LOCAL INTERESTS.

DENTON, MARYLAND:
SATURDAY, .................................APRIL 15, 1882.

An Even Week of Court.

The recent term of court had no business of importance before it, and but for two troublesome cases which kept the petit juries four days the business would have been dispatched readily. As it was it took all of a week to get through, the court only being adjourned five minutes before 12 o'clock Saturday night.

The New Burying-Ground.

The Denton Cemetery Association has already commenced the work of laying off their beautiful burying-ground. An avenue has been marked off by evergreens from the intended entrance across the centre of the plot, and a row of fast-growing shade trees planted along the front. A meeting of the stockholders and those interested is called for Saturday next, when those who desire to purchase lots will be allowed to do so, and selection be made of position by drawing for first, second and third positions, and so on.

School Houses to be Insured.

An order was passed by the school board at a meeting on Thursday last directing the president of the board, John F. Dawson, Esq., to insure the school house property in the Mutual Insurance Co. of Cecil county, upon the terms offered by Mr. Wm. W. Lowe, agent; namely, 6 per cent. valuation interest 4 per cent. on premium notes; surveying to be reduced to two-thirds usual charges and to be embraced in six policies, one policy for all the property in a single election district. The board had propositions from three other companies.

The Choptank Grangers.

The Choptank District Grange met in Easton on Wednesday of last week. There was a good attendance. The following were elected: Worthy Master, Dr. P. S. Reynolds; Overseer, H. P. Hopkins; Lecturer, Josiah White; Steward, John Outram; Asst. Steward, R. D. McLean; Chaplain, I. F. Saulsbury; Treasurer, John W. Knotts; Secretary, Dr. Chas. H. Rose; Gate Keeper, Alfred J. Wilson; Pomona, Susie Symonds; Ceres, Sallie A. Tarbutton; Flora, Mary E. Wood; Lady Asst. Steward, M. Fannie Knotts; Executive Committee, E. L. F. Hardcastle, Jesse Middleton, Jas. M. Wooters; Financial Committee, F. C. Goldsborough, Wm. E. Barton, and Richard D. McLean.

Fish Hatching.

The Easton Star say: Mr. Fish Commissioner Hughlett has a station at Kingston, on the Choptank, and another on Tuckahoe creek, hatching the spawn of white perch. There were 400,000 hatched at Kingston last week. 300,000 are to be deposited in the branch of Chester river near the farm of Judge Robinson. Mr. William Wroten is in charge at Kingston, and Mr. Augustus Wroten has charge of the station on Tuckahoe. Mr. Thomas Hughlett, Jr., who has charge of the distribution, showed us yesterday morning some of the perch hatched at Kingston, so small that the little wigglers could scarcely be seen with the naked eye. The hatching of shad eggs has commenced, and it is expected that millions will be hatched at these stations and put out this season.

Libraries For Public Schools.

The school law of Maryland provides, for the further encouragement of education, that district libraries ought to be established in each school district, under the care of the teacher as librarian. For this purpose the sum of ten dollars per annum is ordered to be paid by the county school commissioners out of the State school fund to any school house district as library money, as long as the people of the district raise the same amount annually. A number of schools in this county have availed themselves of this provision. The school board on Thursday ordered the payment of ten dollars to each of the following schools, they having raised an equal amount: School No. 3, election district No. 6, Mr. Lee Barnes, teacher; school No. 7, election district No. 3, Miss Mary Slaughter, teacher.

New Advertisements.

—The card of Brown, Bailey & Co., general commission merchants, Baltimore is in another column.

—Otto Sutro, Baltimore, who keeps a first class stock of music and musical instruments has an advertisement in to-day's JOURNAL. He refers to Mr. James Swann.

—Card of Wm. Stevens, clerk, naming days for meeting of county commissioners for the purpose of making abatements, and allowing claims against the county.

—Messrs. Chaffinch & Coney, the new firm who bought out the old firm of J. W. Cheezum & Co., Easton, have not waited for the first of May to commence business, but have already bought their new stock and taken possession. They have a beautiful line of domestic dry goods, and a full stock of groceries, and go to the city again, this week, to add to their stock a full line of ladies fashionable dress goods. We notice that their selections have been made with excellent taste, and their stock cannot fail to attract a large share of custom. See their advertisement in this issue.

