AS THE WORLD WAGS.

FARMERS IN 1825.

Men to the plow,
Wife to the cow,
Girls to the yarn,
Boys to the barn,
And all dues settled.

FARMERS IN 1850.

Men a mere show,
Girls at the piano,
Wife in silk or satin,
Boys in Greek and Latin,
And all hands gazetted.

FARMERS IN 1877.

Men all in debt,
Wives in a pet,
Boys mere muscles,
Girls puffs and ruffles,
And everybody cheated.

Alluring to Destruction.

The following is a very suggestive incident: A saloon-keeper, in Ohio, was standing in the door of his elegant saloon, a "gin palace." Playing on the steps was a lovely little boy about six years old, handsomely dressed, with rosy cheeks, clear eyes, white forehead, wavy hair—just such a little fellow as many of you have in your own homes, and love to pet and caress.—After looking at the child a moment, the saloon keeper went to his counter, mixed a tempting drink of wine, water, and sugar, with a few drops of something stronger, such a drink as he knew well how to prepare, and handed it to the child. The little fellow thanked him, and commenced to drink. A gentleman who stood by, (and the same who told the incident,) said to the saloon keeper.

"That child did not pay you for that drink."

"Oh," he replied, "I shall get my pay."

The gentleman did not understand it.—"What do you mean? The boy does not intend to pay you. How will you get your pay?"

"I consider that a safe investment. The money is out at interest. That child belongs to one of the wealthiest families in the neighborhood."

What was the man's intention as he stood and looked at the innocent child, and mixed the drink at the counter? It was to start him on the road that leads by way of the dram-shop to drunkenness, and ends, only too soon, at the devil. And that is the stuff saloon-keepers are made of.—Whose child is safe while such hardened wretches as these are allowed to practice such hateful duplicity and villiany in broad open day?

A Good Bargain.

Even in matrimonial affairs, the true Irishman endeavors to make as good a bargain as possible.

We once heard a well-to-do farmer who had for some time been dividing his attentions pretty equally between two fair ones—one a widow, the other the only daughter of a rice big-jobber.

The cause of this gentlemen's vaccillation was that each of the two candidates had the identical qualifications—a cow and two pigs.

The matter was at last decided by the girl's father throwing in a "boneen" (young pig), which at once decided the matter, and the widow was unsuited.

The ladies are not exempt from this desire to make a good bargain.

An elderly plain servant of mine host's was asked in marriage.

On the day appointed for the ceremony, the bridegroom and his friends arrived.

Every one was ready to start for church, suddenly a hitch occurred.

The bride laid down her marriage portion on the kitchen table, and called on her future husband to produce his.

It was not forth coming, and on this Biddy stoutly refused to fulfill her engagement.

No entreaties would induce her to move one step till she saw the money down.

Promises wouldn't do—occular demonstration she would have.

The mortification of the farmer was so great that every one joined in trying to mollify the indignant spinster; but it was all in vain: the discomforted swain had to return unmated, and the obdurate Biddy died in single blessedness.

FIGHT your own battles. Ask no favors of any one; and you'll succeed five thousand times better than any one who is always beseeching one's patronage. No one will ever help you as you help yourself, because no one will be so heartily interested in your affairs. Men who win love do their own wooing. Whether you work for fame, for love, for money, or for anything else, work with your hands, heart, and brain. Say "I will!" and some day you will conquer. Never let any man have it to say: "I have dragged you up—I have made you what you are."

WHAT a fountain of blessings is a cow! She is the mother of beef, the source of butter, the original source of cheese, to say nothing of shoes, horns, hair, combs and upper leather. A gentle, amiable, ever-yielding creature, who has no joy in her family affairs which she does not share with man. We rob her of her children, that we may rob her of her milk, and we only care for her that the robbery may be perpetuated.

Our enjoyment consists in pursuit, not in attainment. Attainment is with us, for the most part, the grave of pleasure. Had we no object to excite fresh activity, and impel us to new toils human life would quickly stagnate in melancholy indifference.

What is this world? A dream within a dream. As we grow older each step has an inward awakening. The youth awakes as he thinks from childhood; the full-grown man despises the pursuits of youth as visionary; the old man looks on manhood as a feverish dream.
