POETRY.

The following beautiful Poem is from CROLY'S ANGEL OF THE WORLD.

The weeper raised the veil; a ruby lip
First dawn'd; then glow'd the young cheek's deeper hue,
Yet delicate as roses when they dip
Their odorous blossoms in the morning dew.

Then beam'd the eyes, twin stars of living blue,
Half shaded by the curls of glossy hair,
That turn'd to golden as the light wind threw
Their clusters in the western golden glare,
Yet was her blue eye dim, for tears were standing there.

He look'd upon her, and her hurried gaze
Was at his look drop'd instant on the ground:
But o'er her cheek of beauty rush'd a blaze,
Her bosom heaved above its silken bound,
As if the soul, had felt some sudden wound.

He look'd again—the cheek was deadly pale,
The bosom sunk with one long sigh profound,
Yet still one lilly hand upheld her veil,
And one still press'd her heart—that sigh told all its tale

* * * * * * *

Beauty, what art thou, that thy slightest gaze
Can make the spirit from the centre roll,
Its whole long course, a sad and shadowy maze,
Thou midnight or thou noontide of the soul.
One glorious vision lighting up the whole
Of the wide world; or one deep wild desire,
By day and night consuming sad and sole;
Till hope, pride, genius, nay, till love's own fire,
Desert the weary heart, a cold and moulder-ing prye.

HONESTY NOT THE BEST POLICY.

Ere aught I knew of this world's treasures,
its tempting stores or tempting pleasures,
My good instructors always taught me
'Honesty is best policy'—and so I thought me;
But think no more—since t'other day,
Tempted by sparkling eyes to stray,
I stole a kiss—which gave such feeling,
I'm ne'er so happy as when stealing.

From the Colonial Advocate.

A gentleman crossed to York from Oswego, on arriving at the little capital, he inquired for the Custom House, as he had some goods aboard to enter at that office; he was shown the place hard by the quay. The collector proved to be a very mild, good natured gentleman, as it might be; quite a man of business too, very conversant with figures; in short, a man well known on change, as the saying is; he was—Mr. William Allen. On opening his trunk, Mr. Z. found some of his letters were to be left at the post-office of York: he inquired where it was situated, and in the Postmaster recognized—Mr. William Allen. He had some bills which he wished to discount, had them properly endorsed, posted off to the Bank of Upper Canada, was shown the President of that institution, and that President was the indefatigable—Mr. William Allen. A day or two after, he was accompanying a friend, who had come to town to pay some money for a store and tavern license; on arriving at the office of the Inspector of licenses, he was amazed to find that functionary also in the person of —Mr William Allen.—A review of the militia took place while he stayed, he had the curiosity to go and see it, and recognized in the Colonel, his (new) old acquaintance—Mr. William Allen! A row took place in the hotel where he lodged; his evidence was wanted; and the acting Magistrate was—Mr. William Allen! Taking up a newspaper to amuse himself, he read the names of the society for strangers in distress; the Treasurer; was Mr. William Allen! Walking with a friend to see the hospital, he was told the names of the trustees; one of them was—Mr. William Allen! He happened to overhear a debate about a property which had been forfeited by a man who ran away in the time of war; the names of the Commissioners were mentioned in the course of the argument, and one of them was—Mr. William Allen! Another day he met a friend from Niagara in a doleful mood; inquired the cause, and was informed, that the Commissioners for war losses had cut off his claim; who are the Commissioners? asked he of Oswego; the reply was A. B. C. D. and—Mr. William Allen! He sold some of his goods to a merchant, who gave him an order on the treasurer of the district; the treasurer was—Mr. William Allen! He had occasion to inquire for a black chip hat, and was directed for a good one to apply at the store of—Mr. William Allen! He could hold no longer; but amazed, astonished, and confounded, exclaimed—How I do pity this poor man, this William Allen! if he does the duty of so many different situations, his life must surely be a burthen to himself, and if he does not, how do I pity a country, the laws of which allow one man to hold such a number of important trusts, at one and the same time! Poh! says my uncle Sim,—who lives near President Allen, on the same street, you are a stranger, and ought to be silent, you see but a small specimen of the blessings of our provincial government. The Colonel is an Aberdeensman. An Aberdeensman, quoth I? —Yes, says he, a Scotsman, you know. Ah! I have you now; a favourite of the government.—Exactly so, was the reply; a townsman of the honorable and reverend owner of the palace there, (pointing) a real man for business—worth a plum! in short, he is—he is—Mr. William Allen! ! !
