ENOCH GEORGE, Chairman.
HOWARD MELVIN, Secretary.

THERE was more "Bunker Hill" patriotism in Denton on Tuesday than ever appeared here on any single day before.

THE convention of the Queen Anne county Republicans, held last Tuesday, decided to put no ticket in the field this fall. The Democrats are therefore having an easy time of it.

THE Union of this week contains another false statement to the effect that the Democrats intend to sacrifice the rest of the ticket to secure the election of Mr. Gadd. Such a course is not only not dreamed of by any Democrat, but it is well known that Mr. Gadd is as honest in politics as he is the discharge of his official duties, and would rather suffer defeat than to compromise his colleagues in this manner. Nor is there any necessity for so doing, as it is generally conceded that the whole ticket will be elected by a handsome majority.

THE CHANCES of the Republican ticket for election have every day grown beautifully less. The Republicans themselves have observed it, and despair has made them reckless. Hoping to retrieve their fallen fortunes, they are making the most absurd charges, and circulating the wildest stories. In their frantic efforts to make political capital.

They hope to gain sympathy by declaring their discomfiture to be but the effect of "Democratic tricks."

"Like men at twigs in rivers sprawling,
They catch at myths to save their falling."

MR. JAS. N. TODD, editor of the American Union, publishes a card in our advertising columns to-day as a reply to Mr. A. T. Warren. It seems that Mr. Todd, in a recent issue of his paper, asserted that Mr. Warren accepted a place on the anti-bribery ticket because of disappointment in getting a nomination on the Republican ticket. To this assertion Mr. Warren replied by an advertisement in last week's JOURNAL, handling Mr. Todd in a most severe manner. The attack made upon the young man's character was, we think, without sufficient provocation, and entirely unjustifiable, and reflects much discredit upon Mr. Warren, who is a gentleman held in high esteem in this vicinity.

Personal abuse and recrimination are always to be deprecated by intelligent and law abiding people.

Mr. Todd's rejoinder, which bears little relevancy to the point of sustaining the Union's charge against Mr. Warren's political record, is also couched in language far removed from that which should be employed by a gentleman occupying his position in the community.

"FIRST, the ticket will not be elected. Second, it will draw the best thinking men from all parties—"

So read Mr. L. M. Keedy, who addressed the anti-bribery meeting held in the Town Hall in Denton last Tuesday, quoting the words as taken from an editorial in a recent issue of the JOURNAL. This, he said, was "a great admission," and he proceeded thereupon to preach a little sermon from it. We are always glad to furnish statesmen at home and abroad political axioms for their guidance, and we feel sure that if the gentlemen composing the anti-bribery organization had heeded the JOURNAL'S practical suggestions they would not be in the field pursuing the present beautiful phantom; but we must decline to father this remarkable utterance. The orator read from an anonymous correspondent and not from the true Democratic teachings of the JOURNAL.

The ticket that will "draw the best thinking men from both parties" is the Democratic ticket, composed as it is of men best qualified for the positions to which they have been nominated. Vote the Democratic ticket!

AN exchange grows humorous over the announced retirement of a Maryland editor: "Editor Busted, of the Centreville Observer, has retired from the newspaper business. We are not surprised that an editor with such—but no, we desist! We never strike a man when he's down."

Republican Prospects Sadden Editor Todd.

From the Denton Union.

It is good for a man to be checked, crossed and disappointed, made to feel his own weakness, folly; made to feel his need of God; to feel in spite of all his cunning and self-confidence, he is no better off in this world than in a dark forest.

Viewing the Fight from Kent.

From the Chestertown Transcript.

The three-cornered fight in Caroline progresses in a very lively manner. The Democrats grow more confident of winning as election day approaches. The gallant Luther Gadd, the Democratic candidate for clerk, is winning from all parties—Republicans and anti-bribery people included. The people of Caroline know that Gadd is a first-rate fellow, and that he has made a first-rate clerk, and amidst the conflicting din of party claims they will vote for him regardless of party. Hurrah for Gadd and a Democratic victory in "old Calline."

A Libelous Newspaper.

About 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, Wm. T. Kelley, in company with the two most prominent Democratic nominees, and followed by many leading Democrats, marched to the court house steps. It looked something like a funeral procession, but "Moses" mounted the steps and then proceeded to announce the ticket which had, a few minutes before, been made up in the JOURNAL office.—Union.

