Democratic Mass-Meetings.

THE voters of Caroline county are cordially invited to attend the public mass-meetings arranged for the campaign, at the following places, namely:

Preston, (at 2 p. m.) Oct. 31.
Harmony, (at 6 p. m.) Oct 31.

A number of able and eloquent speakers will be present at each meeting.

ENOCH GEORGE, Chairman.
HOWARD MELVIN, Secretary.

Mr. Stevens.

There are many members of the Republican organization who, like many Democrats, take but little active interest in the choosing of county nominees, but who on the day of election prefer to give their support to their party's candidates, if the efficiency of the public service is in no wise jeopardized by it. But even these quiet voters are emphatically identified with the respective parties and are measurably responsible for the action of their representatives.

The present campaign, now about ended, has been characterized by very active work by all the nominees. This is entirely proper, for it is only by a thorough investigation of the qualifications of the nominees which a canvass discloses, that a proper appreciation of merit may be obtained by the people. A clean-handed and open canvass is in itself a recommendation. So far as our knowledge goes both parties' nominees, with but a single exception, have acquitted themselves like good citizens, doing no discredit, as party men, to the principles and organization of their respective parties, and will bow to the will of the people that shall be expressed on Tuesday next.

The action of the candidate who furnishes the exception referred to should be condemned by his party in proportion to the words and acts of commendation that his colleagues upon the ticket deserve and receive.

Loyal Republicans should summon before their tribunal Mr. B. Gootee Stevens, their candidate for clerk, and propound to him the following queries to which they, as faithful members of the Republican party, are entitled to direct replies:

1. Have you or have you not, tacitly or directly, bargained with Clinton Cook, a quondam member of the Democratic party, now holding an office under that party, by which for traitorous, underhanded work among the Democrats, with whom he claims to have an influence, in your individual behalf, you are to give to him, in the event of your election, a position as deputy in the clerk's office?

2. Did or did not your son, Arthur John Willis Stevens, in your behalf make substantially the following proposition to a Fourth district Democrat: "If you will vote for my father I will vote for Mr. Clement Noble instead of Mr. George W. Ernst?"

3. Did or did not you say to a friend, a short time before your nomination, that with ten thousand dollars you could elect the commonest negro to any office in the county?

THE loyal Democrats of Baltimore gained a complete victory on Wednesday over the combined forces of the Republicans, independents and bolters. Hurrah for Hodges and another Democratic victory!

IT is a fact that there is a man riding over the county offering $20 to anyone who will vote one man on the Republican ticket, and it is currently reported that the Republican thus being looked after is B. G. Stevens. This can be proved. Apply at this office.

CLINTON COOK, a young man who made an active canvass for the nomination for the office of clerk of the circuit court, has, we are reliably informed, and publish now on our own authority, bolted the Democratic ticket in consideration of the promise from Mr. B. Gootee Stevens of the appointment as a deputy in the clerk's office in the event of Mr. Stevens's election. This bargain clearly explains the declaration that Cook is now making:

"I expect to swear the next jury."

DEMOCRATS, examine your ticket carefully before you deposit it. The Republicans are distributing Democratic tickets with certain Republicans put in the place of some of the Democratic candidates. If you would vote your sentiments, look at your ticket carefully.

DEMOCRATIC LEGIONS will by their united voice rebuke the man who claims to be able to elevate the commonest negro to any office in Caroline county by the use of ten thousand dollars in vote-buying.

"I EXPECT to swear the next jury."—Cook.

THERE is a report in circulation to the effect that Mr. Geo. T. Melvin stated to Mr. Frederick P. Roe, in Denton last Saturday, that if Roe would vote for Mr. Gadd for clerk, Melvin would vote for Roe's father for Senator. This report, Mr. Melvin requests us to say, is maliciously false.

"TEN THOUSAND DOLLARS will elect the commonest negro to any office in Caroline county."—B. Gootee Stevens.