Suicide of James Corkran.

James Corkran, formerly keeper of Dover Bridge, in which occupation he became widely known, committed suicide at the residence of his father, Capt. James Corkran, in Island Creek Neck, Talbot county, last Monday morning. Capt. Corkran called his son twice to come down to breakfast, and was answered each time. While the family were at breakfast a slight noise was heard in young Corkran's chamber, and it was supposed it proceeded from the stove. A brother of the deceased, however, went to the room to ascertain why James did not come down to breakfast, and found him lying in bed gasping. He lived only a few minutes and did not speak after he was discovered. The pistol was lying by him, but there was no blood apparent. It was at first supposed he had shot himself in the mouth, and the wound in the breast was not discovered until search was made. Death resulted from internal hemorrhage. A note was found written by young Corkran, in which he stated that he intended to take his life, and requested that Rev. Mr. Highley preach his funeral, and that he be buried at Trappe. Young Corkran had been for years a member of the M. E. Church, South. For some months past he exhibited indications of mental aberration, which were so noticeable sometimes as to cause comment. His religious convictions seemed to trouble him, and a morbid notion that he had unwittingly done some one a wrong pursued him. Even the trifling faults of his childhood worried and harassed him.

Personal Mention.

—Mr. Howard Bryant and sister, Miss Linnie, are home this week on their Easter vacation; the former from Princeton College where he graduates this summer, and the latter from St. Mary's county female seminary. Miss Ring, of St. Dennis, Baltimore county, is visiting Miss Linnie.

—Mr. Geo. S. Lightnor, who was examined and admitted to practice law at this place last week, purposes locating in Easton in a short time. Mr. Lightnor passed a creditable examination, and will no doubt succeed in his profession. He is a graduate of Roanoke college, Va., and a native of Augusta county of that State.

—Mr. Cornelius Comegys' recent examination for admission to the bar here deserves more than the passing notice we gave last week. Mr. C. was carried through an ordeal in his examination of over an hour, the questions put to him by his examiners in rapid succession, and to all of the intricate questioning he had the same flippant, ready answers. It was the opinion of all present, as well as that of his examiners and the bench, that he knew what he was talking about. Mr. Comegys goes to practice his profession in Hyde Park, a suburb of Scranton, Pa. He is well equipped for success.

"A Maryland Editor Abroad."

DENTON, MD., April 12.

FRIEND MELVIN,—Pardon my delay in not acknowledging in the JOURNAL, sooner, the delight I felt in being made the recipient of the truly interesting work of Mr. George Colton's "A Maryland Editor Abroad." It was the quiet Sabbath of Denton, when suffering from severe cold we were obliged to stay indoors and indulge a feeling of "happy riddance from ourselves." Of course, being of a religious turn of mind, we sought first the pictures of the Holy Land. How rich in memories of the past, and how very poor in its present aspect. Mr. C. gives a clear outline of facts political and historical. His descriptions of places he visited are graphic in many instances, and so easy to comprehend that even a child can read and be instructed. The next day we sought the beginning, and in traveling with him through Ireland, could discern his democratic zeal in behalf of that downtrodden people; and Holland, with its brave people wresting their lands from the arms of the sea, attracted our attention as having been the root of one branch of our family tree. But other critics have written in praise of these letters, and feel, no doubt, with me, that the public are indebted in no small degree to one who has taken them over the sea in a smooth-sailing craft, and through a good portion of the old world, in an easy going palace car, without fatigue or jolting. The work ought to be widely circulated; and with thanks to the author, I remain his friend,

R M. T.

P. S.—The book can be purchased at 142 West Baltimore St., Baltimore.

Local Brevities.

—The teachers' association meeting in Denton to-day is looked forward to with interest.

—Elijah Towers, Esq., who has been seriously ill for the past week, is thought to be slightly improving.