This statement is not only absolutely false, but we are inclined to think that the Union editor knows it to be without the slightest foundation. The Republicans have all along sedulously striven to saddle the responsibility of the fourth ticket upon the Democrats, making an especial effort to implicate the JOURNAL.

While a simple denial on our part of any charges made by the Union no matter with what vehemence they were urged, would suffice, yet we deem it not out of place to say that the bills calling Tuesday's convention were printed at the Union office. We are informed that these bills were afterwards collected by several Republicans and destroyed. The JOURNAL had not the slightest hint of a single name on the ticket until it was made public on Tuesday, and any statement to the contrary is false

Moreover, Mr. Kelley, instead of being "followed by many leading Democrats," was surrounded by a crowd of colored voters, eager to hear him speak, and he was only prevented from addressing them by the monkeyish antics and the incoherent, boisterous and outrageous language of Col. A. J. Willis and others, who were present evidently for the purpose of breaking up the meeting. If the Union would display a little less self-confidence and show greater discretions in its statements they would bear a greater semblance of truth.

Washington Notes.

Correspondence of THE JOURNAL.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 21, '85.

Now that the President is preparing to leave the city for a while the whole country watch his actions with interest, and wonder how the Government manages to run itself without hitch or friction while he is out of the city. He will go direct to Buffalo and cast his ballot for Governor Hill like a good citizen, and return in about four days. He will be accompanied by Secretary Manning and Colonel Lamont as far as New York. At present the President holds three public receptions every week, and if a man wishes to get rid of the blues he will do well to attend one of them. Because the President forgot his dignity the other day and condescended to kiss a little child, he brought down upon himself the wrath of an old woman who buttonholed him at reception time and gave him to understand that the head of the government had no right to kiss every child that might come along, and thus catch malaria, diphtheria, or some other dreadful disease, and in that way jeopardize the affairs of the nation. As it did not matter this once, she offered him a bottle of some mixture to ward off the evil effects, and cautioned him to be careful in the future. The President laughingly gave the exacted promise, and has, most likely, stored the bottle away in his medicine chest for future reference.

It is the general impression that the nominations coming before the Senate this winter for confirmation will not be antagonized any more than if a Republican President made them. They will be considered upon the merits of each case, and not on political grounds. A few Republican Senators favor the latter method, but they are not numerous enough to to have any weight. At no time have all the nominations sent to the Senate been confirmed, even when the President and the Senate were in political accord. Hence it is not to be expected that all the nominations of President Cleveland will be confirmed. Of the six hundred postmasters appointed by the President, about two hundred and fifty were made to fill vacancies made by removals for various causes. It is stated that a resolution will be introduced into the Senate calling for copies of the charges in each case, and the reason for the change. If this is done, quite a lively tilt between the appointing power and the Senate may be looked for.

An enterprising New Jersey citizen has sent to the Executive Mansion an ingenious model of the White House, which he wishes the President to buy for $95; but as the President has as much of the genuine as he wants, the device stands in the vestibule awaiting the orders of the owner. The miniature White House is a clever piece of workmanship, and is quite true to life in the movements of the figures representing daily scenes about the mansion.

Prof. Graham Bell, of telephone fame, has just established a school for teaching the deaf and dumb to receive and communicate thoughts by a motion of the lips, and in connection with the school has a department for qualifying young women to teach the system. The Professor's wife is deaf and dumb, and this has led him to take a deep interest in the education of that class.

A delegation of Cherokee Indians is now here, headed by Chief Bushyhead, to induce the Government to eject certain intruders from their reservation. The Indians wander about the city decked out in gay colors, with strings of wampum and beads hung around their necks. Some of them have the white man's dress, but most of them fold the primitive blanket around their tall and muscular frames, and create a great deal of amusement by their innocent ways, and manner of gazing at strange sights, with mouths wide open. We usually have four or five delegations every year, who come to have a "pow-wow" with their Great Father, who treats them so badly.

Upon recommendation of Secretary Lamar, the President has suspended United States Judge Vincent, of New Mexico, lately appointed. The cause is the selection of Stephen Dorsey, of Star-Route fame, as one of three Commissioners to select grand and petit jurors in Colfax county, where the Interior Department contemplated bringing suit on certain fraudulent land transactions. Dorsey and others have been large land speculators in that county, and the Department did not want Dorsey to have a voice in the selection of the juries.