REPORTS are out that fraud will be attempted at certain polling places in the lower part of the county. To prevent this, vigilance committees will be at the polls, and all fraudulent practices will be detected, and the offenders apprehended. Let lawbreakers, who seek thus to defeat the Democratic ticket, beware, unless they desire a term in the penitentiary.

THE anti-bribery ticket advocates think Mr. John H. Emerson the best specimen of short felt wants to be had. Long felt wants are more numerous.

"TEN THOUSAND DOLLARS will elect the commonest negro to any office in Caroline county," is the shameless declaration of B. G. Stevens, the Republican candidate for clerk, so we are credibly informed. For weeks this statement has been floating over the county and credited to Mr. Stevens. It has several times reached him and we have waited patiently for a specific denial of the same, for we were loth to believe that a man of Mr. Stevens's standing would father such an infamous libel upon the honest voters of Caroline. The columns of the JOURNAL are always open alike to Democrats and Republicans for the refutation of false charges, but Mr. Stevens has not denied the charge through the JOURNAL or any other paper, nor has he in any way attempted to discredit it. Let the honest voters by their ballots on Tuesday rebuke the man who boldly asserts that with a few dollars he controls their manhood; who secretly contracts with a disappointed renegade for the place of chief deputy; and who is even now distributing tickets with the names of all the Democratic nominees save one—and that one replaced by his own—for the purpose of securing his own election by the defeat of his colleagues.

SOMEBODY ought to inform B. G. Stevens & Co. that among the rights guaranteed by this Government to the colored man is the right to vote for a Democrat if he wants to.

BRADLEY JOHNSON ATTACKS SENATOR GORMAN.

And is Ably Answered by Congressman C. H. Gibson.

Gen. Bradley T. Johnson's speech at the Democratic mass-meeting at Easton, Tuesday of last week, in the course of which he sharply criticised Senator Gorman, was a great surprise, and is freely commented on.

Gen. Johnson commenced his speech by stating that professional engagements would prevent his taking an active part in the campaign, but that his sense of duty to the Democratic party, and his desire to help an old comrade, who is a candidate for the Senate in Talbot, both impelled him to appear on this occasion.

Gen. Johnson argued that it was necessary to enlist the young men in the cause of Democracy, urging that they were the power of the State, the force that controls society; have enthusiasm, ambition, noble aspirations They are repelled by intrigue, by bargain and sale, by corruption in all its forms; their self-respect will not permit them to submit to degrading subserviency to party managers for base purposes. This feeling elected Cleveland in 1883, Pattison in Pennsylvania in 1883 and Cleveland again in 1884. The course of the Democratic party must be such as to give us the benefit of it here.

Gen Johnson continued: "From the above statement of my views of Democratic principles and policy it will be perceived that I must be opposed to the re-election of Senator Gorman. I am opposed to it.

"First. Because he believes in and practices the system of party management practiced by Blaine in Maine, by Tammany and Tweed, Conkling and Johnny Davenport in New York, by Cameron in Pennsylvania and by Mahone in Virginia. He has introduced federal patronage and the expectation of it as a power in our State politics, and he, a Senator of the United States, is now acting as chairman of the State central committee, substantially self-appointed, using the power and organization of the party to secure his re-election.

"Second. Because he approves of the principle of Higgins and the practices of Morris Thomas. He holds them up as worthy of the emulation of our young men, by appointing them to responsible, conspicuous and lucrative offices, thus setting up a standard for party effort utterly opposed to good morals, which, unless repudiated by the party, must drive from the support of its organization all self-respecting and honorable men.

"Third. Because he is a failure as a party manager, for he has in the ten years of his control of the party organization steadily reduced its overwhelming majorities in the State to a miserable faction of power. He is managing the party to death.

"Fourth. Because he neither believes in nor practices Democratic principles, for he is in favor of taxing the people to protect local interests, and to subsidize favored enterprises.

"For these and other reasons, I believe that the future of the party in this State requires that some Democrat shall be sent to the Senate to represent this State."

