

LOCAL INTERESTS.

DENTON, MARYLAND, SATURDAY, APRIL 29, 1882.

The New Registration.

The new registry law does away with the old registration lists altogether, and every voter must be registered anew when the offices are opened, otherwise his vote will be lost.

Levi Scott Indicted.

Dover, April 26.—Court commenced yesterday. There were present on the bench Chief Justice Conroy, Associates Wooten and Wales. The prospect now is that court will last ten days or two weeks.

5,385 Pounds in Three Beesves.

Messrs. Thawley & Gisher, Denton butchers, bought from Mr. William C. Satterfield last week three beesves that outweighed anything in the way of cattle there has lately been in these parts.

The first Quarterly Meeting for Denton Circuit.

The first Quarterly Meeting for Denton Circuit M. E. Church will be held at Sheppard's Chapel next Sunday and Monday, April 30th and May 1st. All day services will be held on Sunday as follows: Love feast at 9, and preaching at 10.30 A. M., by Rev. A. D. Davis.

Snow Storm April 24th.

A storm that came to notice first at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, on Friday evening and that dropped snow on Northern Virginia and Maryland on its way east, swept across the peach lands of the Peninsula on Sunday.

Fruit Canning at Denton Bridge.

We are gratified to announce that there is a prospect of the large causing establishment at Denton Bridge being put into operation the coming season. Charles H. Gibson, Esq., agent for the owners, has been solicited by a Philadelphia firm who propose to rent or buy and set the establishment running with capital sufficient to carry on an extensive business.

Sudden Death of Mrs. Cook.

Mrs. Marietta Cook, relict of the late Clinton Cook, formerly of Queen Anne's county, died very suddenly at the residence of her son, Clinton Cook, whom she was visiting in this town on Tuesday night last, about 9.30 o'clock.

Novel Views on Fish Hatching.

The fishing failure again this year is well nigh driving those engaged in it to exasperation. A son of Erin owns a shore near town, and in years gone by he has counted his profits by the five hundred dollars a season, but for the last three years he has barely paid the running expenses of his fishing.

New Advertisements.

—Read Thompson & Kersey's new display. —Salisbury Brothers, Ridgely, dealers in farming implements, building materials, etc., have a large advertisement in this issue, which will interest farmers.

—We refer those wishing to buy music or musical instruments to the well known and reliable house of Otto Sutro, Baltimore; advertised in this paper.

—Our readers will find in another column the advertisement of Stewart's new store. There is nothing of bombast in it—it is straightforward and to the point. He says "nothing in it but what he expects to perform. He is at the old stand on Main street opposite the bank. Call and see him, and we are sure he will treat you right.

Personal Mention.

—Mr. John Straughn, representing Thompson & Kersey, was in town Wednesday.

—Mr. Thos. Dawson of D. C. Avery & Co., was through Denton Thursday.

—Mr. Chas. F. Willis, of the firm of Willis & Redden, spent three days of this week in Baltimore purchasing new goods.

—Maj. Wm. E. Stewart has received a formal invitation to deliver the annual address before Mt. Vernon Literary Society of Washington College, Chestertown, Md., on the 11th of July next. The Society is particularly fortunate in selecting so gifted an orator for the occasion.

—The services at Christ Church, Easton, on Sunday morning last, were of an impressive and interesting character, it being the occasion of the ordination to the diaconate of Mr. Frank B. Adkins, son of Dr. I. L. Adkins, president of the Easton National Bank. Bishop Jay officiated. Mr. Adkins has been assigned by the Bishop to duty in Spring Hill parish, Wicomico Co.

Ridgely.

The city was early astir this (Monday) morning, for it was rumored that the new steamer Jumbo was to be landed, fired up, attached to her thrasher and caused to make a grand parade through our spacious streets and magnolia-lined avenues. It was rumored that, with the first streak of day, Miller & Day, owners of the engine and thrasher, were found sitting on the engine ready to "fire up." Rumor also says that Miller slept under the engine and Day slept under the thrasher, the previous night. There may be some mistake in this rumor, but I give it for what it is worth, or on the responsibility of the common council, as you may elect. The engine started on her trial trip about four o'clock, and behaved "elegantly," as one said. This engine is to be used in the sawmill until threshing time, when she will be attached to her thrasher and make a tour of the county, leaving a golden track behind her.

Local Breivites.

—Don't forget Ford's readings in the court house next Tuesday night. —Since the organization of the conclave of Hepatosoph six months ago, this order has constantly gained in popularity in this community. —The new comet will be visible in about two weeks, by night; but it is unnecessary for the young people to sit up nights, for the comet can be seen in broad daylight in July. —Prof. S. T. Ford, the elocutionist, who is announced to read in the court house next Tuesday night, comes highly recommended, and a charming entertainment is expected. —The funeral of Mrs. Chaffinch, the wife of Henry C. Chaffinch of Potter's Landing, took place at Concord on last Saturday. The funeral sermon was preached by the Rev. A. D. Davis of the M. E. Church.

