff, $1,500; Matthew Clark, bailiff, $1,500; total, $7,500.

Circuit Court—E. A. Kraft, crier, $1,500; John Mincher, bailiff, $1,500; G. W. Thompson, bailiff, $1,500; J. A. Brown, bailiff, $1,500; John Hanson, bailiff, $1,500; total, $7,500.

Court of Common Pleas—B. Smith, crier, $1,525; H. J. Morrison, bailiff, $1,500; John B. Ray, bailiff, $1,500; J. H. Price, bailiff, $1,500; W. Hofnagle, bailiff, $1,500; total, $7,525.

Criminal Court—W. H. Jenkins, bailiff, $1,500; John Strible, bailiff, $1,500; George W. Jones, bailiff, $1,500; H. De Witt Clinton, bailiff, $1,500; Augustus Love, bailiff, $1,500; A. J. Gelse, bailiff, $1,500; R. T. Gilmor, bailiff, $1,500; W. H. Colton, bailiff, $1,500; George Hauptman, interpreter, $1,500; Edward J. Chaisty, Jr., crier, $5,890.47; total, $19,390.47.

Superior Court—J. H. Ruddach, crier, $1,536; B. H. Hobbs, bailiff, $1,500; B. H. Hopkins, bailiff, $1,500; Samuel W. Teal, bailiff, $1,500; James H. Cosgrove, bailiff, $1,500; total, $7,536.

The resolution of investigation was offered in the City Council by Mr. Loney, and in his remarks sustaining the resolution, he said:

The bailiffs of these courts have very little to do, do not work more than one hour a day on the average, and receive $1,500 a year. Some of them are meritorious men, others are worthless. A large number of them owe their position to favoritism and some of them perform servile and degrading labor instead of attending to their duties in the courts. Many of them don't perform one day's work in the year. The crier of the Criminal Court, for instance, receives over $5,000 a year for sitting in the Court and making occasionally certain proclamations. Some of the employees receive a salary much in excess of the Chief Judge of the Supreme Court. There are many clerks in the city who do not recive one-half of the salary of the bailiffs, who do more work, sit in their chairs and read the newspapers. The expenses have increased enormously during the past few years, and the city has to pay for them.

It is by the free use of the people's money that the Democratic rings have been enabled to carry Baltimore City by such enormous majorities. Men are paid about two prices to do comparatively nothing, except to work in the interest of politicians and to strengthen the rings.

Charles Carroll's Estate.—The Cumberland (Md.) News says: "Messrs. S. Teackle Willis, T. W. Hall and J. P. Poe, of Baltimore, attorneys for the heirs of the Duchess of Leeds, have instituted in the Alleghany County Court a suit in Chancery, praying a sale of all the land of Charles Carroll of Carrollton located in this county. The land includes about twenty thousand acres, the value of which, however, cannot be accurately estimated. It is located in the eastern part of the county, and is chiefly valuable for the timber and bark upon it, as it contains no minerals, though one tract was formerly supposed to be underlaid with anthracite coal."

National Soldiers' Home.

REVIEW OF THE VETERANS.

The annual meeting of the board of managers of the National Soldiers' Home took place at Dayton, Ohio, on Wednesday. There were present Gen. J. H. Martindale, ex-Governor Frederick Smythe, Judge H. L. Bond, of Baltimore; Dr. E. B. Walcott, Hon. Lewis B. Gunckle, Chief Justice Waite, ex-Gov. Marquis J. Ward, of New Jersey, president for the State Home for Disabled Veterans, and Chief Justice Settle, of North Carolina, were also present by invitation. After a brief interchange of compliments the board of managers proceeded to review a line of 2,000 veterans. Thousands of people lining the hillsides and slopes to get a view of the unusual pageant. The veterans formed around a stand which was placed under a giant oak, where the proceedings took an oratorical turn.

Chief Justice Waite, General B. F. Butler and several others made pertinent speeches.

Chief Justice Waite said that when he recalled the incidents which attended the commencement of the war, and then came to look over the long line of disabled veterans before him, his emotion almost deprived him of speech. Judge Waite was visibly affected by the panorama of disabled soldiers before him, and could with difficulty proceed. He spoke in earnest tones of the handsome and comfortable home which the nation has provided for her gallant and glorious defenders, and declared that it was the most creditable measure ever carried out. Judge Waite is the first Chief Justice who has ever visited the veterans at the National Home, and the gallant men were greatly pleased at the interest he manifested in their welfare.