Gen. Johnson's audience was not in sympathy with him, and his attack on Mr. Gorman is severely criticised and condemned by the county. Hon. Chas. H. Gibson, who is a resident of Talbot county, went to the platform to reply to Gen. Johnson's charges against Mr. Gorman, but the meeting adjourned until 7½ o'clock. He did not have the opportunity of replying as he wished to do, at once. At night an immense meeting was held in the court-room, at which Mr. Gibson spoke and vigorously replied to Gen. Johnson's attacks on Mr. Gorman. He had the sympathy of his entire audience. That Gen. Johnson should have taken advantage of his invitation to speak here to attack Mr. Gorman is universally condemned by the Democrats, while it causes rejoicing among the Republicans.

Mr. Gibson spoke rapidly, as he usually does, and while evidently under strong excitement, maintained a dignified and temperate demeanor. After alluding to the grateful reflections of the Democratic party upon its success, which had, after many years of tribulation and patient work and waiting, at last crowned its efforts in the election of Cleveland, he spoke of Senator Gorman's course, and when New York was trembling in the balance, how his firmness and watchfulness had inspired confidence in the American people, that the fraud of '76 should not be repeated in '84; how the country, not alone his State, had universally accorded to him the meed of praise, which it was equally conceded was his due, Mr. Gibson said: "If A. P. Gorman had been chairman of the committee eight years ago, we would have had Tilden in 1876."

Then, referring to the deserved influence Mr. Gorman had won with the present administration, Mr. Gibson said the attacks made upon him elsewhere were inspired by the envy, hatred and malice born of the jealousy which filled the hearts of men calling themselves Democrats, who carped at him and caviled at methods which they would be glad of the opportunity to imitate, although they did characterize them as belonging to Davenport and Tweed in New York and Mahone in Virginia. Mr. Gibson strongly repelled all such statements and insinuations. He asserted that Senator Gorman was not a failure—not as a manager or "boss"—but as a Democratic leader, with the welfare of the party as the prime consideration moving him. The very people who were maligning him would only be too glad to resort to the same methods could the opportunity be afforded them. They had sought the worst of methods in their blind rage in seeking to hand over the party by coalescing with its enemies under the specious guise of reform, &c. The class of men here and elsewhere, especially in Baltimore city, calling themselves independents, who at this time, in this the hour of the party's triumph, emerging as it were from the gloom of the past twenty-five years into the clear sunshine of this the brightest day in its history, moved by envy to the gratification of personal ends and personal malice, could step out of the ranks, join hands with Republicans and seek to pull down what they had not the genius and the energy to build up, were renegades and traitors to the Democratic party. Mr. Gibson compared all such to the youth who fired the Ephesian dome. He honored men of all parties who consistently acted up to the principles of their faith, but the so-called Democrats who fight under the banner of independents he characterized as men without party, without principles, without aim, save the gratification of personal spleen, who unfurl the black flag of the pirate upon the high seas of hatred and rage. He then referred to Col. Marshall, whom he had always regarded with admiration and respect, regretting, he stated, to be obliged to particularize him as going out of his way even, in his assaults upon his party in Mr. Hodges's candidacy for mayor of Baltimore, to cast an unworthy slur upon the section of the State where he, the speaker, was born and lived, and was proud to represent as his district in Congress—the Eastern Shore of Maryland. Mr. Gibson paid a glowing tribute to his section and his people, and said that no Maryland-born man had ever been found who, forgetful of his goodly heritage, sought to cast a slur upon any section of his State. The readjusting processes born of the Virginia idea were not wanted in Maryland, and would not be tolerated by the Democrats of Maryland at Col. Marshall's bidding. Referring again to the attacks upon Senator Gorman, he said they were an insult, not to the man, but to the Democratic party and to the State of Maryland. He was Maryland's accredited representative in the United States Senate, and until he had been tried in the balance of public opinion and found wanting in some other tribunal than that set up by Col. Marshall, Mr. Wallis and others, the assaults upon his honor, his integrity and his devotion to his party would fail as harmlessly to effect him in his triumphant return to the United States Senate as would the snapping of a mousing owl disturb an eagle in his eyrie. "The pathway to success of the jealous rage of those who are seeking to knife us in this hour of triumph," added Mr. Gibson, "leads across the grave of the Democratic party in Maryland."