The Importance of a Teacher.

To the Editor of the Journal: A school teacher should be, in the broadest sense of the word, a model man—a model in manners, a model in scholarship, a model in virtue. Christianity should find in him that union of faith and works which ever characterizes its truest followers. His work consists in training youth in educating human beings, in bringing body and mind to that state of perfection of which they are capable: than this, no other task which it is our duty to perform can be more important or more difficult. Parents, who are teaching their children? It is a well settled fact that the mental and moral character of the child are greatly influenced by those of its teacher. It is a disputed question whether the parents' influence in this regard is greater than the teacher's. Who will dispute that these qualities in the offspring are not influenced by the same qualities in their progenitors? And this is no mere effect of transmission than association. If parents use good language, so will their children; if parents discuss intelligently, their children take up the habit; if parents are educated and point out to their children the benefits and beauties of an educated mind, their children will seek and obtain this qualification. Equally is this true of the moral education. In the eyes of children what their parents will not do is wrong. So we justly say "as the twig is bent so will the tree incline." Parents, do you not know that the teacher has almost as much influence in this matter as you have? If you do not it is a fact worthy of your attention. Would you have your children make men and women inferior to those in other parts of your state? If their teacher is inferior, this you are already doing. The child thinks its teacher is a model of intelligence; if the teacher is inferior, then the young mind has an imperfect model, from which no perfect thing can be made. If the teacher is industrious, his pupils are industrious; if he is sluggish, they sleep with him. If the teacher strikes for that which ennobles him, and makes him both useful and independent, his pupils imitate his examples. Parents, we ask you again who is teaching your children? Is he a success or a failure? Does he progress as a man, or does he seem content with what he knows? In what would you have your children learn the importance of this question they will no longer be willing that the salary of their teacher should be less

Suicide of Frank E. Parvis.

Frank E. Parvis, aged about 28, well known in the upper part of the county, where he was born and raised, committed suicide Tuesday night last by hanging himself through the head at Henderson, where he had been visiting his uncle, Mr. Thomas F. B. Parvis, a merchant at that place. The family occupies the rooms over the store as a dwelling, and all had gone to bed Tuesday night, when young Parvis and his uncle heard unusual noises in the store room just below, and arising themselves with a pistol they went down. They found that nothing but rats were making the noise, and the senior returned to his bed immediately, but young Parvis said he believed he would remain and try and kill some of the troublesome rats any way. The pistol was left below with the young man, and soon the report of a shot rang through the house and aroused everybody. "What are you doing down there?" came from above, and young Parvis answered back that he had only fired at a rat, and said that if he only had somebody to hold his lamp for him he might kill some. He was told to come to bed and improved for his cranky conduct, and all was quiet again until a few moments another shot was fired, after which the man failed to answer to the calls from above. The family was alarmed, and Mr. Parvis hurried below to see his nephew writing in the agonies of death on the store floor. It was a suicide. A bullet had been sent crashing into his head just behind the right ear, and is supposed to have been the result of the second shot. The first bullet left no mark on the suicide's body. It is supposed that the plea of shooting rats was a ruse to prevent interruption in his desperate act. Beside the suicide lay the pistol and an empty lantern phial, and he doubtless nerved himself to the rash deed by the laudanum. He lingered about twenty-four hours. Deceased seemed to be well ordered in mind, of pleasant disposition, and was highly thought of. No cause is assigned for his taking his own life except a long-standing complaint of indigestion. His Uncle seems not to have suspected anything wrong from his department. Young Parvis was born and reared in this county, near Melville, and was well known throughout. He was unmarried.

than that of a common laborer; because competent teachers will not teach for $60 a term when they can go in other countries and command from eighty-five dollars to one hundred. A good teacher is cheap at any price; a bad teacher is costly, though he charge you nothing and board himself. When parents shall fully appreciate the fact that the mental and moral worth of their children, as men and women, depends to a great measure upon the impressions made on the young mind in the school-room, they will surely, as a matter of both justice and economy, appeal to the Commissioners to raise the salary and to employ competent teachers. The parent who is not willing to pay a school tax, and give his children an equal chance in the world with other children, is unworthy of the title of do so, is not worthy of the child whom Providence and free government seek to protect.

As we make no reduction from prices marked, of course we make it so low it cannot be sold for less. In the show windows of one of Baltimore's big houses, we saw two suits the same as we have marked $29 and $12; our prices net $8 and $11.40.