Judge Bond said that reconstruction was a gradual work, and called for the patience of the people, especially of the South. The day did not dawn at once; it was some time after the dawn streaked the orient before we got the dazzling light of the sun. The eclipse was not momentary, it was some time before the shadow passed off, and the full flow of light returned.—Those in the South who could comprehend the great question were reconciled to the slow process of reconstruction. It will all be right in due time, and then we will be a nation again—in all that that word implies.

Judge Bond put a little pleasantry at ex-Governor Smythe, in which he said that although New Hampshire was always contributing supplies of everything nice to the army and the hospital, somehow nothing ever reached the army from that State except pork and beans.

Gov. Smythe checkmated the judge by saying that it was true that New Hampshire contributed liberally to the supplies for the boys in the field, and the reason that they never got anything of all this generous provision but pork and beans was that it passed through Baltimore, and somehow the supply was cut down to that standard.

Chief Justice Settle, of North Carolina, asserted that he was a whipped and reconstructed rebel. The veterans who were so handsomely provided for ought to be grateful to so good a government as ours, and reconstructed rebels like him were doubly grateful for having been pardoned after they had forfeited their lives. Judge Settle said that since he had left his Carolina home he had seen more rich land and superb homesteads than he had ever seen before; and the most magnificent country of all was the Miami Valley; and the Soldiers' Home was the gem which set off in a blaze of glory.

From War to Work.

General Pemberton, the ex-Confederate General who surrendered Vicksburg to Grant, has been employed by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company to superintend the construction of their new iron works at Perth Amboy. It is interesting to trace the occupations of others who were conspicuous as leaders in the civil war. General McClellan was respectively Superintendent of the construction of the Stevens Battery at Hoboken, then Chief Engineer of the Atlantic and Great Western Railway. General Fitz John Porter's occupation in the New York Department of public Works has been too much talked about to be soon forgotten by the public. Lee was President of the University of Virginia before his death. Jeff. Davis figures as President of an insurance company in Memphis, and occasionally as orator of a country fair. Of the many who were figureheads in the great conflict, but a few survivors are prominent in national affairs. Grant, Sherman and Sheridan are still the heads of the army, while Butler, Banks and a few others are well known in political affairs.

The Hagerstown Herald favors the coalescence of the Republican party with the Reformers, and gives these reasons for its opinions:

Ignoring all party ties, unbaised by partizan feeling and looking only to the restoration of Maryland's honor and the protection of their fellow-citizens, the Republican party through its State Convention declares its "devotion to the highest public good" and willingness "to co-operate cordially and heartily with all organized friends of Reform." A proud and noble position—one to be honored by every fair minded, honest and incorruptible citizen. To promote the substantial interests of Maryland is to be the watchword and duty of every Republican, and let the nominee of the Committee of Conference be Democratic or Republican, the 60,000 Republican voters of Maryland are ready, with good will and honest heart, to give their united effort to the overthrow of the powerful and corrupt ring whose dishonest practices and desperate cupidity have made our treasury well nigh bankrupt, and sucked the very life blood from the energies of our people.

Conserved Peaches.—They talk a good deal in the fruit canning towns about 'conserved peaches.' We asked a gentleman from amongst the orchards what they were, and he says the process of putting up is like this: a rich sugar syrup is boiling, when the pared fruit, in halves, being placed in a wire basket is dipped into it, allowed to slightly cook, and then being removed, is left to become dry. This slight cooking in the rich syurps forces more sugar into the fruit and conserves it, leaving the sugar on the outside in crystals. The fruit being thoroughly dried, is packed in boxes in layers, sprinkled with sugar, and resembles in character what is known as French citron. Our informant, as he told this, smacked his lips, and assured us that "conserved peaches" were emphatically good.—Wil. Commercial.

A Profitable Orange Grove.—In 1850 Col. Arthur Ginn, of Georgia, settled near Mellonville, Florida, on Lake Monroe, and that year planted a grove of four hundred orange trees. In 1860 he planted three hundred more, making a total of seven hundred trees, covering an area of ten acres. For several years these trees have yielded an annual income of from $10,000 to $15,000, and recently the proprietor has refused an offer of $100,000 for his ten-acre grove.