The United States Supreme Court opened its fall term last Monday. On motion, seventeen lawyers were admitted to practice before the bar. Among them was a colored man from Florida, whose admission was moved by Senator Call. Ben Butler was seen among the other members of the bar present. There were 1,040 cases on the docket. Last year 460 cases were disposed of. An intermediate court, which has been talked of for some years past, will some time soon have to be provided, so as to relieve the Court of the pressure of cases now brought before it. H.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

A Card.

I notice while perusing the American Union of to-day's issue several articles of rather a reflective character, dedicated to your humble subscriber, and also learning from outside parties that a similar article would appear in the JOURNAL'S next issue, I reply as follows: Appreciating your kindness in the past, Mr. Editor, in granting the use of your advertising columns, I forbear from again asking the use of the same for the purpose of making a specific denial of accusations, but merely to state that I will discuss and reply to all charges, insinuations and assertions made by the Union's editor upon the platform, from Marydel to Federalsburg. Let the white-haired boy spread himself. If his course is in keeping with the programme of the Republican party and he their recognized oracle there certainly will be great cause for rejoicing in the Democratic camp. The around-the-corner policy won't work this fall. As far as offers of apology are concerned, by myself, I simply deny the same. A. T. WARREN.

October 22, 1885.

To the Public.

At a public meeting held in the court house, in Denton, on the 20th inst., called by handbills that I had posted, inviting all who favored a more sincere consideration of the colored people in their political rights to be present and listen to a speech to be made by a colored man, S. Q. Sanks, of Baltimore, there was committed such an outrage upon public speech as never has before disgraced the county. The speaker, Sanks, whom I had employed to assist me in a canvass of the county in my earnest and honest endeavor for the betterment of the colored people, had been induced, it is said, by threats or rewards, after all his professions of interest in the political emancipation of his race, to abandon his purpose. He had been visited by prominent Republicans, and was so unstable as to submit to their selfish influences. The meeting was taken possession of and Mr. Tilghman Nuttle called to the chair. Mr. Sanks's new friends succeeding in thus capturing the meeting, Sanks made a speech of several minutes. I intended to follow him and expose him in a short address to the people, but was not permitted. I, who for so many years had been the friend of the Caroline county colored people was rudely denied the right to speak to them.

Col. A. J. Willis, a man whom I had held in the highest respect, had the audacity as I was speaking to ask me several insinuating and very insulting questions, which deserved and received my utmost contempt, and the people who are acquainted with me will condemn such action. Not being allowed to speak and hurt at the words of my friends I left the room. I was hurt by the jeers of these young colored men whose fathers I had befriended when friends of the colored men here were few. But I know that they would not have thus conducted themselves but for the poor advice of indiscreet politicians. Thus was insult added to the cruelest injury. I feel and know that these cruel thrusts at an old man's character will be "sometime, somewhere righted though the hour be long delayed."

WM. T. KELLEY.

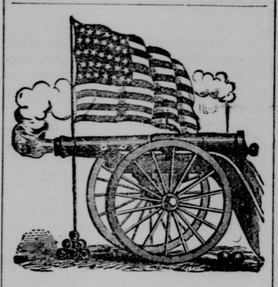

A Card.

In last week's JOURNAL appeared an article purporting to be written by A. T. Warren, a sore, sick and disappointed Republican. This fall he is on the anti-bribery ticket, and the reasons for his being there were fully set forth in last week's Union, which he doesn't attempt to deny. He seeks to satisfy his inherent or long since acquired wicked propensities by publishing a slanderous, indecent article which is not only notoriously false, but he knew it was false when he wrote it. A number of his heretofore friends have come to me tendering apologies and expressing their utter contempt. No apologies should be received for the wrongdoings of dirty dogs, liars and blackguards; they don't know what honorable amends are. His false assertions have brought upon him a suit for libel, and the law will properly amend. A young man endeavoring, in his native home, to stand before the people honorably and to receive the reputation due a gentleman, shall not be slandered by a quick-tempered Yankee without taking the consequences. The fact is, the truth hurt this "bolter." He attempts to be a prominent Methodist; the truth is, he's making himself a prominent, full-fledged hypocrite.

Did he or not offer to put into the corruption fund two years ago a certain amount of money on condition that if the Republican commissioners were elected he should be appointed treasurer? Did he or not, when Dr. A. Stafford read a resolution on anti-bribery preparatory to submitting it to open Republican convention, become the first one to reject it and say "we must fight the devil with fire?" Is he or not a "bolter" from the Republican party? Has he or not reason to know that the things stated in the article referred to, and written by him are utterly false?

If he answers nay to these interrogatories, or either of them, he is a dirty, willful, hypocritical liar.