—Prof. J. G. Robinson and family gave a musical concert in the M. E. church last Saturday evening for the benefit of the new organ fund. A hundred or more were present.

—Easter Monday looked more like Christmas than Easter as we are accustomed to see it. Snow commenced falling in this place in the morning and continued in occasional squalls into the afternoon.

—The following gentlemen were elected vestrymen of St. Mary's Whitechapel Parish, on Easter-Monday, at Christ Church, Denton: G. M. Russum, P. W. Downes, W. G. Horsey, G. W. Richardson, R. G. Stewart, C. W. Byrn, J. W. Bryant and Chas. Stevens.

—The trustees of the M. E. church at Concord will meet at the church on Thursday next at 9 o'clock A. M. for the purpose of laying walks in and otherwise rearranging the cemetery. The trustees desire that all interested attend.

—Easter services in the Episcopal church last Sunday were highly interesting. The altar was beautifully decorated with flowers, and the music was made a special feature. At the M. E. church special responsive reading service was conducted in the evening. A printed form was used, entitled "From Darkness to Light," in which the superintendent of the Sunday School, as leader, and the school in responses, recited passages of Scripture descriptive of the passion, death and resurrection, in which was intermingled singing by the choir.

Are Peaches Killed Again?

The peach crop since the cold snap early this week has come in for the usual speculation. Some say our peaches are all killed: that in the condition they were, being in full bloom, they could not have stood the biting blast of that January weather in April, and that the peaches don't show their demise simply because it's too cold for mortification to set in. It is believed that in this section the freeze has wrought great harm, how great it can't be told for a week. In the northern section of the Peninsula the buds, fortunately, are backward and it is likely that they have not been injured. In the lower section the danger is greater, because the blossoms are more developed; but the cold is less severe and in many cases orchards are protected by girdles of pine. The winter weather of this week was comparatively dry in its cold, so that, as a coating of ice upon the bud usually does the harm, there seems good reason to conclude that the peaches will pull through. It is to be hoped that enough of them will be left to cause them to pay well.

REPORTS FROM THE PENINSULA.

The Wilmington Every Evening received special dispatches on Tuesday morning from the principal peach sections of the Peninsula. New Castle county, where the buds are not well advanced, and the Eastern Shore counties most exposed to salt air suffer the least. The most damage is reported from the centre of the Peninsula. Following is a summary of reports.

Bridgeville—All open blooms killed, and leading varieties seriously damaged; if, however, no further frost follows there will be full crops of some varieties.

Laurel—Hoar frost last night killed a large proportion of the buds.

Cambridge—Injury not thought serious.

Georgetown—Crop not yet affected.

Middletown—Buds are backward, and not much damage done.

Chestertown—Buds full of ice, damage cannot yet be estimated.

Felton—Little doubt of serious injury.

Salisbury—No serious damage.

Elkton—Growers uneasy; damage not yet known.

That Mule!

The dealer said that he (the mule) was perfectly safe and reliable; that a child could lead him anywhere; and that he was never known to injure any one, either maliciously or by accident. According to the dealer that mule was an epitome of all that is good, true and noble, in short, all possible virtues appertaining to muledom was garnered up in his muleship; furthermore, the dealer said, that he (the mule, not the dealer) was a distant relative of the beast spoken of in Holy Writ, whose wit and intelligence marked him as an orator in preference to his master; in short, the 4,721st great-great-great-grandfather of that mule was an orator, and went about addressing promiscuous audiences on—the theme has escaped me now, even if I ever knew what it was. The dealer furthermore stated that he (the mule) was as playful as a kitten and would make a good companion for a single lady (well banged) of uncertain age. I think "uncertain age" means thirty-five and upwards in all cases, under all conditions and in all climes. Now the uncertain lady of single age did not purchase that mule, but uncle Jim Cruikshanks did, thereupon aunt Jim, who is an inveterate mule-hater, delivered for the benefit of uncle Jim and the immediate neighbors her elaborate and highly sensational antimuleoration from which I make a short extract.

