ROYAL AMUSEMENTS.

When the Duchess of Berri had her grand fete at Dieppe on Wednesday week, one of the principal entertainments, and that in which she seemed to take most delight, was a contest for several small prizes which she had determined to appropriate to the winners according to her own peculiar taste. About forty smart young fellows were appointed to snatch for the prizes at the risk of being well ducked in the water.—The Duchess had ordered a plank of the length of between 30 and 40 feet, to be placed from one of the King's galleys to another vessel, and to be well soaped, so that if the runners for the rewards were not very expert, they must inevitably fall into the water. The plank was very narrow, and many of the candidates for distinction would have willingly given up all claim to the glory, had it not been for the presence of the Duchess, who seemed to expect that there would not be a single disappointment. It was necessary that the runners should be as lightly clad as possible, consistently with the presence of the other sex, as many a plunge was expected, and those who tumbled into the water were not to be prevented from a second experiment but were at liberty to get ducked again as often as they pleased. They accordingly appeared completely naked, except so far as a pair of drawers was capable of covering each of them. The Duchess sat on the quarter deck of the king's galley, surrounded by her attendants, and having directed that each prize should be hung up at the end of the plank upon which this extraordinary exhibition was to take place, so high as to require that the aspirant should make a sort of spring to reach it, and that the plank should be particularly well soaped at that critical point, she gave orders for the commencement of the contest. The first that appeared in the lists was a stout-built young fellow, who had, we understand, often made a sure passage over many a slippery place. He advanced with a good deal of confidence, and made four or five bold and successful steps, but the Duchess had directed that the soap should be so applied that where the firmest footing was expected, the least chance of standing was to be found, and at the fifth step the unfortunate adventurer tumbled head over heels into the deep. A roar of laughter accompanied his downfall, and the Duchess most heartily joined in the fun. Several boats were in readiness to pull up the tumblers, and the first essayist, the moment he rose on the surface was hauled in. The second candidate, who was round and squat, had no better success. He ran on cautiously, but was dismayed by a sudden word of advice, and in turning round his head to see to whom he was indebted, he showed his gratitude by falling upon his face and hands into the water. Several other attempts were made without success.

At last a candidate who seemed to be one of the family, a member of which is cutting so distinguished a figure in London as the "anatomic vivante," presented himself. His appearance caused universal alarm, for every one apprehended, that if he missed the prize his fall would be fatal, there being not an atom of that buoyant stuff about him which was calculated to enable him to move from the bottom if once he reached it. The boats kept immediately under the plank, as it was thought better that he should break a limb than run the other chance; but he disappointed all the fears entertained of him, for his feet was so bare of flesh, and his heels were so sharp, that he ran as securely as if the plank had been Macadamized. He reached and carried the prize with ease in the midst of applauses, in which the Duchess of Berri most loudly joined. Innumerable falls took place; and in fact it was found by the candidates, that their failures were so much more agreeable to the royal personage who superintended their movements than their victory, that they not only fell intentionally, but in the most ridiculous manner into the water. This entertainment continued for three hours, and the duchess declared at the conclusion that she never was better pleased.—Eng. paper.

$100 Reward.

Ranaway on Saturday evening the 10th inst. from the service of Mr. Edward Nicholson, living in Miles River Neck, Talbot county, a very dark mulatto fellow, named BEN, (almost black) of rather spare person and thin visage. He is about 25 years old, and is very insolent and fierce in his manner when spoken to. He is said to have gone off with some negroes belonging to John P. Paca, Esq.

It is most probable that this fellow has taken the usual route through Delaware, but no precise account of him has yet been obtained.

I will give the above mentioned reward of one hundred dollars, for securing and delivering this negro in the goal of Easton.

N. B. About four years ago, a Clark mulatto fellow named JOE, then about 25 years of age, ranaway from the service of General Benson, of Miles River Neck, to whom he was then hired.

Also, in the Easter Holydays of 1823, a tall, slender, bright mulatto fellow, named DAVID, 20 years of age, ranaway from the service of Mr. Wm. Troth, near Dover Bridge.

☞I will give a reward of one hundred dollars for apprehending and delivering at the goal of Easton, Talbot county, either of the last mentioned negroes.

RACHEL L. KERR.

Easton, Talbot county, Sept. 24

$100 Reward.

Ranaway from the subscriber's farm, on the Head of South River, in Anne Arundel county, on the 30th May, negro man CHARLES, who calls himself CHARLES BUTLER; he is about 26 years of age, six feet one inch high, the clothing he had on when he absconded, was a domestic cloth coat and Osnaburg shirt and trowsers, and old wool hat. I will give the above reward, and all reasonable charges if brought home, or secured in any jail so that I get him again.

THOMAS SNOWDEN.

June 4 tf

$20 Reward.

Ranaway from the subscriber on or about the 29th July last, a negro boy called FRANK, aged about 16, formerly the property of John M. Wise, of Talbot county. This boy was hired to Robert Dawson, of said county, and left the employ of said Dawson on the day above mentioned. This boy I purchased at public sale. I will give the above reward if said boy be secured in the jail of said county, or delivered to me, and all reasonable charges paid. It is most likely this boy has made for Poplar Island, as his former master now resides on said Island.
