LEAVES AND MEN. BY EBENEZER ELLIOT. Drop, drop into the grave, Old Leaf,

Drop, drop into the grave; Thy acorns grown, thy acorns sown-Drop, drop into the grave. December's tempests rave, Old Leaf, Above the forest grave, Old Leaf; Drop, drop into the grave.

The birds in spring will sweetly sing, That Death alone is sad; The grass will grow, the primrose show That Death alone is sad; Lament above the grave Old Leaf, For what has Life to do with Grief,

'Tis Death alone that's sad. What then? We both have lived through The sunshine and the rain; And blessed be He, to me and thee, Who sent His sun and rain; We've had our sun and rain, Old Leaf, And God will send again, Old Leaf,

Race after race of leaves and men Bloom, wither, and are gone; As winds and waters rise and fall, So life and death roll on; And long as ocean heaves, Old Leaf, And bud and fade the leaves, Old Leaf Will life and death roll on.

The sunshine and the rain.

How like am I to thee, Old Leaf! We'll drop together down; How like art thou to me, Old Leaf! We'll drop together down; I'm grey, and thou art brown, Old Leaf, We'll drep together down, Old Leaf, We'll drop together down.

Drop, drop into the grave Old Leaf, Drop, drop into the grave; Thy acorns grown, thy acorns sown-Drop, drop into the grave. December's tempests rave, Old Leaf, Above the forest grave, Old Leaf, Drop, drop into the grave!