"Now, Jim Cruikshanks, you old goat, you've done it. You've bought that most detestable of all animals, the Sharpley mule, and the result will be broken legs and arms, and perhaps disembowelled children. Just think of it, you old crane, Johnny with a broken arm, Lina with a broken leg and Tommy made a cripple for life, for what! Just to gratify your malicious love for the meanest of all horseflesh—muleflesh. You know that that mule can kick the heads off of the children and all the stars out of a clear sky in five minutes, and raise "Hob" with the country for three miles around. You've bought him just because he will live on nothing, work hard and get fat. Harmless, is he? So is an anaconda, panther or a lion just as harmless as that mule. Won't kick, and as playful as a kitten, is he? You bald-headed old probability. You should have belonged to the Salurian period, and have been petrified in some old rock, or should have met the fair enchantress of the Thuringian forests and had your head turned half round forever, so to remain, you weak-kneed old mother goose! You will be the death of us all yet, and—"

Just at this point an elongated scream at the stable called all hands to arms. "Ow! ow! ow!" finally tapering down to a faint sigh. Johnny was found curled up in the corner with his hands tightly clasped to the lower edge of his apron, trying to scream; but he could not. The mule had tapped him lightly under the belt and Johnny had gone to grass, and was now waiting in his corner. First blood for the mule. Second blood for aunt Jim, who flew at uncle Jim and gathered plastering hair and satisfaction at a lively rate, until uncle Jim vowed he would return the mule to the conscientious dealer, and "never, never purchase another mule." Then she called him a "dear, good man, and the best of husbands."

All this time the mule was an interested observer of events, looking as innocent as a well-fed alderman; but his meekness did not save him; he was returned to the exemplary dealer and is now looking, lovingly longing for another Johnny.

P. C. & Co.

The Pittsburg Sunday Leader quotes: Mr. Martin Karg, Silver Creek, Minn., cured a badly wounded horse with St. Jacobs Oil.

"When I publicly testified that I had been cured of a terrible skin humor by the Cuticura Remedies, I did so that others might be cured, and do not regret the time given to answering inquiries."—Hon. Wm. Taylor, Boston.

Only a Child!

"Only a child, sir," said the sexton, as I stood beside a new made grave. "Only a child, sir; he won't be missed. They're soon forgotten, these little ones, sir, and the older ones, too, for all that." Only a sunny-haired, bright-eyed boy of twenty months; but a mother's idol has been torn from her quivering heart and all that was sunny and beautiful is now darkness and despair. A happy home has been despoiled; the sweet lisping voice of childish innocence has passed over the threshold never to return; aching hearts are longing, yearning to hear again the tiny footfalls as little Nat hastened to greet mamma in the hall, or runs down the walk to meet "Papa at de date." How sweet his imperfect lispings—his simple progress breathed more of heaven to the now stricken mother than the greatest efforts of our most eloquent divines; and his soft tender words will be woven into a beacon of light which, planted upon the walls of Paradise, will guide the mourners to the home of their beautiful boy. Only a child, only a rosy-hued, trembling little life has gone out, like a soft weak flame, to be seen no more on earth; still, memories cling lovingly, tenderly around parents' hearts, and woven in their bright meshes is the brief little life of their angel child.

Only a child, but the Father noted his fall, and All is well.

L. M.

Unsuccessful Teachers.

An exchange contains the following article in reply to the inquiry why certain teachers do not succeed. The answer is:

They are lazy.

They neglect details.

They have no eye to order.

They hope to get along without effort.

They are easily discouraged.

They fail to know what the world is doing.

They do not find out what other teachers are doing.

They do not try to improve.

They have too much outside business. [In Caroline county they have some outside business, simply because their salaries for teaching won't maintain them through the year.]

They fail to have new ideas.

They fail to use such as they have.

They are penny wise and pound foolish.

They have become dry, stale and repulsive to live children.

They think inferior work does just as well as good work.

They are not polite enough.

They think most things take too much trouble.

They use poor judgment.

They do not study the children.

They forget that the art of teaching is an art that requires study.

They can see the weak points in their scholars but not in themselves.

They read no educational papers or books.

They know so much they will learn no more.

They think they cannot learn anything more about their art.

They began with a small stock of ideas and have not increased it.

