DENTON, MD., SATURDAY, JULY 6, 1872. The Cottage Door.

How sweet the rest that labor yields The humble and the poor, Where sits the patriarch of the fields Before his cottage door!

The lark is singing in the sky, The swallow on the eves, And love is beaming in each eye Beneath the summer leaves!

The air amid his fragrant bowers Supplies unpurchased health. And hearts are bounding'mid the flowers in the face.

More dear to him than wealth, Peace, like the blessed sunlight, plays Around his humble cot, And hapy nights and cheerful days

A Laughable Love Story. A rich old gentleman had only one daughter, possessed of the highest attractions, moral, personal and pecuniary. She was engaged and devotedly attached to a young man in every respect , worthy of her choice. All the marriage preliminaries were arranged, and the wedding was fixed to take place on a certain Thursday. On the Monday preceding the wedding-day the bride and groom elect (who was to have received $50,000 down on his weddingday, and a further sum of $100,000 on his father-in-law's death, an event which would probably soon occur) had a little jealous squabble with his intended at the evening party. The 'time arose in consequence of his paying more attention than she thought justifiable to a lady with sparkling eyes and inimitable ringlets. The gentleman retorted and spoke tauntingly of a certain cousin whose waistcoat was the admiration of the company, and hinted that it had been embroidered by the fair heiress herself He added that it would be soon enough for him to be schooled after they were married; and that she adopted the 'breeches' a little too soon. After the supper they became reconciled apparently, and the bridegroom elect, in taking leave, was kind and affectionate.-A good story is told of a parrot, who On the next morning the swain regret 'I settled Mr. Dunlap's estate,' coldly. those who are affleted should 'read care