Washington Notes.

Correspondence of THE JOURNAL.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 28, '85.

Changes in the government offices are of more frequent occurrence now than at any time since President Cleveland assumed the functions of the Presidential chair. The changes are many and high in official standing. If whisperings in the air are of any significance, a long list of appointments may be looked for in the ides of November. The powers that be have not been idle all this time. The value of the positions and the men well suited to fill them have been in the mind's eye of the dispensers of government favors for some time; and, while great bodies move slowly, it is now considered wise to touch the electric key and put the elect in the offices set aside for them before the legislative branch of the government sweeps down on the executive branch in the interests of rival aspirants only to complicate matters.

Every change of administration, especially where there is a change in its political complexion, brings to the surface some scum that leaves the surface cleaner and purer when removed. At times it arises in the form of an aspirant for advancement, who constitutes himself a volunteer informer to pull down a brother employee that he may profit by his downfall. A case of this kind is in mind now, because it has attracted such general attention and received almost universal condemnation where known. In a certain bureau there is a chief of division who has filled a position of honor with credit to himself and the bureau for more than twenty years. The position calls for the exercise of a legal mind, a discriminating judgment, a technical knowledge of various arts and sciences, and executive ability to dispatch the business coming before the particular division. This official has always filled the requirements of his position to the general satisfaction of the large body of eminent lawyers from all parts of the country practicing in the office, and of the numerous chiefs who have been called to preside over the bureau during that period. Even the courts have more than once complimented this gentleman in passing upon cases which passed from his jurisdiction to theirs, and in mooted questions in the bureau this person's judgment has been accepted to govern the final decision. Just now two of this official's assistants and a few other employees, evidently prompted by jealousy and other evil motives, are engaged in circulating all sorts of stories as to favorteism and gross carelessness on the part of their superior, who has on more than one occasion befriended them. They reckon without their host, however, this time, because the new chief of the bureau is a man who sifts things to the core and loves justice, and will mete it out impartially to all concerned. The mills of the gods grind slowly, yet they grind exceedingly small.

Secretary Manning has just ordered the dismissal of several clerks because they won't pay their bills. He is tired of being dunned on account of other people's bills, and says his clerks must pay up or get out. It will be safe to credit clerks in his department from this time forth.

The event of the day in religious circles has been the advent of Canon Farrar, the renowned English archdeacon. He lectured last Friday and Saturday evenings to crowded houses and on the Sabbath preached at St. John's, the oldest, most aristocratic and smallest Episcopal church in the city. The doors of the church were not opened till past eleven o'clock, after all the pewholders and their invited guests had gained admission through a side entrance and been seated when the doors were opened to let the throng of people outside see that there was no room inside for them.

The question of making the Commissioner of Agriculture a full-fledged Cabinet officer is being agitated by progressive farmers and agricultural scientists, and some day they will doubtless realize their wishes. At their recent convention at Richmond the farmers of Virginia passed resolutions instructing their representatives in Congress to press the matter in that body this coming winter. This is as it should be, and if the grangers of the whole country would only follow up the move of Virginia we would soon have another member among the President's advisers.

One of our leading architects has prepared drawings for the addition of a ball room to the residence recently leased by Secretary Whitney. The room will be handsome and spacious, of about fifty by twenty feet, with a large bay window on one side. The special feature of the room will be an immense fire-place at the far end. The entrance will be from the drawing-room. The matter of decorations has not yet been decided upon. The Secretary is inclined to bring from his handsome house in New York city some Gobelin tapestries of rare patterns for the walls. In that event the ball-room will have the richest and most beautiful garniture of any in the Capital.

Other residences are being fitted up on the same scale regardless of cost, and the coming season will equal if not exceed any past season in the elegance of the receptions and social events transpiring. This, above all others, will be the winter for visitors to come to Washington. H.

THE annual meeting of the Association of Public School Commissioners will be held at the State Normal School, Baltimore, on Tuesday and Wednesday, November 24 and 25.