They follow the same method with each class.

They keep away from their pupils.

They never visit the parents.

They attend no teachers' meeting.

They do not seek for inspiration by studying the methods of the best teachers.

They complain too much. [Because they have to pick huckleberries in the summer for the living they fail to get out of teaching.]

They do not see that the profession is as the teachers themselves raise it.

They do not study the great masters of art.

They drop the school when it is out, and never think of it again until they come before their pupils next day.

They under-rate the business.

They think any one can teach who knows a little about the studies.

They over-estimate themselves.

They under-estimate the pupils.

They think the school was made for them.

They do not take common sense as the guide, but hug a formalism handed down from the dark ages.

They do not study over the lessons.

They fail to manage with tact.

They are not in real earnest to teach so that "to-morrow finds them further than to-day."

Two Counties to the West.

—Hon. Thomas J. Keating was caned a few days ago by Mr. J. Frank Morgan. The cane was a silver-headed one, and was presented as a token of regard.

—A negro boy named Henry Gates was arrested by Constable Hopkins in Chapel district on Tuesday under a capias presentment found by the Talbot Grand Jury last term for assaulting Capt. Robinson Corkran.

—Since the new company have gotten hold of the affairs of the Queen Anne's & Kent Railroad they have made some needed improvements, and they are still doing a great deal. A gang of men are now busily engaged in repairing the bridges and stations along the road. The company seem determined to put the road in good condition, and it was badly in need of it.—Centreville Observer.

Literature.

"The Christian Religion," a series of articles from the North American Review by Col. Robert G. Ingersoll, Judge Jeremiah Black and Prof. Fisher, is published in pamphlet form by North American Review, 30 Lafayette Place, New York. Price 50 cents.

From the publishing house of Bancroft & Co., San Francisco, we have received a small though very well-bound volume of religious poems. The book is without a title, and the author's name is omitted which will prevent its circulation, and the unknown author will therefore realize but little for his work. But perhaps he thought the profit would not be a fair equivalent for a reputation as an author, which he would be compelled to surrender, were his name on the title page.

"How to Make the Best of Life," by J. M. Granville, M. D, is published by S. E. Cassino, 32 Hawley St., Boston. It treats of health, feeling, breathing, drinking, eating, over-work, changes, &c. We think it will aid many to "make the best of life." Price, in cloth, 50 cents.

"Last Words in the Pulpit," is a volume containing Geo. C. Miln's famous sermons—'The Church—Its Past;' 'The Church—Its Present;' 'The Church—Its Future;' 'The Mastery of Love,' and his 'Farewell to the Pulpit.' The book contains a fine portrait of Mr. Miln. Price, in cloth binding, 75 cents; paper 50 cents. Fergus Printing Company, Chicago.

"The Comparative Testament," both versions on the same page in parallel columns, published by Potter & Coates, Philadelphia, has been universally pronounced to be the best form in which the work has appeared; and the great success that has attended it has induced the publishers to add whatever improvements that have occurred to them, or have been suggested by those who make constant use of the book. In accordance with this idea some desirable improvements have been made. This is an invaluable work to students of the Scriptures, giving both versions of the New Testament, that its contents may be easily comprehended. The printing and binding is first class.—The book can be obtained by addressing the publishers.

"The Appledore Cook Book," containing practical receipts for plain and rich cooking has been received from the publisher, Andrew F. Graves, Boston. Of the numerous cook books that has recently been published none seems more complete than "The Appledore." Its compiler, Miss Parloa, has for years been studying and lecturing on the art of cooking, and all the receipts contained in the book have been tested and approved by her. It is for sale at book stores, or by the publisher. Price $1.25.

Grateful Women.

None receive so much benefit, and none are so profoundly grateful and show such an interest in recommending Hop Bitters as women. It is the only remedy peculiarly adapted to the many ills the sex is almost universally subject to. Chills and fever, indigestion or deranged liver, constant or periodical sick headaches, weakness in the back or kidneys, pain in the shoulders and different parts of the body, a feeling of lassitude and despondency, are all readily removed by these Bitters.—Courant.
